PRESIDENT HAS CHANGED MIND

Now Directs That Funds be Sent to Ex-Mayor Phelan in San Francisco.

WEEK AFTER HORROR

San Francisco is Recovering Her Normal Energy and Conditions are Hourly Improving.

Washington, April 25.—In a proclamation today President Roosevelt urges the American people to send their contributions for the alleviation of the distress in San Francisco direct to former Mayor James D. Phelan, chairman of the finance commitee in San Francisco, instead of to the American Red Cross.

WEEK SINCE EARTHQUAKE.

Stricken City Making Progress and Rebuilding is Begun.

San Francisco, April 25.—It is a week today since this city was visited by an earthquake which laid low the metropolis of the Pacific coast and started a conflagration unequaled in the history of this country.

Although the ruddy glow of the dying embers of the fire which devastated San Francisco, made homeless 300,000 people, caused the loss of many lives and left a black trail of utter desolation and ruin in its wake, still nightly illuminate the sky, the work of restoration is already well under way, showing a spirit unbroken, a courage undaunted and a determination seldom equalled and which has never been surpassed.

Hurry Plans for Rebuilding.

Plans for the construction of the new buildings to replace those destroyed by earthquake and flames are rapidly being drawn and work on some of them will begin as soon as the ruins of the old sites are cold. Many of the new buildings planned are on a larger scale than those licked up by the flames, giving promise that from the ashes will rise a new San Francisco, greater and more beautiful than the old.

Within the past week the people of this city have gone through the entire gamut of distress. They have maintained Spartan courage and an unconquerable spirit.

At no time has there been any panic, disorder or crime.

In addition to the large force of men and teams already at work about fifty teams of government mules were put to work yesterday hauling away debris. Several more streets were cleared for traffic, numerous street car lines are ready for operation, while the repairing of the water mains and the work of restoration of the gas and electric systems is making rapid headway.

Hordes Quit Stricken City.

The exodus from the city continues. All day yesterday a constant stream of men, women and children wended their way down toward the ferries. A little bundle on a stick carried over the shoulder represented all the worldly possessions of some; others had grips and baskets and a great many had saved trunks and furniture. It is estimated that sixty thousand people were furnished with free transportation to the different parts of the state by the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railways. The relief work is rapidly becoming systemized. Many car loads of provisions and supplies are being received daily. Five cars were received from southern California, among other things 3,000 blankets, which were immediately distributed at the transport docks by the marines. The blankets came at an opportune time, but are insignificant in number to what are actually required, in fact, imperatively necessary to alleviate the distress of the suffering, many of the refugees being poorly protected against exposure.

Suffer in the Cold.

The rain was followed by a clear cold night, causing much distress in the parks and crowded camps for want of dry bedding, blankets, cots and waterproof tents. Many people walked for hours to keep warm, others huddled around little camp fires, shivering with cold, in some instances their clothing being still wet from the rain. Everything possible was done to alleviate their distress by putting women and children in houses, but as no fires are allowed and there is a lack of blankets, it helped but little.

As a result of Mayor Schmitz's sharp letter yesterday evening to General Koster, commanding the national guard, in which the general's attention is called to the fact that the city was not under martial law and that the drastic measures of some of his men were illegal, there was but little shooting last night in the district over which the militia hold sway.

Much Shooting During Night.

The fact that two companies of the Fourteenth United States infantry from Vancouver went to Oakland yesterday to do guard duty in that city, indicates that the militia will be recalled.

A marine has reported finding a light burning in a house on lower Fillmore street after 10 o'clock last night and the military sentry on the post shot through the window. A looter, who, it is said, broke into several places on Vallejo street, was reported to have been shot by a marine sentry at Vallejo and East streets.

MR. BRYAN TO OPEN HIS CAMPAIGN HERE

FORT WAYNE CHOSEN FOR AN ADDRESS IN SEPTEMBER.

State Committee Arranges Some Details of Convention and the Campaign.

Indianapolis, April 25.—The democratic editors of the state have practically perfected the organization of a news bureau for the coming campaign. Within two weeks there will be a democratic news bureau opened in this city. It will be in charge of one of the democratic newspaper men of the estate and will be backed by an organization of the editors of a majority of the democratic papers of Indiana.

There is no connection between the news bureau and the democratic state committee. The bureau is an organization of editors alone and is entirely independent. The state committee will, when the campaign opens, have its own press bureau, as usual. There will, however, be co-operation between the bureau and the committee and everything sent out to the press of the state by the bureau will be authentic, as far as the committee is concerned.

The state committee has arranged to have a mass meeting in Tomlinson hall on the night of June 6, the night before the opening of the state convention. It was the intention of the committee to have William Jennings Bryan as the principal speaker at this meeting, but Mr. Bryan's absence from the country has made a change necessary. The committee has extended invitations to Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, and Governor Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri, to address the meeting. These invitations have just been made and there has been no time for acceptances. It was, however, the understanding of the committee before the invitations were given, that Mr. Bailey and Mr. Folk would take the first opportunity to speak in Indiana and it is regarded as practically certain that the two democratic orators will address the preliminary meeting and attend the convention.

Mr. Bryan will speak in the state during the campaign. The first Bryan meeting will be at Fort Wayne, probably the third week in September. From Fort Wayne Mr. Bryan will come to Indianapolis. He will then go to Evansville and will make a speaking tour of the southern part of the state. After a return to this city he will make a number of speeches in northern Indiana cities.

Smoke in East Berry Street Business House Puzzles Firemen.

Firemen were puzzled shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon when in response to an alarm from the Abline block on East Berry street they found the room of the English Woolen Mills company filled with smoke, but were unable to locate fire. Thorough search of the premises failed to disclose the source of the smoke, which soon passed away without doing damage.

CRAWFORDSVILLE PEOPLE NERVOUS

Gas Explosion Made Them Think Earthquake Had Hit the City.

NEGRO HUNTED LEAK

With the Aid of Lighted Match He Found It—General News of State of Indiana.

Crawfordsville, Ind., April 25.—A gas explosion with the accompanying shock, struck terror to the hearts of many people in the College Hill residence district late last night. Sleepers were awakened and the shaking of houses, significant of late happenings in California, caused a general exodus of people within a radius of several blocks. In scant attire they hurried into the streets to discover the cause and found it when William Roberts, a negro, ran out of a house with his clothing afire. After he had been rescued from cremation, the terrified darkey managed to explain that he had been helping Gordon Gauld, a druggist, who had moved his goods into the house during the day, put down carpets. While thus engaged they detected a strong odor of gas and Roberts volunteered to find the leak with a match. He did so, but the discovery was made at the expense of every window in the house, fragments of glass being blown seventy feet and upward. Mr. Gauld and the negro were both severely, but not seriously burned.

TILTED THE PRICE FOR A FRANCHISE

A TELEPHONE GRANT

Was to Cost $50,000 Paid on the Quiet—Later $75,000 Was Asked for It.

Cincinnati, April 25.—It would cost $50,000 for a franchise for an independent telephone company extending from Kentucky into Cincinnati, according to the testimony today of John J. Downey, of Terre Haute, Ind., before the senatorial investigating committee. He said that he and his partner, Sol. P. Kineon, called on August Herrman about the matter. At their second conference with Herrman, Downey said they were told that it would be necessary to give Horrman $50,00. He did not know who would finally receive the money. He paid Attorney Ellis Kinkead $250 and his partner gave the attorney the same amount, on the advice of Herrman, but so far as Downey knew there was no service rendered for it. He had been willing to pay $50,000 if a franchise was guaranteed, but when three months later they were informed by Herrman that it would take $75,000, Downey said he got tired and quit. Sol. P. Kineow, who was associated with Downey also testified that Herrman had told him that a franchise for an independent telephone company would be given for $50,000.

Promised Everything.

Mr. Downey said:

"During these negotiations I also saw Mr. Silberberg and Mr. Cohen, the attorney. Mr. Herrman said there would be no doubt about securing the franchise. He said if the mayor vetoed it, it would be passed over his head. The money was to be paid when the franchise was delivered. No one else was trying to get a franchise at that time.

"Mr. Herrman talked encouragingly from time to time. He said that it was not necessary to see any member of the council. Attorney Kinkead was to draw up the necessary papers. Mr. Kineon was with me on the first visit to Mr. Herrman's office and at other times. I also called at the law office of Cohen and Mack and there met several brokers. One of them told me that he did a great deal of business with Mr. Cox. Mr. Kineon and I were to give Mr. Herrman $50,000. I do not know who was to get it. Mr. Silberberg told me that he wanted to be kept informed on everything that I did. I told him I was to pay $50,000 to Mr. Herrmann. The plan was for Mr. Cox to put up $50,000 and for us to put up $50,000, making it a $100,000 corporation."

Rejected the Proposition.

Sol. P. Kineon, in his testimony, said he asked Herrmann what show there was for a new telephone company, continuing: "Herrmann said it would be a good thing for we ought to have opposition and he said it would cost $50,000. He said the money could be made payable when the franchise was ready for delivery. I said there was another party interested and told him I would bring Mr. Downey to see him next day. In the presence of Mr. Downey next day Mr. Herrman repeated the $50,000 proposition. I wanted Downey to hear it, because he was to put up half the money."

Mr. Kineon told in response to numerous questions by Mr. Roettinger, that the three men understood the proposition and that witness was hold the money until the franchise was delivered. Kineon said he called on Mr. Herrman again, buit witness was "put off."

Gates and Beers Came.

Continuing Mr. Kineon said: "Gates and Beers came here from Indiana and opened an office in the traction building. I did not go in with them. I was asked, but I said that if I took in any one else it would be Cincinnati people. The $50,000 Downey and I were to put up was to get ready and to get the franchise. The Silberberg party, which was to be with us, was to put up $50,000 for offices and other plans. This other $50,000 was all to be put up by one man, George Cox. Then they wanted me to let go. I told them no, that I would hold on to what I had. We have been knocking at the door ever since."

Mr. Kineon said that Silberberg was unable to obtain a promise of the signature of Mayor Fleischmann to the ordinance. This concluded Mr. Kineon's evidence.

Springfield, O., April 25.—Mrs. Eliza D. Stewart, or "Mother" Stewart, as she is affectionately called, today quietly celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary at her home, "Farnsworth Retreat," near Hicksville, Ohio. The great crusader and temperance advocate is now frail and weak, but is still able to enjoy her reading, embroidery and her friends. VOLUNTEERS YET COMING FORWARD

Anxious to Contribute to Success of Benefit Program.

BIG EVENT TOMORROW

Fort Wayne Contribution to Popular Fund in Banks Now More Than $3,300.

Volunteers are yet coming forward with generous offers of their services upon the program of the benefit entertainment for the San Francisco sufferers to be given tomorrow evening at the Majestic theater under the auspices of the Fort Wayne Press club. The program committee's problem has been not to secure the list of features, but to keep the program within reasonable length, and those who attend are certain to be delightfully entertained.

With it all, there will be the satisfaction of having contributed in a small way at least to the Fort Wayne fund for the aid of the earthquake sufferers, as every dollar realized goes into this fund. There are no expenses whatever, everything being donated for the good cause. The seat sale, while large, has not yet reached the proportions which it was hoped it would assume, and there is still ample opportunity for several hundred charitably disposed citizens to aid in the work. Seats may be purchased at the theater box office as well as at numerous places in the down-town district.

This evening Mayor Hosey, the directors of the Commercial club, representatives from each of the banks and of organizations which have not yet forwarded subscriptions to San Francisco, will hold a conference at the Commercial club to discuss the transportation of the fund.

YOUNG MENSCH IS SAFE.

Fort Wayne Electrician Lost Everything, But Escaped Harm.

Fred P. Mensch, the West Columbia street grocer, was immensely relieved Tuesday afternoon by the receipt of a letter from his son, Ferd B. Mensch, who was employed as an electrician and lived in the heart of San Francisco. The leter was written on the day of the 'quake, and in part is as follows:

"I am O. K. Didn't get a scratch. Everyone is living in the park. Government has the situation under control and will commence feeding the people tomorrow. Town is all burned down. Earthquake was frightful; about 500 dead and wounded. Earthquake was general along the coast, and while we can leave the city we would not better ourselves so are staying here.

"I do not know how soon you will get this, as everyone is excited. All my things are burned up. I have money in the safe deposit vaults, but can't get it until fire is over and debris is cleared up. Everyone is busted and the fire burned up the supplies in the commercial district. Fortunately for us, the government sent the troops from the Presidio and Monterey to guard the city, and the city is under martial law.

"Lots of thieves have been shot and some have been hanged. The government has millions of rations at the Presidio and Monterey and has already started to feed the people—beans and coffee. The weather is excellent and no one is kicking, as sleeping in the park is like camping out.

"We can't get any news as the printing presses are all burned. The people in the east know more about the situation than we do. Will write more when I get more paper and a place to write."

Others Get Some Word.

VETERANS OF THE GRAY IN REUNION

GREAT MEETING HAS BEGUN IN NEW ORLEANS.

General Stephen D. Lee Makes a Feeling Allusion to Death of Gen. Joe Wheeler.

New Orleans, April 25. Under weather conditions that were ideal attended by a multitude that tried to the utmost the great auditorium erected for the occasion and with enthusiasm unbounded, the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans was today called to order. Everything at the outset points to one of the most successful reunions in the history of the organization.

The hall in which the reunion is to be held is as beautiful as a structure of bare boards could possibly be made. Every roof pillar was covered from top to bottom with white and red bunting wound in alternate bands and between these uprights hung, first the confederate flag, then the national colors, then the stars and bars again, the spaces between filled in this manner from end to end of the hall. The roof was concealed by ropes of red and white tissue caught up at regular intervals by small confederate flags. Portraits of the leaders of the confederacy were placed at regular intervals throughout the hall.

Promptly to the minute the convention was called to order by General Albert Estopinal, commander-in-chief of the Louisiana division of the United Confederate Veterans.

An address of welcome to the visiting veterans was then made by General Estopinal.

General Lee's Address.

General Lee spoke in part as follows:

"We have lost, dear friends and comrades, since we met together, none more beloved and more honored than the soldier who was recently laid to rest at Arlington. Joe Wheeler won his spurs by true and honorable service. He was a superb cavalry leader, and earned in many a hard fought field the right to lead where brave men followed. When the heart of our common country yearned to express to her Confederate sons that their welcome home was complete, to Wheeler it was given to show on our behalf that every star on the flag was now dear to us and that we were ready to follow it to the very 'isles of the Sea.' It was southern hands that set star after star in that blue field of glory, and if any more stars are planted there it will be strange if a southerner is not found assisting at the operation.

"Comrades, there is one thing committed to our care as a peculiar trust—the memory of the Confederate soldiers. So far as lies in our power we have striven that history may not lack the evidence of his purity of motive, his fortitude, his heroism. tSoltawayssrsP....atdfisir ocmfwyp I for one, do not fear that justice, however long delayed, will not ultimately be done to one of the greatest bodies of men who ever battled for independence, or, triumphing over defeat, bound up the bleeding wounds of their country."

WILL SELECT DELEGATES.

At the meeting Friday night of the Knights of Columbus two delegates will be selected to attend the state convention at Logansport, May 8. Arrangements will also be made at the meeting to contribute something to the sufferers at San Francisco.

Prof. Bickel, of St. Martin's street, has returned from a business trip to Indianapolis.

FRANCE PREPARES TO MEET CRISIS

Ample Force Will be Within Striking Distance for May Day Trouble.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Crowds in Paris Will Be Confined to Certain Districts Where Control is Possible.

Paris, April 25.—According to a semi-official statement made by a high functionary of the prefecture of police today the military and police are prepared to meet every eventuality May 1. He said the police canvass shows that 80,000 men have stopped work, of which number the disorderly element does not exceed 20,000.

Against these can be massed 42,000 to 45,000 troops, namely, 20,000 infantry, 10,000 cavalry and 10,000 to 15,000 republican guards and police, with large additional reserves. The police will endeavor to localize the manifestation to the Place De La Republique, which is the great labor center, and to the vicinity of the labor exchange.

This will prevent the manifestants from gaining the cenier of Paris or getting west of the Place De La Concorde, into the residential sections of the Champs Elysee or Passy. It is expected that the strength of the military and police will readily enable them to confine the disorderly element within its own eastern sections, thus reducing the demonstration to isolated affrays which should easily be controlled.

The police are convinced that there is no danger of a lack of food supplies owing to the strike in the provision trades. They declare that the dealers in provisions are reaping a harvest by spreading alarmist reports. The police are in favor of closing the stores altogether.

In conclusion the official of the prefecture stated that the situation, while serious, does not warrant it being represented as tragic. The painters have decided to stop work May 1 and to remain out until they are granted an eight-hour day and a weekly holiday.

COMPANY SUES TO RECOVER PREMIUM

COUNCIL REFUSED TO ALLOW THE CLAIM.

Money is Asked on Old Indemnity Policy—General News of the Local Courts.

Suit was entered in the circuit court today against the city of Fort Wayne by the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York to recover $480 claimed as premium on an indemnity policy.

The claim was presented to the city council recently and went to the proper committee and was rejected upon the advice of the members. The city carried indemnity insurance for the benefit of the waterworks at the time the mains were laid in Lakeside and it is stated that the full amount of the premium was not paid. Ballou and Hoffman filed the suit.

Hower Case Is Begun.

The taking of testimony in the case against Jesse Hower was begun in the circuit court yesterday afternoon and up to 4 o'clock this afternoon only two witnesses—Dr. B. F. Ladd and Dr. L. Park Drayer—had been examined.

Hower is said to have applied to Dr. Ladd to commit a criminal operation upon his wife before he made the attempt himself and Dr. Prayer took the woman's confession before her death.

Change Is Granted.

Judge Heaton today granted a change of venue in the suit of Avery D. Robacker against C. D. Tillo and sent it to DeKalb county for trial. The action was brought to recover $1,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained by Robacker and a jury gave a verdict for $400 on the first trial which was set aside by S. L. Morris, as special judge.

Court Notes.

Catherine Seckler is charged by Nora Hoon with cutting her clothesline and with assault. Both parties live on Indiana avenue and are neighbors. Justice Tancey will hear the cases.

In the suit of George Jacobs against Albert N. Grant a superior court jury returned a verdict for $25 this morning.

In a divorce complaint filed in the superior court this morning by Anna Vachon against William Vachon she alleges that her husband beat and abused her, called her bad names and accused her of infidelity.

She asserts that he has violated his marriage vows a number of times since their wedding, which took place September 25, 1900. He is employed at the Bass foundry, and a restraining order was issued to prevent him from drawing his wages for disposing of his property. W. & E. Leonard are her attorneys.

Minerva G. Baird has brought suit against Oliver G. Baird for divorce, charging him with failure to provide. She says he compelled her to go out and work for her living, although he was able to provide. They live at 1413 McCulloch street and he has been restrained from disposing of their property. Phil B. Colerick is her attorney.

near the Stanford university buildings at Palo Alto, escaped injury. The lady is a sister of the Messrs. O. F., J. P. and G. P. Evans.

The communication to Mr. Evans, dated at Palo Alto, is as follows: "We are all right. Town is out of provisions. San Francisco is burning down, San Jose is a total ruin, also Stanford university; Agnew's inmates running rampant. Half-starved people flocking south from Frisco; financial panic, loss of life and destruction cannot be described. Thank your stars you are not here."

J. B. Lynch, a business associate of Major Lee M. Olds, telegraphed yesterday from Vallejo, Cal., to Judge Walter Olds, father of the San Francisco attorney, as follows: "Lee, wife and boys safe and well. Have coin for immediate needs. Wire me."

Printing Trades' Benefit.

The union printing trades at a meeting held yesterday made arrangements for a ball, the proceeds of which will go to the San Francisco sufferers. The unions associated are the Typographical, the Stereotypers and the Pressmen's and assistants. NATIONAL OFFICER ACTS.

President Dolan Sends $1,000 on Behalf of Hibernians.

While in Fort Wayne today, James E. Dolan, of Syracuse, N. Y., national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, wired Hon. John D. Phelan, chairman of the finance committee at San Francisco, on behalf of the society he represents, directing him to draw on the national treasurer, Hon. M. J. O'Brien, of Richmond, Ind., the sum of $1,000 for the relief of the stricken people of San Francisco. This sum is contributed out of the national treasury of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Other contributions will follow.

"The national officers," said Mr. Dolan, "desire and instruct all divisions and individual members who desire to donate toward the relief of the stricken people of San Francisco and vicinity, to send their contributions direct to M. J. O'Brien, national treasurer, Richmond, Ind., who will promptly forward the same in behalf of our society to San Francisco.

"This is not the first time the Ancient Order of Hibernians has contributed to the relief of suffering people. Large donations were made to the sufferers from the Johnstown flood, the Galveston tidal wave, the Missouri Valley flood, and in fact when any great calamity overtakes the people in any section of this republic this society is among the first to contribute."

which Dr. Diggins, of the Emergency hospital service, was going from the Potrero district to the Presidio. The shooting was done while the launch was off the ferry depot. None of the occupants were hit. The bluejackets, who patrol that section of the water front, disclaim all knowledge of the shooting.

An alleged thief who is said to have jumped out of a window with a bundle of clothing at Pierce and O'Farrell streets early this morning, is reported to have been shot by a national guardsman.

More Bodies Recovered.

The bodies of three men and one woman were found among the ruins in the burned district yesterday afternoon. One of them, which is identified as that of John Hynes, was found at Eighteenth and Kentucky streets. Hynes met death by drowning. The remains of another man were found in the ruins of the Southern Pacific building at Fourth and Townsend streets and those of another at 552 First avenue. The body of the woman was found at Sixth and Townsend streets. None of the three could be identified.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Affairs in San Francisco Becoming More Normal.

San Francisco, April 25.—Things are quieting down in San Francisco.

Telephonic communication with Oakland has been re-established. For the time being the service will be confined to business communications, but it will be extended very soon. Telephone service will be resumed in the undestroyed portions of the city in a few days.

The Belt railroad is now operating around the water front, and all sorts of relief supplies are being distributed from there. The electric lights were started on East street last night and these lights will be extended to the wharves right away. There will be plenty of electric lights almost immediately, perhaps today.

An official list of the condition of the school buildings throughout the city shows that twenty-nine buildings were utterly destroyed and that forty-four were at least partially spared. As many of the latter were so damaged that they will have to be either pulled down or thoroughly repaired, it is likely that the resumption of the short term will be made in tents erected in the parks.

Place for the Sick.

Surgeon General Gerard, of the United States army, has taken possession of the Crocker grammar school on Page street for the benefit of the sick people in the park who will all be removed to that place for care and shelter. There is ample floor space for three hundred patients. A force of 200 physicians and surgeons is now making a house-to-house inspection of sanitary conditions under orders of the health commission.

There are 107 companies to share the San Francisco insurance loss. This loss is estimated by the local agents at between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000, but New York sends word that the insurance men there think the loss will not exceed $125,000,000. Chicago's loss was $125,000,000, and three companies defaulted to the amount of $15,000,000. The loss in Baltimore was paid in full. It amounted to $35,000,000.

To Protect Litigants.

The state supreme court has made a sweeping order granting a rehearing in all cases in which a petition has been filed, and in which the time for granting a re-hearing will expire before the first of May. The purpose is to prevent lapses which would deprive parties to a suit from completing the record within the time specified within the rule. A similar order was made in respect to appeals in that court from the United States district court of appeals.

The sailing of the Oceanic Steamship company's Sonoma for Australian ports having been indefinitely postponed, it has been decided to divert all mail for Australia via Vancouver.

Train service on the Southern Pacific's coast division, operating between this city and Los Angeles via San Jose, will be resumed today.

SANTA ROSA WAS DESTROYED.

Beautiful California City Suffered Great Loss of Life.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 25.—Compared to the population it is now believed that in Santa Rosa the greatest loss of life occurred from earthquake and fire, even if this unfortunate city does not lead in the actual number of victims. In a letter received here from a former Los Angeles man the writer says in part:

"This town is in awful shape. There is not a single brick or stone building standing, and scores of fine residences are in ruins. Fires broke out in the business district right after the shock and burned dead and living alike. There were three big three-story hotels but while all of them fell, but one took fire. From the St. Rose they took out nine bodies today. They found a little girl in these ruins. She was unhurt, but very hungry and thirsty, having been buried four days and night. The timbers had lodged so that they protected her. Cases of this kind have been numerous. There would undoubtedly have been a great many lives saved if they could have been gotten out in the first twenty-four hours, but the task was so great it was an impossibility."

California's oil fields have not suffered by the earthquake in the southern part of the state. This is the statement of officials of various petroleum companies. The report also is re-assuring to citizens generally. The industry means much to California. In other states tremblers have either shut off the flow of oil or have brought in salt water, the deadly enemy of petroleum wells. Neither of these have occurred in this state.

OVERRUN WITH REFUGEES.

El Paso, Texas, Becoming Crowded With California Sufferers.

El Paso, Tex., April 25.—El Paso bids fair to become overrun with refugees from San Francisco. Every train is bringing many penniless refugees, the relief committee furnishing them transportation. It may be necessary to raise funds to help them. The Maccabees yesterday started a movement among all Texas lodges of the order to raise funds to assist their San Francisco members. The sum will be sent to the California state commander.

FULL CARGO OF SUPPLIES.

Tacoma Sends Fourth Ship Load to San Francisco.

Tacoma, Wash., April 25.—The United States cable ship Burnside sailed from Tacoma last night direct for San Francisco with a full cargo of 1,500 tons of supplies, purchased by the chamber of commerce relief committee from local contributions and from funds telegraphed from Philadelphia, Boston and other cities. This is the fourth steamer dispatched by the Tacoma relief committee.

VALUABLE MANUSCRIPT LOST.

History of Journalism Destroyed in San Francisco Fire.

Sacramento, Cal., April 25.—Mr. R. A. Crothers, proprietor of the San Francisco Bulletin, arrived in Sacramento last night. He said that he lost everything in his home at 1060 Bush street, where were collected a valuable mass of manuscripts and other articles belonging to the late Mr. Loring Pickering. Among these was the manuscript of a history of journalism by Mr. Pickering. This had never been published, but it was regarded by Mr. Pickering as a work of importance, giving his personal recollections of every journalist of note in the United States, running back for three quarters of a century. Mr. Crothers was pleased to state that most of the files of the Bulletin were saved and that those that were lost can be replaced.

MRS. KELLY IS LIVING.

Did Not Lose Her Life at Agnews, as Believed.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, April 25.—Mrs. Edwin Kelly, nee Mayme Miller, of Bellefontaine, who was reported killed with her husband, Dr. Kelly, assistant superintendent of the insane hospital at Agnews, Cal., is alive and recovering from her injuries at a sanitarium. Dr. Kelly was killed outright. Admiral Merrill Miller, of Berkley, Cal., who is visiting here, received the news of the safety of Mrs. Kelly, his niece, today.

ADDS TO THE DEATH ROLL.

General Greely Telegraphs Names of More Victims.

Washington, April 25.—The war department today received a telegram from General Greely dated Fort Mason yesterday, giving a further list of dead as follows:

Following named dead are reported in addition to list sent last night: Albert D. Saeghter, Margaret Miles, Anne Mary Patrig, unknown man, Joseph U. Aelvi, Jens Sorrenson, Mr. Mealair, Kolber M. Mausen, Patrick Dockery, Denis T. Sullivan, Bernard Shay, Jules Jauzi, Amelio Marco, N. A. Huetell, John Faurth, Francis Mercier, Teresa Roche. Two hundred twenty-one injured are being cared for at general hospital, presidio; seven hundred eighty-four at park emergency hospital, making one thousand and five injured so far reported. No further reports on this subject will be rendered unless specially called for."

General Greeley in a dispatch received at the war department today, reports the condition of affairs in Santa Rosa as follows: "Colonel Pratt just returned from thorough inspection of Santa Rosa. There are no homeless persons unprovided for. Provisions from outside sources leave no present need of rations. Santa Rosa is garrisoned by two companies o fthe California national guard, and no additional troops are desired. Sanitary conditions are good. Excellent order prevails, spirits of the people high, although about 100 were killed and as many more injured. The entire business part of city is destroyed. Medical attendance is ample but certain medical supplies are necessary, which I have ordered forwarded today."

ANOTHER BIG BOOM

HOME BUYERS AND INVESTORS PRAISING NUTTMANN PLACE—THE GREATEST INDUCEMENTS EVER OFFERED.

Fort Wayne has another "BOOM" on. This time it is beautiful Nuttman place, located on South Broadway and adjoining the favorite McCulloch park. There is no doubt that the opportunities offered the public for investing their money in Nuttman Place property eclipse all previous or present real estate boosts of this city.

This sudden demand for home-sites in that part of our city is without doubt due entirely to the gilt-edged inducements offered to both the builder of a home and the investor. And no wonder, if we consider that in the most beautiful and most desirable location of our city, building lots are to be had (and vacant lots close in are getting scarce) with all improvements made and paid for.

As a matter of fact, several of our most modern homes have already been erected in Nuttman Place and others are in course of construction. There will be, without doubt, the greatest building boom this summer which Fort Wayne has ever had.

It is a great temptation to the prospective buyer, to know of a locality, the restrictions of which will guarantee him that his home, when built, will be located in the very heart of a beautiful and exclusive residence district.

There are a hundred and one advantages offered buyers over other additions, too numerous to be all mentioned in these columns, but that these advantages are being recognized by the home-buying public is clearly illustrated by the constantly increasing demand for Nuttman Place lots.

COMMENDS FT. WAYNE AUTHOR.

Dr. Koonts, of Roanoke, Praises Mrs. Stapleford's "Wah-See-Ola."

Mrs. Julia M. B. Stapleford, of this city, author of "Wah-See-Ola," an absorbing historical novel, the scenes of which are laid in and about Fort Wayne, has received the following letter from Dr. S. Koontz, of Roanoke, in praise of the many excellences of the work:

Roanoke, Ind., April 10, 1906.—Mrs. J. M. B. Stapleford, Fort Wayne, Ind.—Dear Madam:—Some time ago I secured and read one of your books, "Wah-see-ola," which, in my poorly worded communication I wish to assure you to me was of more than usual interest, and after careful perusal I bought a second book and sent it to an aunt in Cleveland, Ohio, with whom it has been a custom to exchange Christmas greetings in the way of select stories.

For several reasons to me the book is of interest. First, the subject is so well presented to its readers, is the product of the fertile mind of a local author giving a vivid description of almost prehistoric date of the particular section of the country with which the writer of this letter has been associated for more than half a century and describing the same in language that brings to memory conditions of much later date when as a "tenderfoot" we sailed down the old Wabash canal in the early fifties to seek a home in the wilderness near the meeting waters, among wild animals, Indians, mosquitoes and malaria. Your beautiful city, Fort Wayne, was then but a country village.

We hope the financial success of your undertaking will prove such as to stimulate the author to continue in the good work and give us more of more recent history of this historic country of such historic interest as to entitle it to a memorial mark that forever will keep it before the eyes of our legislature and coming generations that it may always remain as a mark of interest. I am

Respectfully,
S. Koontz, M. D.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for chronic kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." —Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

WAS OUSTED FROM CATHOLIC CHURCH

Bishop Upholds Pastor in Case of Young Business Man Who Did Not Sustain Charges.

Hartford City, Ind., April 25.—Because, it is claimed, he attempted to incite dissatisfaction among the members of the congregation and in various ways sought the removal of the Rev. Charles Dhe as pastor of the St. John's Catholic parish, P. J. D. Larmoyeux, a prominent young business man of this city and secretary of the Commercial club, has been excommunicated from the Catholic church.

It is said that Mr. Larmoyeux in letters to H. J. Alerding, of Fort Wayne, bishop of the Fort Wayne diocese, charged Father Dhe with dishonesty, immorality, drunkenness and other actions ill becoming a Catholic priest and that his removal would please a larger part of the congregation.

The matter was taken under investigation by the bishop and Larmoyeux, it is claimed, was asked to substantiate the charges he had made. Not doing so, a written apology and retraction was demanded of him and when not forthcoming he was excommunicated and is prohibited from longer receiving the sacraments of the church until such an apology is made.

Bishop's Letter Is Read.

The letters of Bishop Alerding were read Sunday at the services by Father Dhe and created much astonishment among the members. Monday a letter signed by every member of the congregation except Larmoyeux was sent to the bishop at Fort Wayne. It endorses the actions and conduct of the priest and recommends his retention in Hartford City.

It is said that Father Dhe and Mr. Larmoyeux have clashed before and that the recent sensational developments are the outcome of a strife between pastor and parishioner that has existed for some time, first originating from a sermon preached by Father Dhe in which he warned his congregation against investing in "penny a share" oil companies, stating that such concerns were gold brick schemes and always thoroughly unreliable.

Sermon Displeased Him.

It happened so at that time that Mr. Larmoyeux was interested in the organization of an oil company and he took exceptions to the sermon preached by his pastor and went to his home and remonstrated, saying that it would injure his business and asking that Father Dhe retract his statement or make some explanation to the congregation. This Father Dhe refused to do and when Larmoyeux became insolent, it is said, Father Dhe ordered him to leave his house.

This was the beginning of the end. At about the same time Larmoyeux had a business transaction with the priest in which he purchased a house, with the understanding, it is said, that it was to be moved to a lot owned by him, and replaced in as good repair as before moving.

Soon after a suit was filed in the circuit court against Father Dhe for breach of contract. Larmoyeux was the plaintiff. He claimed the Rev. Dhe had not carried out his contract in connection with the sale of the property and demanded judgment. It was a jury trial and Larmoyeux won his case, but because in making his argument to jury the plaintiff's attorney said, "that it was generally understood that all the members of the society of Jesuits are taught that a lie uttered for the good of the church is justifiable," the judge in the case has granted a new trial.

Nervous Prostration

Makes People Hopeless and Helpless—Wheeler.

There is a limit to human strength, brain and nerve force, and when we overstep the limit the result is nervous prostration.

The causes which are responsible for this disease are many; over-exertion, worry, dissipation, excesses and abuses of various kinds, which result in exhausting drains upon the nervous system. Both mind and body become worn out, and with palpitating heart the victim of nervous prostration is indeed in a sorry plight, and gradually drifts into confirmed despondency and invalidism.

In advising Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer as a speedy cure, it is not expected that the patient will accept the advice with zest, because the very nature of the disease makes him doubtful and hopeless. Fortunately the medicine is not dependent upon confidence in it, in fact nearly all cured report they had absolutely no confidence in any medicine.

This is unfortunate because undoubtedly many sufferers will either refuse or neglect to take Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer and be restored to health and usefulness and, as a result, will drift on through life hopelessly suffering and praying for the end. The two letters published below from Thomas Cashore, Napoleon, Mich., may be interesting:

"Jan. 20, 1895. I was troubled with nervous prostration. I do not believe any one had it worse and lived. Was laid up in bed for over a year and the doctors could not do me any good. Our druggists, Paine & Parker, urged me to use Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer and it was a marvel the way it lifted me out of bed and put me on my feet. I never saw or heard anything like it. I went back to my forge in my blacksmith shop as well as I ever was in my life, considering my age. I recommend Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer because I think it is a wonderful cure."

"Dec. 18, 1897. I had another attack of nervous prostration worse than before. All said I was beyond recovery this time sure. I told them no, that there was a medicine made in Albion, Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, that would pull me through and I knew it and it did. In just five days after I commenced taking Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer I was in my shop to work and well, thanks to your wonderful medicine." Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. J. W. Brandt Co., Albion, Mich.

OPPOSE IMMIGRATION BILL.

New York Congressmen Unite in a Minority Report.

Washington, April 25.—Representatives Bennett and Rupert, of New York, have united in a minority report against the immigration bill recently reported by the house committee on immigration.

Their opposition is, first, that the bill makes no proper provision for the execution of the contract labor law; second, that to increase the head tax from two to five dollars will not weed out the undesired immigrants from southern Italy, who come singly, but it will penalize the Germans, Danes, Swedes, Norwegians, Finns, Irish, Scotch and English, who usually come with large families.

This, the report declares, is discouraging the desirable immigrants. Besides, it says, if the steamship companies add the full head tax to the price of transportation every American returning from abroad will pay the head tax.

The report says there is no justification for the literary test.

Do Physics Make You Weak?

Most physics do. Salts, castor oil, and nearly all the patent tablets and pills sold as cathartics and laxatives have a dangerous effect upon the digestive organs. In time, strength is regained but not before great danger is done to the tissues of the bowels and intestines.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not like any other physic you can take, because instead of weakening the intestinal muscles, it gives them strength sufficient to voluntarily perform their functions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, unlike other remedies often taken for stomach disorders, does not create a habit which makes it necessary for the patient to continue its use. Physics that leave you weak, that cause you to perspire, and to feel nervous invariably do great harm.

You never experience any such unpleasant and dangerous sensations from taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a pleasantly palatable remedy which never causes griping and in all cases of constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, gas on stomach, and all other disorders arising from such ailments it quickly and permanently cures.

All druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at 50c and $1.00 a bottle.

Money back if it doesn't benefit you.

This is not only house-cleaning season, but yard-cleaning, alley-cleaning, general-cleaning season. Where considerations of the beautiful do not weigh greatly considerations of health should have weight. A filthy alley is not only an eye-sore but, what is worse, is disease-breeding.

In the week that has elapsed since the San Francisco disaster began there has been contributed for the relief of the stricken people something near three times what was given for relief of the people of Chicago after the great fire of 1871. Altogether, before the country finally quits making contributions for the coast sufferers the aggregate will be far and away the greatest sum ever gathered for a work of mercy.

Russian newspapers regard the shunting aside of Maxim Gorky in this country as wholly unwarranted, and lecture Americans that the fact the Russian novelist is gadding about with a woman not his wife is his private affair with which the public has no concern. Russian journalists will learn from time to time that there are a good many customs that pass readily over there that are not tolerated here. And the flaunting of a mistress in the face of the public is easily first among them.

The man with the gun has been doing good work in San Francisco during the past week, but not so much with his weapon as with his strong right and left arms, his cool head and intelligent initiative. Some of the well-meaning fellows with militia guns and citizen patrols with picked-up firearms have made life additionally precarious even where fire and earthquake shock brought death on every hand. No doubt a great many persons have been shot whose lives would have been spared had just a bit of reasonable inquiry or investigation been resorted to before taking snap-shots with a rifle.

There are within the boundaries of one block in New York City more persons whose income is at least $200,000 than there are in the entire United Kingdom of Great Britain. Throughout Great Britain, according to the recent return of the income tax assessment for 1905, there are but 19 persons who can boast of an income of one-fifth of a million dollars. It is not difficult to pick out from among prosperous New Yorkers a score with incomes of $500,000 each, while there are a few who manage to scrape along on twice that sum. Pittsburg lays claim to a goodly share of the country's millionaire's, but New York is the real capital of universal millionairedom. Last year alone, from the estates of those merchant princes who passed into the Great Beyond, there was paid into the New York state treasury in inheritance taxes $5,428,052, against $4,627,051 in the preceding year. The richest man of his day is acknowledged to be John D. Rockefeller, whose wealth is placed at one billion dollars. The next richest man is Albert Belt, who has accumulated $600,000,000 in the South African Diamond fields. Pittsburg can lay claim to the third richest man—Andrew Carnegie, who, in spite of his efforts to get rid of his millions, is accredited with being the possessor of $250,000,000. Col. John Jacob Astor is said to be almost as rich as Mr. Carnegie, and Robert Goelet closely follows. New Yorkers who are rated at $100,000,000 or over each are William K. Vanderbilt and William Rockefeller, the youngest brother of the oil king. Henry Phipps and H. C. Frick, of Pittsburg, follow with from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000. Marshall Field's fortune was estimated at $100,000,000. Among the seveney-five millionaires which New York lays claim to are Russell Sage, D. O. Mills, J. Pierpont Morgan, James J. Hill, George J. Gould, Henry M. Flagler, H. H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Mrs. Hetty Green, James Henry Smith, James B. Haggin, W. F. Havemeyer, Miss Helen Gould, Thomas F. Ryan, John W. Gates, Jacob H. Schiff, numerous members of the Vanderbilt family, Ogden Mills, James Stillman, Elbridge T. Gerry, Harry Payne Whitney, and William H. and J. Hobart Moore. The total wealth of the 100 richest men and women in the world is estimated at $6,740,000,000, with which they could purchase New York City outright, including the public parks and public institutions.

CHILDREN'S DRESSES.

Every mother who has a little tot to dress takes as keen an interest in juvenile modes as she does in fashions for herself.

All mothers like to feel that their children are well dressed, and to obtain that result an endless amount of patience, time and good taste are entailed.

To be well dressed is always to be appropriately clad. It isn't essential to have so many suits in number as it is to have them suitable for various occasions.

A child can never be unattractive in a freshly washed frock, no matter what its material, and all suits should be made with a view to frequent washing.

This year the eyelet embroidery, done entirely by hand, is engaging the attention of enterprising mothers, and the result, either on china silk, fine handkerchief linen or coarse weaves, is equally effective, says Modern Woman.

This is popularly a white year, and colorless frocks are always refreshing and dainty. They are the most economical, too, because they wash better than colored fabrics.

CITY BREVITIES.

G. K. Torrence has returned from a business trip to Tennessee.

Dr. Howard V. Blosser has purchased the brick residence at 309 West Main street which has been occupied by C. D. Tillo, through the Graham & Evans agency. The doctor will make some improvements in the house before he occupies it with his family. Mr. and Mrs. Tillo will remove to the corner of Wayne and Van Buren streets.

BOARD SUGGESTS INCREASED RATES

HIGHER WATER RATE NECESSARY FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Council Committee Will Meet Members for Discussion—The Proceedings.

A communication from the board of public works suggesting a slight increase in water rates temporarily in order to meet the expense of repairs and extensions was submitted to the city council last night and referred to the committee on waterworks which will confer with the board with a view of arriving at an equitable basis and report back to the council at its next meeting.

Along the same line a contract for a new pump and connections at the station to be established south of the city limits was submitted for the approval of the council members in the shape of an ordinance which went to a second reading and was referred to the committees on contracts and franchises and waterworks.

A Lively Tilt.

An effort to transfer $300 from the police pay roll account to be used in increasing the salary of the stenographer for the board of works from $45 to $70 a month and add to his duties the clerical work for the board of safety was threshed over again and lost on a ruling by Chairman Schwier that it was an appropriation ordinance and required a two-thirds majority to carry.

There were fourteen members present and five voted against the measure. While the matter was before the council there were a number of charges and counter charges made by the members.

The report of Dr. B. W. Rhamy of his analysis of the water in the new wells was received and his bill of $60 allowed. He pronounces the water better than that at Swinney park.

Five hundred dollars was appropriated to the public buildings account without controversy.

How to Keep Fur Rugs From Moths in Summer

HOW to keep fur rugs from moths during the spring and summer months is a problem which house-wives have to solve now. Some of them who have never been troubled with the insects declare that the best plan is to leave the furs on the floors throughout the year, being careful to clean them at least once a week, during the seasons when the doors and windows are constantly open, and millers are apt to get in and lay eggs in the hair. Other housekeepers who have been equally successful in preserving their rugs from attacks by moths say that they must be well cleaned by a furrier in the spring, glazed and freshened and then wrapped in tar paper and put away in a clean, practically airtight muslin bag, in a dry, cool closet and kept there, except for occasional poundings, until the following fall.

As to the success of these two methods a furrier says that both are good and should preserve them if followed.

"It's keeping them free from dust that counts," he says. If they are left on the floors, once a week I should put them on a line when there is a good stiff wind blowing and pound them with a rattan beater, leaving them for the rest of the day in the sun. Then I should comb the fur the way the grain runs with an ordinary rubber toothed comb, or one of steel, such as we professionals use. When it is free from knots it should look like new. If in beating or combing the hair should come out in chunks there will be no mistake but that moths are eating it, and the best plan is to get it out of the house and to a furrier's where it can be cleansed, freed from the eggs and insects, and put in condition again.

"If the other methods should be used, then besides cleaning and pounding the rugs, they should be sent to a regular fur establishment where all the spots can be cleansed and they will be glazed, combed, and made to look like new, so that when they are taken out in the fall they will be bright and fresh and look as if they had just been purchased. If they are to be kept at home instead of in cold storage, I should advise wrapping them in tar paper and putting them away in a muslin bag.

"Whenever they are dirty or spotted I believe they should be cleaned right away, and as it is almost impossible for the average housewife to do this successfully without getting the skin wet, which is bad for the rug, as it makes the back stiff, I should suggest having them sent out of the house to a cleansers.

"To the women who have dyed rugs, such as dog and goat skins, I should like to tell them that they have little cause to worry about moths, for in curing and dying them poisons are put in that makes them practically immune from attacks by these insects, but the contrary is true of the natural skins, such as polar bear, tiger, leopard, etc., for though the curing process they go through contains more preservatives than is put into that used on muffs and boas, etc., they are much more likely to attract these destructive insects than those that are dyed."

UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL

The establishment of a Savings Department as a branch of a National bank is becoming very popular. It was new to Fort Wayne, but here, as elsewhere else, the people have shown their appreciation of it, and why shouldn't they? The first thing people demand for their savings is SAFETY, and then some interest. Around our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT are thrown all the safeguards of the National Banking System and we allow 4 per cent. interest on money left four months. Money deposited before May 5 will draw interest from May 1. For the convenience of its patrons this department will be open Saturday evenings from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

SNEAK THIEVES OPERATING

Three Cases Reported to the Police this Morning.

Sneak thieves entered the rooms at the Annex hotel on West Main street yesterday and stole $2 from a trunk, along with a pin valued at $10. The place was ransacked and two men supposed to have done the job were seen leaving.

E. H. Irelan, of 705 Smith street, reported that his wife left 60 cents on a table in her kitchen and went out for a few minutes and that while she was gone a sneak thief got it.

A third complaint was made by a contractor who says that a water meter valued at $40 was stolen from a house in Lakeside.

Degree of Honor lodge, No. 23, will be entertained by the local manager of the Stott Power company, souvenir art publishers, tomorrow evening. The ladies will also have a photograph of the interior of the room, themselves included, on that occasion.

M. C. Ramsey, of Detroit, assistant superintendent of the American Still Alarm company, is in the city visiting friends for a few days.

Hower & Hower's grocery and Elzey's saloon at Decatur, were burglarized Monday night, thieves stealing money, tobacco and cigars at each place.

Mrs. Allie Poyneer, 66 years of age, died very suddenly Monday from heart disease at her home in Ligonier. She was the widow of Dr. Poyneer, who died several years ago in Fort Wayne.

Tom Railing, a Decatur baseball player, has been arrested on warrants from Danville, Ill., charging him with larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses.

A case rather out of the ordinary happened at Rochester on Saturday afternoon, according to a report in the Sentinel. While treating a friend for paralysis, Silas Millisor, who professed to be a conjurer, was stricken with the same disease, and died later at his home near Germany, Fulton county, on Monday.

Willard Ray narrowly escaped death Friday at Winona in a fall from the Winona Interurban Co.'s mammoth smokestack for the power house now in course of construction at that place. He was working 175 feet from the ground when he was thrown from his footing by the breaking of some wire fasteners. In the fall he caught hold of a small timber of the scaffolding and climbed back onto the stack by working his way along a slender timber hand over hand for a distance of several feet.

COTTON SPINNERS MEET.

Boston, Mass., April 25.—The fortieth annual meeting of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' association assembled today at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a two days' session. The presence of a commission representing prominent English spinners who have come to this country to investigate the growing of cotton and other questions connected with the raw material was one of the features of the convention. Among the important matters to be passed upon was a proposition favored by the board of government to change the name of the association to the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

P. H. Pierce, long a resident of Kendallville, died Tuesday afternoon at his home in that city.

SMITH GETS THE BLAME.

Young Man Raises Disturbance at Bernhardt Show.

Under the name of William Smith, a young man who raised a disturbance at the Bernhardt show last night was fined $5 and costs in the city court this morning, although he was not present. Smith is not the true name of the young fellow who succeeded in making a show of himself after the police, on account of his family connection, had given him a chance to go home and behave himself.

Joseph E. Wells, arrested at Huntington yesterday by Detective Rulo, was arraigned on the charge of failure to provide for his wife and his case was continued until tomorrow morning. He is a patent medicine salesman and says he has been writing to his wife daily and sending her money.

CONSUMPTION

A NEW CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS INTRODUCED IN FORT WAYNE.

I am introducing a new cure for consumption to the people of Fort Wayne. The treatment is now being used by a number of the most successful physicians in the health resorts of the west with the most astonishing results. Even in the bad climate of Chicago it has proven to be successful in over one-half cases treated, many of whom were in the advanced stages of the disease, the stage of chills, fever and sweats.

In order to quickly introduce the method of treatment in Fort Wayne, I will take a limited number of test cases without any cost whatever for treatment. The patients thus treated must be those who have been pronounced true consumption by other physicians. No case will be taken under these conditions, whose sputum does not show the tubercle bacillus—the microscopical examination to be made by any reputable bacteriologist in the city. The treatment is not heralded as a cure all, but it gives to the patient greater advantages than a change of climate with none of the disadvantages. Other physicians in Fort Wayne will no doubt inaugurate the same system of treatment, but my desire to be in the van, has induced me to make this proposition to the public. The fullest investigation is solicited with the assurance that I can substantiate the claims made for the treatment. The treatment is not only beneficial in tuberculosis, but in all cases where anaemia or an impoverished condition of the blood exists, and in functional nervous conditions.

When the general condition is run down and the nerves are crying for better blood, the treatment is ideal.

MADAM BERNHARDT IN "CAMILLE"

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt made her first and probably her last appearance in Fort Wayne last night when with her company she was seen in "Camille" at Princess rink before a large audience.

There is a tremendous satisfaction in seeing the greatest living exponent of an art. Many people flocked to hear Paderewski, not with any idea of understanding his program, but for the sake of gratifying their curiosity and to be able to say they had heard the world's most renowned pianist. So many people went to see Bernhardt last night, knowing that as they could not understand her language of speech that they would lose to some extent the force of the acting, but desirous of seeing Bernhardt the woman and Bernhardt the actress. It was an experience worth having. Indeed, incongruous as were the surroundings, inadequate for its purposes as was the stage and inferior to the degree of cheapness as were both scenery and furnishings, it is quite possible that the acting of Mme. Bernhardt and her polished players was the better appreciated for what was lacking in surroundings. Had it not been for familiar faces in the audience and the usual program of popular airs by the orchestra, one might have believed himself in a strange country. The foreign language spoken, as even the constant French student never hears it here, was enough in itself to transport one's imagination to another scene. But the acting was the power on that stage last night. There were many moments when the beholder lost entire sight of the drama itself, and found himself witnessing a bit of real life; found himself moved to sympathy by the anguish of Marguerite and the despair of Armand. And to nine-tenths of the audience it was only through the acting that the play was understood, familiar as the story is. Mme. Bernhardt spoke nearly all of the time in a low tone and so rapidly that her words were not always distinguishable. Had she spoken English as quickly she would have been difficult to understand, and naturally the French made the lines less easy to comprehend.

After all, it was a wonderful piece of art, all of it. The naturalness of the players, whether laughing and gossiping over their dinner, or while showing the ready sympathy, the generous impulse and the quick demonstration of affection so characteristic of Marguerite Gautier's friends, was realistic, not merely assumed. One felt like asserting positively that Marguerite was really ill, really weak, genuinely suffering, with such consummate art did Mme. Bernhardt portray those emotions. Surely here was art, when the beholder forgot that it was the theater.

Mme. Bernhardt showed us little joy in the role and from the first makes Dumas' heroine an emotional, high-strung, nervous woman with little that suggests the abandon of youth. Not so with the others of the company. There was plenty of youth, vitality and abandon with them. Mme. Perrot as Prudence, Mme. Boulanger as Nanine, Mlle. Cerda as Olympe, Mlle. Seylor as Nichette, M. DeNeuhourg as Armand Duval and M. Bary as Gaston gave such examples of finished acting as made an indelible impression on the minds of the audience, an impression of having witnessed a beautiful thing.

Also, Mme. Bernhardt wore wonderful gowns, beautiful in material, perfect in taste, and un-American in fit. Imagine a waist line on a well-groomed American woman of society such as Bernhardt shows us. But it certainly seems fitting to the great tragedienne, this portrayer of human emotion, whose laugh is like a silver bell and whose every action is grace. If she hadn't appeared after the death scene the great actress would have left me wondering if she hadn't really died. It is more realistic to not be resurrected to the audience the same evening. BAGSBY.

"OUR NEW MINISTER."

Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer's newest production, "Our New Minister," direct from its record breaking seven months New York run, will be seen at the Majestic theater tonight. This is one of the important events of the season, and should not be overlooked by those enjoying happy laughter and a play that is full of absorbing interest from first to last. In a play that has enjoyed the remarkable success that has favored "Our New Minister," there are so many elements of strength and even of genius contributing to the general result, that it would be a difficult problem to assign the credit to any one person. But in "Our New Minister" the conjunction of the names of Denman Thompson and Geo. W. Ryer, authors of "The Old Homestead," on the one hand, and the superb original cast on the other, furnishes a simple key. John Terris, Joseph Conyers, John Barker, Calvin Dix, Fred Clarke, John F. Webber, M. H. Harriman, J. H. Lorenzen, W. J. Brady, Gertrude Perry, Phila May and Alice Washburn make up the greatest cast ever seen in rural drama.

Perfumed Fans the Latest Fad Among Women

MORE HAND WORK

Sticks Often Richly Inlaid or Carved--Others of Sandal Wood.

PERFUMED fans are to be a summer fad among girls who are on the lookout for novelty, so that any one who has a favorite perfume can have it incorporated most delightfully in the folds of this witching feminine weapon. Besides this sandal wood is to be popular again, the sticks of many of the fans being made from this spicy oriental wood.

Instead of there being one size fan popular this summer, quite the reverse is true, for never did Fashion favor such a wide variety in fan styles as this year. There are still the very tiny fans to be seen, such as were used exclusively a year ago, but there are also those of medium size as well as some huge affairs which might truthfully be called picture fans so much do they resemble the big hats of the picture variety.

Variations from the accepted styles are shown in those of shell shape, covered with lace as feathery and delicate as sea moss. Then there is a novelty in the form of a brilliant peacock whose tail spreads out in a fan-shaped glitter of irridescent green and blue and gold spangles. There are regal designs of duchess or point lace which still remain favorites with those who are able to afford them, and, again, there are still others that are exquisitely hand-painted and seem quite too beautiful and rare for any other service than a lazy existence beneath the glass frame of a museum case.

Fan sticks and frames are of sandal wood, mother of pearl, tortoise shell and ivory, the intrinsic value of the material in every case multiplied by the exquisite carving and inlaying used as decorations. Ivory and tortoise shell are seen with intricate gold inlays which are rarely beautiful.

Moderate priced fans of French designs show painted mousseline bodies to represent landscapes, sylvan scenes or couplets from the days of the court of Louis XVI., with gold and silver spangles and opalescent sequins as a further decoration. Distinctly Pompadour designs in these gauze fans fit in with the very general craze for Pompadour styles and are charming adjuncts to the toilet when the muff is unseasonable and the parasol untimely.

How Young Housewives Can Manage Without a Servant

Have Clothes Rough Dried at Laundry, Ironed Home--Prepare for Dinner at Night--Have Early Breakfast to Avoid Rush.

"I AM going to be married soon," said a clear eyed, manly young fellow the other day, "but my fiancee is a school teacher. She doesn't know much about housework, and I think perhaps it would be selfish of me to want her to do it, just because I would like housekeeping. I have engaged a cosey suite of rooms, but we can take our meals out if she prefers."

Young man, if your bride to be is the kind of girl that I am sure she is, she will like housekeeping. Half the energy and thought she has put into teaching, the adaptation of her trained intelligence to this new field, which is really a most attractive one, will soon make her mistress of home and doubly mistress of your heart.

Many an old housekeeper with a large establishment and more servants than there are members of the family now on her hands, will tell you truthfully that the happiest and most care free days of her married life were those first ones in the newly furnished, modest house, where she did her own work, monarch of all she surveyed, in that dearest little kingdom on earth, home.

In these days of unnumbered labor saving appliances and conveniences, housekeeping for two, especially in an up to date apartment, is nothing but play, provided always, that the heart is in the work and brains are utilized. System there must be and that with a big S, else the household wheels will interlock and jars follow. Yet even system must be flexible enough to bend without breaking when necessary.

Some Old Axioms.

Perhaps these homely, old fashioned axioms may be of help to the new housewife even as they have been to the old:

"A handful of common sense is worth a bushel of learning."

"A man can never thrive who has a wasteful wife."

"'Drive your work; not let it drive you."

"Let the head save your heels."

"A stitch in time saves nine."

"Smile."

A servant for two adults in a small apartment is an unnecessary piece of furniture and only in the way. It is extremely easy now to get outside help by the day or hour. With a half day one week and a whole day the next, a good strong woman can give an apartment a thorough sweeping and dusting, wash windows, give bathroom, kitchen, silver, brasses and coppers a good cleaning, and do the fine ironing if desired. Then, on occasions, this same woman can come by the hour at a charge of fifteen or twenty cents per hour and cook the dinner or wait on table for company.

A rapidly increasing number of housewives now send the bulk of the wash to the public laundry, having the plain clothes, like table cloths, sheets, pillow-cases, towels, etc., calendered and the rest sent back starched and rough dry, ready for the ironing. A standard price for this is thirty-five or forty cents per dozen. This takes all the steam, extra heat and trouble about drying in crowded quarters out of the house and off the housewife's mind.

The smaller pieces, such as handkerchiefs, napkins, fine lingerie and the flannels are easily washed at home with stationary tubs and hot and cold water at hand. This reduces the cost of service from the sixteen or eighteen dollars a month that you would pay a servant to eight or ten at the most. And the wages are the smallest part of the saving. Extra fire, extra lights, extra food, waste and breakage galore are the more serious items to be considered.

The gas stove is a tremendous saving of time and labor, also expense, when well managed. With a gas stove you can have a good breakfast ready in half an hour. In arranging the schedule of daily work for a small family, let me give you the actual itemized routine work in a family of two, where the mistress finds herself at liberty, every morning, save Saturday, by 10 o'clock, to go to market, sew, read or write. Where the afternoon finds her ready to receive callers or make calls, the dinner is served promptly and daintily at half-past six, with a welcome for any guest willing to take "pot luck," and the evenigs free and clear after eight.

Working Costume Essential.

But right here let me emphasize the necessity of a suitable working costume. A kimono or negligee of any sort, with sleeves sweeping into the butter, the dish water or the gas flame of the range, is an offence against all the canons of good taste. A woman should look as pretty and dainty in the morning as at any other time; but the dress must be suited to the occasion. A print gown of becoming color, made skirt and waist together, like a nurse's costume, is easy to get into, easy to work in and easy to launder. The sleeves may be elbow length, the neck V shaped or round, with a little white edge. A mob or Dutch cap, to keep the hair from fluff or dust, is also to be commended, though it need not be put on until after breakfast. Plenty of aprons, white and gingham, with a large artist's apron to slip on over the afternoon gown when getting dinner, should also be provided.

The rising hour depends upon the time the man of the house has to go to business. Let it be early enough, so that breakfast need not be hurried. Having dressed, throw open all the windows in the front of the house and put the beds airing. Not simply throwing the covers back, but taking them off and spreading out on chairs near the windows, where every inch of surface can get the benefit of the fresh air. As a matter of proper civic pride, abstain from hanging the bedding from the front windows. This may be good for the bedding, but it spoils the look of the street and offends your opposite neighbor's sensibilities.

Now, starting to the kitchen, take along with you the scrap basket, lamp or whatever needs carrying out for attention. It is a great saving of steps to notice what needs to go your way and take it along without a special journey for it later. The breakfast should be rather hearty for a man going to business. A Continental breakfast is all right for a dilettante or stay at home, but is not sufficient for a man doing hard work, physical or mental. Let there be fruit, a cereal—one already prepared or one that can be cooked at night in the double boiler while getting dinner, then be reheated in the morning.

There should be also some form of warm bread or toast, a bit of bacon, eggs, chops, a mince or fish balls, something easily and quickly prepared. Fish balls can be made ready over night and hash chopped. If you elect to bake gems or biscuit for breakfast light your oven the first thing, then fill the teakettle and put over, together with the cereal that is to be reheated. By the time the oven is hot you can have the biscuit ready to go in and by the time they are baked the table set, meat or fish cooked and coffee ground and ready in the pot to have the boiling water poured on, when you sit down to discuss your fruit and cereal. If the baker furnishes you with fresh rolls and you wish to heat them, simply leave as many in the bag in which they come as you wish to use for breakfast, twist up the mouth of the bag tightly and put in the oven for ten minutes to steam and heat through.

Emma Paddock Telford.

Plaid or Checked Goods Succeeds Plain Clothes

There are few plain materials this season. All have a small plaid, check or figure. The majority of mohairs have an almost indiscernible check and there are numbers of most attractive designs in large plaids, the color, however, all on the same tone. Taffeta gowns are of the changeable silk or else have some vague figure or check, and even voiles are no longer so fashionable plain.

Both coat and skirt costumes and afternoon gowns are made up this year in the figured textures. No matter what the material of the street suit—whether cloth or serge—a solid color is no longer as fashionable. Black and white check with a scarcely visible line of light blue, red or green running through is attractive, as is this same design in gray and tan. So closely do the tans and grays verge into one another that choice is frequently a difficult task. Gray is always a good spring shade, while there are many to whom tan is more becoming, and tan as well as all shades of brown and ecru is equally popular. All shades of blue are as popular as was predicted earlier in the year. Rajah is one of the few plain materials that is fashionable, and even this has a sort of rib stripe. There is nothing conspicuous in the checks and plaids this year; quite the reverse in fact, the tiny figures only giving a little relief after the solid shades that have been worn now for so long a time.

Smart blue jackets are worn almost entirely; the severe tailor coats are all being cut off some inches and the exaggerated long coat reaching to the hem of the skirt has disappeared altogether. Although no longer simple, the jackets this spring are undeniably attractive. A favorite model is a jacket half Eton and half bolero, this fastened down the front either across or over a little embroidered vest, but has short or three-quarter sleeves and the semi-fitted back falls to the top of a wide silk belt or broadcloth girdle. The jacket may be braided or strapped with the material itself and is frequently bordered all around with a ruching or narrow ruffle of lace edged with embroidery. A few jackets are trimmed with deep capes and lace pelerines, but this style could not be called generally popular. The skirts are not much trimmed or plaited any more. A wide circular skirt with one or two bias folds laid on above the hem is a favorite model. A suit on the lines here so generally described might be made equally as well in cloth, silk, rajah, voile or panama cloth.

Every duty, even the least duty, involves the whole principle of obedience. And little duties make the will dutiful—that is, supple and prompt to obey. Little obediences lead into great. The daily round of duty is full of probation and of discipline; it trains the will, heart and conscience. —Woman's Life.

BLOOD POISON
CURE YOURSELF AT HOME

Contagious Blood Poison begins in the most insignificant way, and with less evidence of what is to follow, than any other disease. The first symptom is usually a little sore or blister, whose appearance does not indicate that deeper down, in the blood, a treacherous and deadly poison has found its way to corrupt and vitiate the entire circulation, and later to disease the body with the most loathsome and hateful symptoms. Unless one has experienced or witnessed the terrible results of Contagious Blood Poison, no idea of its effects can be formed.

When the blood has become fully inoculated with the virus, the mouth and throat ulcerate; glands in the neck and groin swell, and sometimes burst, forming ulcers; the hair comes out; copper colored spots appear on the body; and where the disease is allowed to remain in the system it penetrates deeper and deeper, until it affects the bones, causing them to decay, and makes a complete physical wreck of its unfortunate victim.

Not only the first one who contracts the disease must suffer, but it is transmitted through the blood from generation to generation, and innocent lives are blighted and diseased by this monster poison. No other disease is so highly contagious as blood poison; in the most trivial manner it may be contracted by innocent persons. Many have been inoculated with the virus, and suffered the disastrous and destructive effects of the poison, by a friendly handshake, or by using the same tableware or toilet articles, or handling the clothing of an infected person.

Strong mineral medicines like mercury and potash are often given to cure Contagious Blood Poison, but years of failure have proven that such treatment cannot cure the trouble. These medicines can only mask or shut the disease up in the system for awhile; as soon as they are left off the symptoms return in all their hideousness, and the sufferer finds he has wasted valuable time, and, in addition, ruined his health with these harmful drugs.

I was treated for two years by blood specialists, who treated me with mercury for Blood Poison, with no good results, so I gave them up and started to use S. S. S. When I commenced its use I was covered with sores and eruptions, and was very weak and run-down. Today, I am myself again, and my skin is as clear as a baby's. I know it made a positive cure for me of Blood Poison in the very worst form, and I am making it my business to have my friends use it as I did, and already two of them are having wonderful results in the way of a cure.

I am, today, a living testimonial to the value of S. S. S. in cases of advanced Blood Poison.

HARRY BARRETT,
424 West North Avenue. Chicago, Ill.

S. S. S. is the antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the only remedy that is able to get at the root of the disease and force out every particle of the poison, so that there are never any signs of its return. It can be used and a perfect cure of the disease made in the privacy of your own home. Sufferers from this disease can be their own doctors, and the forty years of cures made by this remedy assures them that the treatment is in every respect the proper one, and that its use, together with any suggestions as to local treatment, which will be furnished by our physicians free of charge, will cure the trouble permanently and privately. S. S. S. is made entirely of purifying, healing roots, herbs and barks. We offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. goes down to the very root of the trouble, and by driving out the last trace of the poison, and making the blood pure and strong, cures the disease thoroughly and with certainty. S. S. S. will also remove the effects of any mineral treatment that may have been previously used.

CONTAINS NO MINERAL

Our "Home Treatment" book on this disease is a complete guide for treating the trouble. It contains instructions for the different stages of the disease, and also advice about the local treatment that will be the most helpful in effecting a cure. This book, together with any special medical advice desired, will be sent free by our physicians, to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

CLUBS ARE READY FOR FIRST GAMES

EVERYBODY IN SHAPE FOR OPENING BUT BAY CITY.

Interstate Conditions Grow Better as Time for Playing Ball Draws Near.

One week from tomorrow the opening games of the Interstate league will be played at Fort Wayne, Marion, Muncie and Anderson and as the time for the first games draws near the conditions in the organization assume better shape than might have been anticipated from the discouragements and obstacles encountered since the work on the circuit was begun.

All of the cities are in line except Bay city and while Con Struthers is apparently making no headway, according to newspaper accounts, private advices say that things are working out nicely for him and that he will have a new park and a good team.

The new grounds at Saginaw are ready. Citizens of Flint have just consented to take a hand. Lima will play its first game Saturday, and the other towns are simply waiting for the time to arrive. Delay in voting on the schedule has been a source of some annoyance, but there is little difference between the two submitted and this will not cut much figure.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Pitcher Hunt, with Evansville for a time last season and recently released by Manager Ryan, has been signed by Fort Wayne and a ticket sent him.

Manager Fred Paige, of Muncie, has arranged to play twilight games during the season in order to accommodate the factory employes who can not get away early in the afternoon.

"Dusty" Coons, old time Anderson ball player, has been signed by Manager Paige, of the Muncie Interstate team. "Dusty" will play first base, and if his arm will permit will pitch occasionally. "Dusty" is the boy whom "Pap" Anson characterized as a baseball pitcher with a $10,000 arm and a 5 cent head.

The Lima park is about completed and the first exhibition game will be played there Saturday afternoon with the N. C. R. team of Dayton.

Grand Rapids Press: The business men of Flint, headed by Mayor McKinley, have raised the money to build a new base ball park in a good location in Flint for Will Leach and Joe Ganzel, the Grand Rapids men, who are putting in an Interstate association team in the town. The traction company there offered to build one on the line of their cars, but it was not located near enough to the city, and the one the business men will give to secure good base ball for the town is well located and is where both Sunday and week day games can be played. Joe Ganzel has shown his ability as a manager in the past and promises to give the fans of Flint a winner this season. He has taken the cream of state talent in forming his team.

Con Struthers went to Owosso Saturday and offered the city a franchise in the Interstate Base Ball association in place of Bay City. He was immediately turned down, as any attempt to play Sunday ball here would cause the arrest and prosecution of everyone connected with the game. Organized ball cannot be played anywhere in the county on Sunday. Public opinion is overwhelmingly against it.

The following is clipped from the Saginaw Courier-Herald and will probably be a surprise to Mr. Tobeau if it reaches him: George Tobeau, of Cleveland and Louisville fame, has signed to manage the Anderson team. This is an addition which will strengthen the Interstate with the rooters.

The Terre Haute club has released Catcher Charles Andrews, of Wheeling. Jimmy Ryan in Evansville has released Kimmerling, the big first baseman of whom much was expected. Red Long, a pitcher, is playing the bag temporarily.

Harry Ostdick is suffering from an injured leg that will keep him out of the game at Rochester for some time.

* * *

Tom Railing was arrested at Decatur yesterday and taken to Danville, Ill., to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He is said to have secured loans on the representation that he was a member of the Danville team and would repay them the first pay day. He denies the charge. Railing was signed by Milwaukee, but refused to report and was held on the list of the club all of last season.

HAD BEEN TEACHER, SOLDIER, MERCHANT

ADELBERT AEHNELT DIES AT AGE OF 70 YEARS.

William McGoogan, Pioneer Resident of Lafayette Township, Is No More—Other Deaths.

Adelbert Aehnelt, who in his long and active career had followed the avocations of soldier, teacher and merchant, died at 7:15 o'clock this morning at his home 1536 St. Mary's avenue, at the age of 70 years and 15 days. Mr. Aehnelt had been for many years a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, and during the last four months of his life was confined to his bed. Death was immediately due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Aehnelt was born in Germany, attended a military school in Berlin for three years and then served ten years as a soldier in the German army, rising to the rank of lieutenant. He came to America in 1865, locating at first in New York City, but a few years later removed to Little Rock, Ark., to become teacher in a school there. More than twenty years ago he came to Allen county as a teacher in Bethlehem Lutheran school on the Leesburg road in Washington township. Later he was for six years overseer at Concordia college, and fourteen years ago opened a grocery business on East Washington street. Some years ago the establishment was removed to St. Mary's avenue, where it has since been conducted by Mr. Aehnelt and his family.

He is survived by the widow and five children: Mrs. William Haserodt, of Elyria, O., Mrs. Frank Stone of Fort Wayne; the Misses Ursula and Paula and Walter Aehnelt, at home. There is one grandchild, and another daughter died some years ago in North Carolina.

Funeral services Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence and at 2:15 from Trinity Lutheran church. The interment will be at Concordia. Pall-bearers chosen are from the teaching staff of the Lutheran schools of the city, and include Prof. Strieder and Prof. Gerberding, of St. Paul's; Prof. Lindeman, Prof. Hormel and Prof. Kampe, of Emanuel's, and Prof. Charle, of Trinity school.

M'GOOGAN.

William McGoogan, a widely known citizen of Lafayette township, died Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home at the advanced age of eighty-three years.

Mr. McGoogan was born at Cadiz, Harrison county, Ohio, and removed to Allen county in 1863, spending the remaining years of his life continuously upon the section where he originally located. Mr. McGoogan devoted his entire life to agricultural pursuits, and was a highly esteemed citizen. Surviving relatives include the widow and three children—Dr. George B. McGoogan, deputy revenue collector in this city; Mrs. Elizabeth Martz and Mrs. John Crites, of Uniondale, Wells county.

Funeral services Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence and later from the Church of God at Zanesville. Interment at Zanesville cemetery.

KOEHLINGER.

Mrs. Katherine Koehlinger, widow of the late Philip Koehlinger, died Tuesday night at her home, 1307 Wabash avenue, at the age of sixty-three years, ten months and twenty-four days. Mrs. Koehlinger had been ill but one week, and her death, due to heart trouble, was entirely unexpected.

The deceased was born in Germany, but came to America in 1863, and was married November 5, 1864, to Mr. Koehlinger, whose death occurred two years ago. She was a member of Concordia congregation, coming to this organization from the Zschoche congregation, and was a devoted Christian woman who leaves many friends.

Surviving relatives include two children—Mrs. Henry Brueck, of Adams township, and Philip Koehlinger, jr. There are also three brothers and two sisters—Henry Schmidt, of Wisconsin; George Schmidt, of Nora Springs, Iowa; Casper Schmidt, of Eden Valley, Minn.; Mrs. Peter Teelinden, Campbellsport, Wis., and Mrs. J. Braasman, residing in Wisconsin. Other relatives include one grandchild and three stepchildren—George H. Hochlinger and Mrs. Adolph Lepper, of Adams township, and Mrs. Jacob Hankel, of Car Creek.

Funeral services Sunday afternoon.

MEADS.

Miss Lillie Meads, 53 years of age, died Tuesday afternoon at her home on Lore street. Miss Meads had been an invalid for a number of years and death was due to a complication of diseases.

Women Who Are Neat

To the average girl tidiness seems a mere matter of keeping herself looking neat and her room picked up. Therefore it doesn't seem such an awful thing if, dressing in a hurry, she fails to put away the things that she has taken off, and leaves the place looking as if a baby cyclone had been at work. Tidiness to a young business woman may convey only a sense of a desk where all the papers and pens are where they should be, or where the "stock" is neatly arranged. Being inexperienced in the influence of system, they do not know that tidiness of habit reaches further, affecting the character and mind, making one worth more in every way.

This is only because all our habits, no matter what kind they may be, influence us positively for strength or weakness—in other words, for good or ill—and a girl who cultivates tidiness in her dressing and room, or desk, is at the same time developing herself mentally. Tidiness of manner seems to lead directly to exactness of mind, and that in every one is desirable, more especially in a woman of business.

There is an old saying that it is impossible for a woman to repeat a thing correctly. Thackeray is responsible for the sentiment, I believe, but at all events there is an immense amount of truth in the observation. Exactness in work and statement are two of the essentials for success in business of any kind, and a woman who has trained herself to be neat has taken a long step to this most necessary goal.

A girl who is slovenly about her dress is apt to be slovenly about her work, whatever sort it may be, and it is equally true that if she is neat about her dress she will be the same in her business. Her desk or "stock" case will be well arranged and not an offense to the eye, and when given an order or a message she will be able to do or repeat it correctly.

Neatness does not lead to brilliancy, and no girl can hope to develop a clever mind simply by having her belt triply fixed and her collar well fastened, but it will help greatly toward that desirable quality, reliability, because, "having the habit," it will appear in words as in deeds.

Tidiness, be it understood, is by no means to be confounded with "fixing up." As a matter of fact a business girl with an exaggerated pompadour, for instance, her head further embellished by a bow rampant, is far less apt to be neat than one who dresses simply, wearing it pompadour, certainly, if she wishes, but not so as to resemble a bolster plied aloft with loose ends hanging. This type of girl, who dresses for the office as she would to go out on Sunday afternoon, has no natural neatness of mind, and if she has of body it is dominated by vanity. She may be decorative of a kind, and therefore desirable in some shops or offices, but they are not apt to be those wherein it is well that she should be, and her usefulness is likely to be shortlived.

The sort of neatness worth spending much effort to achieve when one is not born with it is that which makes a girl attractive to see because she is so trig, and "well put together," as the tailors put it. It does not mean making a frump of herself, or being "plain"; to the contrary, her hands are a pleasure to see because the nails are well kept, her head is attractive because it is well groomed, and her dress has an "air" because it is really well put on, and not "thrown" on.

One of the type that is truly neat, either naturally or through effort, is a better business woman, will command higher wages because her work is systematic, and well, if not brilliantly, done. Or, if she is not a business woman, the home she makes will be sweeter, more serene and happier because of the restful tidiness that prevails, and she herself will be a reflection of it, bringing happiness to herself and to others.

PROVIDES QUESTION BOX.

Woman's Club League Anxious to Have Suggestions.

A question box has been placed at the southwest corner of Calhoun and Berry streets by the Civic Improvement department of the Woman's Club league. Anyone who is interested in the opportunity or privilage of giving his or her idea of what will make Fort Wayne a beautiful city, and also to register a grievance against existing evils, may place a communication in the box. The answers will be tabulated and published after having been read at the regular meeting of the Woman's Club league Saturday afternoon, May 5, which is in charge of the Civic Improvement department.

Friends here have received a telegram from Will H. Schulze, who formerly lived in this city, and now resides with his family at Half Moon Bay, about twenty miles south of San Francisco, saying that they are all safe, but had quite an experience.

GETTING STEEL INTO POSITION

RAPID PROGRESS BEING MADE ON POWER PLANT.

Big Institution on Spy Run Avenue Beginning to Assume Vast Proportions.

Within the past few days workmen engaged in construction of the traction company's new power station on Spy Run avenue have begun to swing the massive steel sections of the framework into position, and rapid progress is now being made.

The great building is now beginning to assume something of the proportions of the completed work, though many months of labor yet remain to be done before the machinery can be started. The work up to this point has been largely upon foundations which does not make a showing proportionate to the labor involved. From this time forward, however, the progress will be more visible to the casual observer who is unacquainted with the stupendous character of the work which has been done upon the substructure. Bricklayers have also begun their work.

Practically all the machinery for the big plant is ready for installation, and it will be placed in position as the building progresses. The company is making an effort to supply auxiliary power to the Auburn and Garrett line which desires to get its cars into Fort Wayne within the next few weeks.

CANCER

The Knife, X-Rays, Home Cures, Black Salve and Other So-Called Cures Only Lure Cancer Sufferers to Their Doom.

When we reflect that cancer annually numbers almost as many victims as consumption, and that more than one-twelfth of the deaths which occur every year are due to that dread disease, we do not wonder at the credulous enthusiasm with which the hasty reports of the value of the X-Ray treatments were received by countless unhappy patients and their sympathizing friends. We are amazed, however, that thinking physicians should allow themselves to be deceived into thinking that a degenerative process, seated deeply in the glands, could be arrested by X-Rays. Of course it may lessen the pain and consequently inspire the sufferer with new hope for the time being. In all cases it is not only valueless but positively injurious, as it arouses a hope which can never be realized and which in a few weeks is rudely dispelled, leaving the patient dispirited and less able to withstand a rational treatment (that is, a known cure) than at first. How many more millions must yet die as a consequence of medical ignorance? Who is responsible for these deaths?

THE MOST DANGEROUS MAN OF THEM ALL.

Don't be misled by these pestilent parasites styling themselves specialists, claiming to be doctors, but entirely without medical education or facilities, who run dens of fraud and ply their confidence game by luring advertisements in the public prints, which give rosy representations of their ability to cure cancer by home treatment, without seeing the victim, are only money changers who are preying upon the unsuspecting cancer sufferer with their death dealing cures, which claims you sorrowfully realize when it is too late. Most applicants for treatment at Dr. Zimmerman's have been deceived by the false promises of these sharks. Remember the above and you will save money, prevent long suffering and death. Obtain the treatment you desire and a CERTAIN CURE.

ONLY ONE WAY.

A Speedy and Permanent Cure of Cancer

can be successfully accomplished only with my scientific treatments specially prepared to meet the requirements of each individual case, and thirty years' practical experience with the very best scientific equipment enables me to proceed intelligently and guarantee satisfactory results in all cases that come under my care.

No man or woman can afford to experiment with unknown methods and worthless, so-called cancer cures, which aside from the harm they do result only in disappointment and the loss of time and money. Some of these methods may be successful and sometimes temporary relief is obtained by some of the remedies, but when one knows that a man has devoted a lifetime to the study of a specialty and found out all there is to know, it seems folly to risk an uncertainty in the face of a certainty.

WHY RISK LIFE

in the hands of the plaster, black salve, X-Ray and knife doctors? when you can be cured by Dr. Zimmerman's harmless method in sixty minutes. A treatment you can get nowhere else.

ONLY ONE TREATMENT REQUIRED, which gives safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, mouth, breast, stomach, womb and rectum, tumors, ugly ulcers, terrible skin diseases, warts and moles, are all successfully treated.

THE ONLY SCIENTIFIC CURE.

No other treatment has given such perfect satisfaction, or is so reliable in the cure of cancer as Dr. Zimmerman's. He is known as the master cancer specialist—the secret of his success and his right to this title is because HE CURES CANCER EVERY TIME.

DR. ZIMMERMAN HAS CURED 3,132 cancers in his thirty years' special practice. What he has done for thousands of others he will do for you.

"I AM COMPLETELY CURED,"

is the unanimous testimony of every person who has taken the Dr. Zimmerman treatment for cancer.

HOW TO DECIDE WHEN IN DOUBT of a doctor's ability to cure cancer: Demand of him the names and address of cases which he has cured. If any; don't let him evade your demands by saying he has cured many, and appear insulted, for if he does you are touching a tender point, indicating that he cannot furnish any names; but insist upon the test and if he does not furnish such references don't trust him, for it is only justice to you that you may investigate the merits of his cure yourself. Then demand the same of Dr. Zimmerman and he will furnish ten times as many cancer patients cured as any doctor you may apply to, or he will not expect your patronage. Now, write or call on all these cases and see on which sides the evidence preponderates, and then act as you think best. This is fair and honest and any specialist or physician who will not let a cancer patient fairly examine his work ought not to be trusted. BUT NEVER TAKE the word of anyone unless substantiated by facts.

PEOPLE OF FRISCO HURT IN FEELINGS

ACTION BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS RESENTED.

Appointment of Red Cross Man to Direct Relief Work Regarded as an Imputation.

San Francisco, Cal., April 25.—The loyal San Franciscans who have toiled and suffered for seven days in the face of the appalling catastrophe which has befallen this city were greatly stirred and deeply moved yesterday when it was announced that President Roosevelt had directed that Dr. Edward Devine, of the National Red Cross, be given the management of relief measures and the distribution of the great funds so generously appropriated by congress.

If the president had stopped here the situation might not have been rendered so embarrassing, but the chief executive of the nation further recommended to the people of the United States that their contributions of food and supplies and money be diverted into the same hands.

Creates Consternation.

This apparent reflection upon the integrity of the citizens who have been conducting this work created consternarion, but some consolation was derived by the reflection that the action of the president was the result of misinformation. This was agreed to at a conference at Fort Mason, at which Generals Greely and Funston, Mayor Schmitz, Governor Pardee, Dr. Devine and some others were present. It was also agreed that Dr. Devine himself should prepare a telegram to the president informing him of the splendid work already done.

Another thing that goaded the hard-working citizens was the suggestion made in the letter from President Roosevelt to Secretary of War Taft that reports had reached him that less charity was being shown the Chinese who dwelt here than the whites and directing that if this be true the situation should be remedied at once. If the people of San Francisco are not in love with the Chinese it was felt that the name they have earned in the past for charity and open heartedness should have saved them from any reflection that they would have permitted any human being—white, black or yellow—within their reach to suffer.

Message Sent President.

Mature reflections, however, brought the conviction that the truth had not reached the president and a special message was sent him signed by the constituted authorities recounting the exact facts. The message was as follows:

President Roosevelt, White House, Washington: All reports that the people or the officials or the relief committees of San Francisco are making any distinction in relieving, succoring or protecting the Chinese or any other people differing in race or color are totally false and entirely unfounded. The committees and even the homeless sufferers themselves are treating the Chinese and all other fellow unfortunates with the consideration worthy of our civilization and of our country. The people of San Francisco are striving with all their heart to relieve their destitute, care for the sick, protect their helpless and uplift their stricken irrespective of race, creed or color, in accordance with the dictates of humanity in a manner worthy of Americans and in the common brotherhood of man. Please give press.

OLD-TIME BARN-RAISING.

Pleasant Event at Farm of Fred Schaefer, in Milan Township.

A merry crowd of fully seventy-five people participated in an old-time barn-raising at the farm home of Fred Schaefer, in Milan township, ten miles northeast of Fort Wayne, Monday, and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed from first to last. Mr. Schaefer had invited his neighbors to spend the day in the work and to later enjoy his hospitality, and the response was enthusiastic. Work upon the barn-raising began at 10 o'clock, and by 4 the frame of the structure, 40x60 feet in size, was in position without mishap. An elaborate dinner was served to the big crowd, and after the completion of the "raising" games were enjoyed until the supper hour, when another feast awaited the visitors.

COMMUNICATION FROM BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

To the Common Council:

On account of the extensive improvements we are making to the water works system of our City that department will be to quite a heavy expense.

It may therefore be necessary to slightly increase the water rates temporarily, but before taking any action we would ask the President of the Council to instruct the Water Works Committee to meet with us at their earliest convenience, that we may go over the matter of water rates and other matters pertaining to the improvement of our water works system.

COMMUNICATION FROM B. W. RHAMY, M. D.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 21st, 1906.

To the Committee on Water Works for Fort Wayne City Council.

Gentlemen: I enclose completed chemical sanitary analysis for potability of new city wells at foot of South Broadway. In the analysis form these wells are numbered 1, 2 and 3, beginning with the north well as No. 1. As a result of this analysis, the following conclusions are deducted:

1st. These waters contain about the average amount of mineral ingredients, expressed in total solids and chlorine, that are usually found in deep wells.

2nd. Their degree of hardness is not great, so that for washing purposes no excess of soap will be needed.

3rd. The oxygen consuming capacity, which gauges the character of any organic matter by observing the rate at which oxidation takes place, is almost down to the lowest figure given in pure water, therefore, there must be an infinitesmally small amount of organic matter in the water.

4th. Nitrogen in the form of nitrates, which are the final point in the oxidation of organic matter, are present only in the barest trace, confirming the opinion, that there is very little organic matter present.

5th. Nitrogen in the form of nitrates, which is the result of oxidation of bacteria and micro-organisms, is entirely absent, proving the absence of all microbic life.

6th. Nitrogen in the form of free ammonia, which is the final product of oxidized vegetable matter which has filtered down from upper strata or other contamination is down to the smallest figures given in pure water.

7th. Nitrogen in the form of albuminoid ammonia, which is the product of oxidized animal matter, which has filtered down from upper strata or other sources of contamination, is present only in the smallest trace.

These last two points show that the filtration of the water supply to these wells is perfect.

Final Deductions.

I find a water which is clear, cool and sparkling. It contains the proper amount of mineral matter to be palatable. There is practically no organic matter present and no source of contamination. The water is perfectly filtered and is unquestionably an excellent quality of water.

For comparison I have arranged a table showing the average standard of pure water from deep wells, also the results of actual analyses made by myself, of Swinney park water, of ordinary hydrant water, and also a sample of water which was condemned.

Comparison of this water from the new wells with the Swinney park water shows a shade more of purity than even the Swinney water.

Respectfully submitted,
B. W. RHAMY.

MINORITY REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 24th, 1906.

To the Honorable President and Members of the Common Council:

We, your Committee on Finance, to whom was referred an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Transferring ($300.00) Three Hundred Dollars from Police Force Pay Roll Account to Salaries of Officers and Clerks' Account," beg leave to report that we find the clerical duties of the Board of Safety exceedingly light and that said board has effected an arrangement whereby said clerical duties are to be performed by the official stenographer of the City, and that said additional duties will not affect nor injure the best interests of the city. We believe that the financial affairs of the City require the strictest economy and for this, as well as the above reason, we recommend that said ordinance be amended by striking out "Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00)" and that "One Hundred and Eighty Dollars ($180.00)" be inserted in lieu thereof and that when said ordinance is so amended it do pass.

WALTER E. COOK,
MARION B. JOHNSON,
Committee on Finance.

Upon motion the majority report was adopted by the following vote:

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, April 25.—Clear weather in the northwest had a weakening effect at the start on the wheat market here today, but the market quickly rallied on fair demand by commission houses. Fresh reports of damage by dry weather in the southwest were the main reasons for the improved feeling. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower, at 78⅝c to 79½c, and advanced to 79¾c. May opened ⅛c lower, at 79¾c, and sold up to 80@80¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 177 cars against 179 cars a year ago.

The market closed fairly steady with July down ⅛c, at 79⅜@79½c. May was up ⅛@⅜c, at 80⅛@80¼c.

Firm cables, small local receipts and an official forecast of thunderstorms tomorrow caused steadiness in the corn market. July opened unchanged to a shade lower, at 46⅜@46¼c to 46¼c, and held within the opening range. May opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 47c to 47⅛c, and sold up to 47¼c. Local receipts were 83 cars, with 4 of contract grade.

Later a slump occurred on profit taking. The close was easy with July off ¼c, at 46⅛c. May was down ⅛@¼c, at 46⅞@47c.

Because of small local receipts and predictions of wet weather tomorrow sentiment in the oats pit was somewhat bullish. July opened unchanged, at 30⅜c and advanced to 30⅞@31c. May was unchanged, at 32¼c. Local receipts were 86 cars.

Provisions were easier with July pork 2½@5c lower, at $15.80. Lard was down 2½@5c, at $8.57½. Ribs were a shade to 2½c lower, at $8.42½ to $8.65.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, April 25.—Opening prices in the stock market here today showed a moderate sympathetic effect from the higher range in London and there was a mixture of losses. Anaconda rose 1¾. Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Colorado Fuel a point and International Pump ¾. United States Steel opened down ⅛ and the preferred stock was ⅛ higher. The market was not very active.

A moderate decline from the opening indicated little selling pressure and invited buying by the professionals and there was a general recovery to above yesterday's closing. Reading and Union Pacific were the only leaders in which the movement attained much progress, but there were also a number of less important stocks in which the gains were large. While the market was running off Atlantic Coast Line fell 1. Great Northern preferred 1½. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred, Distillers' Securities and United States Realty 2 and United States Rubber second preferred 2½. The recovery established a gain of 4 in Pacific Coast, 2½ in the second preferred, 2 in United Railways Investment preferred and 1 to 1¼ in Reading, Union Pacific, Northwestern, Colorado & Southern second preferred, Kanawha & Michigan, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, Tennessee Coal and Allis-Chalmers.

Reading came into heavy demand at an advance of 2 points and the whole list moved up with an increased show of confidence. Central Railroad of New Jersey gained 4, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Smelting, Sloss-Sheffield, Virginia-Carolina and the Allis-Chalmers stocks gained 1½ to 2. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Amalgamated Copper, Consolidated Gas and National Lead 1¼ to 1½ and Louisville & Nashville, Canadian Pacific, Ontario & Western, Brooklyn Transit and a few others a point or more.

Bonds were irregular at noon.

The morning's rise invited profit taking and there was a general lowering of prices on sales of this character. Realizations, however, did not run beyond ½ or ⅝ in the active features and the market became very dull on the decline. General Electric moved up 4¾.

A rebound in Reading to 127½ was unsuccessful in checking the decline elsewhere and a number of stocks lost all of their earlier rise, including St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific and others. The United States Steel stocks again declined to below yesterday's closing. The heaviness of the general market discouraged attempts to hold Reading at the top and there was renewed profit taking in it which drove it off 1¼. Consolidated Gas ran off abruptly to 1¾ below yesterday.

Prices generally receded to below last night, including Union Pacific in the final hour. Consolidated Gas was forced down 5¾. Atlantic Coast Line 3¾. Great Northern preferred 3¼. St. Paul, Colorado Fuel and Norfolk & Western 1¾ to 2. Delaware & Hudson and People Gas 1½ and Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and American Ice 1 or more. The closing was active and weak.

Roy Lawrence has accepted a position in the Ranke & Nussbaum drug store.

The Phoenix Screen and Awning company is today placing the largest awning in town in position on the front of the five and Ten-cent store.

Day's Happenings in the Industrial World

OPERATOR WILL RESIGN.

A. S. Kiger Will Take Position with Traction Company.

About May 10 Telegraph Operator A. S. Kiger will retire from the employ of the Nickel Plate. He has accepted the position of chief time keeper with the Fort Wayne and South Bend Traction company, which will build a line into Fort Wayne, and when the construction work is completed will undoubtedly take another and more important position with the company. Mr. Kiger has been with the Nickel Plate in his present capacity nearly twenty years and during his service has filled every position in the telegraph department between Bellevue and Chicago. He came to he Nickel Plate from the Big Four, where he learned telegraphy and worked as an operator awhile. W. L. Kiger, the sixteen-year-old son of A. S. Kiger, will also take a position with the traction company and will likely be assigned to the surveying corps during the construction of the line.

WANTS A GULF LINE.

Pennsylvania Negotiating for a Southern Railroad.

One reason for the decision of the Pennsylvania Railroad company to acquire control of a line from the middle west to New Orleans or some other large gulf port appears in an announcement that the New York Central system, together with the Mobile and Ohio and the New Orleans and Northeastern, has formed what is to be known as the North and South Dispatch line, and that over $1,500,000 has been invested in 2,000 freight cars bearing the name of the new dispatch route. The New York Central lines have been alive to the advantage of such a connection, and the new dispatch line is the entering wedge.

The Pennsylvania does no propose to be outdone, and may go even further than the New York Central, if it is successful in buying a controlling interest in one of the southern roads. The competition between the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems is becoming more and more keen, and this, added to the advantages which will accrue to an eastern trunk line having a southern connection, particularly when the the Panama canal is in operation, has led the two most powerful eastern systems to enter upon a struggle for supremacy in this, a new field for them.

The Mobile and Ohio has sought for some years to interest one of the great eastern or western systems in participation in the growing traffic to and from New Orleans and the south, but was unsuccessful until the new policy of the New York Central led it to gobble up this opportunity, and thus precede its rival, the Pennsylvania, in getting a gulf line. By entering into the dispatch line agreement, the New York Central system gets practically initial rights into New Orleans, and becomes an influential factor among the railroads which are building up New Orleans traffic.

The lines of the New York Central system which are part of the new dispatch are the New York Central, the Big Four, the Lake Shore, the Indiana Harbor, the Lake Erie and Western and the Michigan Central. The Big Four and the Mobile and Ohio will connect at St. Louis. J. H. Brown will be manager of the North and South Dispatch, with headquarters at Chicago, and C. E. Smith will be general southern agent at New Orleans. The operation of the new dispatch will begin May 1.

By reason of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie being one of the New York Central lines, the new dispatch is of some local importance, and through connection of the Lake Erie with the Big Four and Lake Shore, Pittsburg shippers will have the use of the new line, which may have a representative in this city.

There can be no question but that this step of the New York Central will hasten the action of the Pennsylvania in securing some control or traffic arrangement by which it will be on an equal footing with its most powerful competitor. One indication of the competition between the two systems is the establishment of a passenger agency of the Pennsylvania lines at New Orleans effective May 1.

O. R. C. ENTERTAINMENT.

The ticket sales for the twenty-second annual pedro party and dance at Hanker's hall tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the O. R. C. and the Ladies' Auxiliary, indicate that there will be the largest crowd at this entertainment of any the two lodges have yet given. The members of the orders will act as a reception committee and Conductor George Bonter and Mrs. G. W. P. Bonter are the chairmen of the committee of arrangements. Conductor T. P. McArdle is chairman of the floor committee. The pedro games will commence promptly at 8:15 o'clock and it is important that all participants be promptly on hand at that hour.

GONE TO COUSIN'S FUNERAL.

Denny, John, Jerry and Michael McCarthy, engineers, have gone to Lima, O., where they will attend the funeral of their late cousin, Dennis McCarthy, who died suddenly in that city a few days ago. The funeral will be held at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and it is quite likely that a number of other Fort Wayne railway men will attend it. The deceased was a conductor on the Pennsylvania for a number of years, but since 1895 was engaged in business in Lima.

QUITS HOTEL BUSINESS.

C. A. Bailey has disposed of his hotel interests at Lake George, after a two years' experience. Railroad work is more to his taste and he has resumed the position with the Nickel Plate that he abandoned when he took charge of the hostelry.

RECEIVED A SCALP WOUND.

C. Chapman, employed in the Wabash machine shop, was struck on the head with a chisel which fell from the top of a locomotive while he was heath tightening up some bolts. The sharp edge of the tool cut quite a gash in Mr. Chapman's head, but the injury will not prove a serious affair.

The Ohio-Indiana Excursion association may not have to disband as they feared a few weeks ago when the Erie road refused to haul them. Arrangements are being made with the Clover Leaf, by which the people from the eastern part of Indiana will be able to make the biennial trip to the home of their ancestors in eastern Ohio. On former occasions over 1,000 people composed these excursion parties.

PAY YOUR TAXES BEFORE MAY 7TH OR PAY PENALTY.

Remember that if your taxes are not paid by May 7th, the second installment becomes due and payable at once and a penalty is added to the first installment. The new tax laws of Indiana enacted by the last legislature are different from the old ones and were so made that the tendency to lag would be overcome. No extension of time will be granted to taxpayers, and unless settlement is made by May 7th, the penalty will be added. This law is now strictly enforced all over this state. Commencing Tuesday, May 1st, the treasurer's office will be open evenings to and including May 7th. 24-5t

Clever Things Said By Bright Little Tots

Mamma—Remember that every cloud has a silver lining.

Little Bess—Then why doesn't God turn 'em inside out?

Sunday School Teacher—What became of the swine that had evil spirits cast into them?

Small Johnny—They were made into devilled ham.

The parson was talking to little Elmer about his habits and asked what time he was usually called for breakfast.

"They don't have to call me," answered Elmer. "I'm always Johnny on the spot."

Little Joe—Say, mamma, is sister goin' to be a Indian?

Mamma—Why do you ask that, dear?

Little Joe—'Cause she's upstairs paintin' her face.

Tommy—Papa, don't fish go about in schools?

Papa—Yes, Tommy. Why?

Tommy—Oh, I was just wondering what would become of the school if some fisherman happened to catch the teacher.—Chicago News.

Child Had to Wait His Turn.

A lady in a small Alabama town had occasion to call at the cabin of her washerwoman, Aunt Betsy. While waiting for the article she sought to be found she observed a woolly head which appeared from under the edge of the bed and asked:

"Is that one of your children, Aunt Betsy?"

"'Deed an' 'tis, honey," was the reply.

"What is its name?"

"Dat chile ain't got no name yet, Miss Rosa," Aunt Betsy said

"Why, it must be five or six years old. Surely it ought to have a name at that age," the lady said.

Aunt Betsy nodded.

"Dat done worried me a whole lot, honey. Hit sho' has," she said. "But whut Ah gwine do? My ole man he done used up all de good names on de dawgs, an' now dat chile des hatter wait twell one ob dem die, so he can git his name."—Success Magazine.

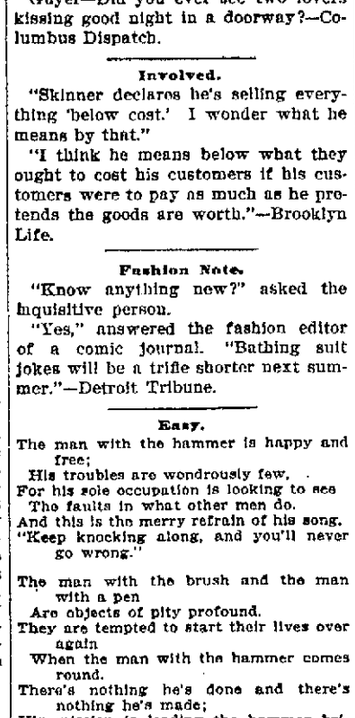
He Had Not Lost It.

A London bus driver had shouted "'Igh 'Oborn!" till the passenger on the seat behind him could not longer resist the temptation to make a joke.

"Excuse me," said the passenger, "but haven't you dropped something?"

"I see wot you're driving at," returned the driver keenly, "but never mind. I shall pick it up when we get to Hoxford street."—London Daily News.

Duty Before All.



Officer—It's no use you hiding, sir. I must have your name and address.

More Important.

"See here!" exclaimed Popleigh. "I don't propose to have that burglar alarm in our bedroom. We'll put it down in the hall."

"Nonsense!" replied his wife. "Then we won't hear it when it goes off."

"Neither will the baby. That's the main point."—Philadelphia Press.

Hard to Part.

Guyer—Sort of a lingering disease.

Gunner—Why do you call it lingering?

Guyer—Did you ever see two lovers kissing good night in a doorway?—Columbus Dispatch.

Involved.

"Skinner declares he's selling everything 'below cost.' I wonder what he means by that."

"I think he means below what they ought to cost his customers if his customers were to pay as much as he pretends the goods are worth."—Brooklyn Life.

Fashion Note.

"Know anything new?" asked the inquisitive person.

"Yes," answered the fashion editor of a comic journal. "Bathing suit jokes will be a trifle shorter next summer."—Detroit Tribune.

Easy.

The man with the hammer is happy and free;
His troubles are wondrously few.
For his sole occupation is looking to see
The faults in what other men do.
And this is the merry refrain of his song.
"Keep knocking along, and you'll never go wrong."

Are objects of pity profound.
They are tempted to start their lives over again
When the man with the hammer comes round.
There's nothing he's done and there's nothing he's made;
His mission is leading the hammer brigade.

ALL KIN IN MISERY

Calamity Wipes Out All Distinctions of Class in San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., April 21.—Next to viewing the many square miles of ruins that once made San Francisco a city, no better realization of the devastation can be gained than by visiting the refugee camps located in the districts which were untouched by the flames.

Golden Gate park was the mecca of the destitute. This immense playground of the municipality has been converted into a vast mushroom city that bears striking resemblance to the fleeting towns located on the border of a government reservation about to be opened to public settlement.

The common destitution and suffering have wiped out all social, financial, and racial distinctions. The man who last Tuesday was a prosperous merchant is occupying with his family a little plot of ground that adjoins the open air home of the laborer. The white man of California has forgotten his antipathy to the Asiatic race and is maintaining friendly relations with his new Chinese and Japanese neighbors.

Money Loses Much Of Its Value.

The society belle who, Tuesday night was a butterfly of fashion at the grand opera performance, was assisting the factory girl in the preparation of humble daily meals. Money this afternoon had little value. The family who had had foresight to lay in the largest stock of foodstuffs on the first day of the disaster is rated highest in the scale of wealth.

A few of the families who could secure willing expressmen are possessors of cooking stoves, but over 95 per cent of the refugees are doing their cooking on little camp fires made of brick or stone. Kitchen utensils that last week would have been regarded with contempt are today articles of high value.

Many of the homeless people are in possession of comfortable clothing and bed covering, but the great bulk of them are in need. The grass is their bed and their daily clothing their only protection against the penetrating fog of the ocean or the chilling dew of the morning. Fresh meat disappeared Wednesday morning and canned goods and breadstuffs are the only victuals in evidence.

Society Girl's Bed a Grave.

Not alone are the parks the places of refuge. Every large vacant lot in the safe zones has been pre-emptied, and even the cemeteries are crowded.

A well known young woman of social position, when asked today where she had spent the night, replied, "On a grave."

Throughout the entire western portion of the peninsular county of San Francisco these camps are located. The municipal safety committee has had plans for concentrating the homeless people in several great camps, but unless they are forcibly herded together like cattle this scheme seems impossible of accomplishment.

Major McKeever, of the United States army, has been appointed commandant of the camps, and with his staff of assistants was today trying to bring some sort of system and order out of the chaotic condition.

Peril of Epidemic Arises.

His first thought is to supply food and water and then arrange sanitary measures. These throngs of people crowded elbow to elbow in the open lots and fields without conveniences that are naturally demanded are threatened with an epidemic of disease unless some wise precautions are speedily observed. The authorities even as early as yesterday had been constructing necessary buildings.

Good order and fellowship seems to prevail in these impromptu settlements and the common ruin and poverty has made all of the unfortunates akin.

In buildings close to the camps the police are storing available foodstuffs and bedclothing for convenient delivery. That there will be a just and equal distribution of supplies is evident from the temper of the city administration. No distinctions are drawn and but few favors shown.

The grave question is: How soon will an adequate supply of food arrive from outside points to avert famine and destitution. There is little food in San Francisco outside of what little each person possesses and this cannot last more than a few days.

City Far From Relief Points.

San Francisco is, geographically, an isolated city. Its nearest large neighbor on the south is Los Angeles, 500 miles away. To the north is Portland, nearly 800 miles distant, and its nearest sister in the great east is Salt Lake City, 1,000 miles away. These cities and all of the less populated nearer towns are making sacrifices for the destitute here, but it is to the big cities of the nation that San Francisco looks with anxious eyes for relief in its time of need.

Owing to the short supplies of provisions in the city General Manager Edward E. Calvin, of the Southern Pacific railroad, has arranged to take all the destitute people possible on the ferries to Oakland and send them out on local trains to points in California without charge. He also is sending steamers in to raise off the people on the wharves between the ferry building and Port Mason and carry them to Oakland without payment of fare. The work of handling the refugees is being done in good shape.

The steamer Newark made a trip along the water front this morning and gathered up 2,000 people, and, after landing them at Oakland, returned for another load. The Southern Pacific steamer Modoc was used as a hospital last night and today was also put into service in gathering up the unfortunates who sought refuge on the water front.

The Southern Pacific is running its through trains and suburban trains on schedule time and in all cases where passengers are unable to pay fare they are transported free.

INTERURBAN CAR HITS WAGON.

Monroeville, Ind., April 21.—A Standard Oil company's delivery wagon was hit by a Fort Wayne and Lima Traction company's car Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock on South street. C. A. Noyer, the local agent for the Standard Oil company, and Ben Shuck were on the wagon at the time of the accident and were hurled about forty feet by the force of the impact. Mr. Noyer was painfully, though not seriously bruised, but Mr. Shuck had a collar bone fractured and it is also feared that he sustained internal injuries. The injured men failed to notice the interurban car until it was upon them.

TEA TABLE SUPERSTITIONS.

Of course, no one is superstitious in these enlightened days. Our great-grandmothers, however, were made very differently, and it is interesting to read of the mysterious meanings they attached to almost every little incident of everyday life that was at all out of the ordinary course of things.

The tea table, for instance, afforded ample scope for the play of superstition in the feminine mind. If, when the tea was made, the lid was forgotten for a few minutes, it was a sure sign that some one would drop in to tea.

If one person accidentally received two spoons with a cup of tea she would be married within a year.

If anyone helped herself to cream or milk before sugar, she would be crossed in love.

A tea leaf floating in the cup of an unmarried lady was a sign that she had an admirer, says Woman's Life. If on this occasion the tea was stirred quickly, and the spoon, being then held upright in the middle of the cup, the tea leaf was attracted to the spoon and clung to it, the admirer would be sure to call that day, but if the tea leaf went to the side of the cup he was not to be expected so soon.

A GRIM BEQUEST.

A man, whose will was lately proved, left his property to his daughter, with the following condition attached: "That she shall pay to Mr. —— the sum of threepence halfpenny for the purchase of a hempen cord of halter for the use of his dear wife," says Home Notes. "I trust," he adds, "that she may make use of it without delay."

In the year 1890 Germany sent about $10,710,000 in silks to the United States, and Japan sent $1,190,000 worth. In 1904-05 Germany sent about $4,008,000 of silk goods to the United States, while Japan sent $5,598,000 worth. Japanese exports of silk goods have tripled within ten years, increasing from $7,470,000 in 1895 to $22,410,000 in 1904-05, and the ascending movement continues.

San Francisco Will Rebuild With More Splendor Than Before

New York, April 21.—In spite of the staggering property losses involved in the destruction of San Francisco by earthquake and fire New Yorkers who have large interests at stake in that city and Californians resident here say without hesitation that San Francisco will be rebuilt as speedily as possible; that the city would raise from its ashes on grander lines than those of the past and that it would be a safer and healthier city because of the precautions to be taken against future earthquakes and conflagrations.

D. O. Mills said: "In spite of the uncertainty one thing is sure—the city will be rebuilt. We will go ahead and rebuild the city and build it so that earthquakes will not shake it down and so fire will not destroy; and we will have a water system which will enable us to draw water from the sea for fire extinguishing service and other municipal purposes. We will thus have less to fear from the destruction of the land mains."

Archer M. Huntington, son of Collis P. Huntington, said: "San Francisco is the logical metropolis west of the Rockies and all talk of abandoning the city in favor of some such place as Seattle is foolishness."

Isaac Guggenheim said: "Of course San Francisco will rise again. We have every confidence in its recuperative powers. Buildings will be put up that will not tumble down and it will be one of the most beautiful cities in the world."

That no time will be lost in the work of rebuilding is suggested by the fact that the large engineering and contracting firms are sending their most expert men to investigate the ruins with a view of discovering which form of construction best withstood the shock. The city will require about 350,000 tons of structural steel to repair her losses and erect new buildings, according to E. H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, and other authorities interviewed yesterday. One result of the earthquake, it was claimed, will be to give an impetus to the use of steel skeletons in future building along the Pacific coast.

DEGREE STAFF PRAISED.

(Huntington Herald.)

About fifty members of Queen Esther lodge of Rebekah accompanied the degree team of that lodge from Fort Wayne Thursday evening to confer the initiation upon one candidate, Mrs. Bert McClelland, in the order in this city. The lady was initiated by the Fort Wayne team, whose work was given in a very credible manner. The local members, who turned out in unusually large numbers, were very much pleased with the work as given by the staff.

EAGER FOR NEWS OF AWFUL HORROR

Extra Editions of The Sentinel Were Snapped Up Rapidly.

ALARM FOR FRIENDS

Some Fear for Safety of Friends Located There—Had Branches in San Francisco.

News of the earthquake horror in San Francisco, first given out in Fort Wayne through the Sentinel bulletins and later told in more complete detail in special editions of this newspaper issued at 11:15 and at 1 o'clock Wednesday,aroused intense interest in Fort Wayne, and for several hours telephonic inquiry to the Sentinel building for additional news of the disaster was frequent.

Five thousand copies of the special editions were printed, and practically all of them were snapped up from the newsboys upon the streets by eager purchasers within half an hour from the time they were issued from the press.

Was Much Apprehension.

In many cases there was grave apprehension for the safety of friends who were believed to be in San Francisco, though some comfort is carried in the bulletin to the effect that visitors in the city are not likely to have been stopping in those sections of the city where the destruction was greatest, and that in all probability they were safe.

Quite a large number of Fort Wayne people are at California points, though so far as can be learned, very few are likely to have been in San Francisco today. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Olds and daughters, Margery, were there a few days ago and were to have remained during this week, but fortunately changed their plans and went to Seattle last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Shoaff left San Francisco some days ago and are expected to reach home today.

Lieutenant Fred Freeman is believed to have been aboard a battleship in the harbor of San Francisco Sunday, but the boat is presumed to have proceeded to Mare Island navy yard.

Miss Frances Weingartner, formerly of this city, has a music studio in the heart of the city, and resides near it, and friends are very apprehensive as to her safety.

Lee Olds, a son of Judge and Mrs. Walter Olds, is in business at San Francisco, with an office in the Call building, but his residence is several miles distant, and at that hour in the morning it is hardly probable that Mr. Olds was in the imperiled district. His friends have received no communication from him during the day.

Home Was Destroyed.

Mrs. Boling, residing on Baker street, received a telegram shortly before noon advising her that the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Thomas, located on Vermont street, had been completely destroyed. Mrs. Thomas is visiting at Seattle, but her husband, who was in the house, escaped injury. They were former residents of Fort Wayne.

Albert Liebenthal and Mrs. Jacob Levy, brother and sister of Mrs. Isidor Mautner, are residents of San Francisco, but no word has been received from them by Mrs. Mautner. Mrs. Rachel Eckert and Miss Katherine Eckert are in Los Angeles.

Had Branches There.

At least two Fort Wayne manufacturing institutions have branches in San Francisco. They are the Fort Wayne Electric works and the Packard company. The former is located in the down-town district, immediately across the street from the Examiner building. The branch of the Packard company is somewhat remote from the central district. Nothing has been heard by either company concerning the condition of the branches.

WILL SHARE IN BEQUEST.

Gart and Oscar L. Shober Get $11,000 by Will of a Relative.

Augustus W. Shober, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Lititz, Pa., died March 20, leaving a large estate, but no children. Gart Shober has just received an official notification from the executor of the estate apprising him that the property has been appraised at a trifle over $100,000 and that he and his brother, O. L. Shober, a Pennsylvania conductor, were among twelve of the principal beneficiaries. A copy of the will was appended to the notice. That document provided for specific bequests to the amount of $37,000, the remainder of the estate, amounting to over $63,000, to be divided equally among the twelve children of John L. and Reuben E. Shober, father and uncle respectively of the Fort Wayne Shobers. When the estate is settled Messrs. Gart and Oscar L. Shober will receive jointly about $11,000. The testator was a first cousin to the Messrs. Shobers' father.

Efforts to restore to life by means of prayer the little son of William Whitridge at Bluffton were abandoned and the babe was buried Tuesday morning. A very simple funeral service was held, the father reading an obituary of the child and reciting a poem of his own composition.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Davis, living a mile and a half east of Ossian, are rocking the cradle, which now contains their thirteenth child and although they have had more children than a large majority of the parents of Wells county, they seem amply able to care for this one. The child was born last Friday, the thirteenth of the month, and is the thirteenth child.

Boston Weston, the Huntington cabman convicted of the killing of R. J. Holthouse, of Decatur, was taken to the Jeffersonville reformatory Tuesday to begin his sentence.

Dr. W. N. Fowler, of Bluffton, has signed a contract to accompany the Wellman expedition in its search for the north pole. Dr. Fowler will be physician to the exploring party, and will receive a salary of $200 per month.

PRESIDENT SCORES BEEF TRUST TRIAL

MAKES LAW A FARCE

Roosevelt Declares Ruling of Judge Humphrey Renders Will of Congress Abortive.

Washington, April 18.—In a special message delivered to the congress today President Roosevelt declares that the result of the recent trial of the "beef packers" in Chicago was a "miscarriage of justice" and that the interpretation placed by Judge Humphrey on the will of congress "is such as to make that will absolutely abortive."

The message, which is most sensational in character, is based largely on a letter to the president from Attorney General Moody, in which the attorney general reviews the proceedings of the case of the government against the beef packers. The president says it is clear that no criticism attaches to Commissioner Garfield, as what he did was in pursuance of a duty imposed on him by congress. He refers sharply, however, to the decision of Judge Humphrey, saying that congress could not have foreseen such a decision and that he can hardly believe that the ruling of Judge Humphrey will be followed by other judges. He declared that such interpretation of the law as that placed on it by Judge Humphrey "comes measurably near making the law a farce" and he recommends that congress pass a declaratory act stating its real intention. The president also requests congress to confer on the government by statute the same right of appeal in criminal cases which the defendant now enjoys where the merits of the case have not been determined.

Text of the Message.

The full text of the message follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I submit herewith a letter of the attorney general, enclosing a statement of the proceedings by the United States against the individuals and corporations commonly known as the "beef packers," and commenting on the decision of District Judge Humphrey. The result has been a miscarriage of justice. It clearly appears from the letter of the attorney general that no criticism whatever attaches to Commissioner Garfield, what he did was in strict accordance with the law and in pursuance of a duty imposed on him by congress, which could not be avoided; and, of course, congress in passing the Martin resolution could not possibly have foreseen the decision of Judge Humphrey.

But this interpretation by Judge Humphrey of the will of the congress as expressed in legislation is such as to make that will absolutely abortive. Unfortunately there is grave doubt whether the government has the right of appeal from this decision of the district judge. The case well illustrates the desirability of conferring on the government the same right of appeal in criminal cases, on questions of law, which the defendant has, in all cases where the defendant had not been put in jeopardy by a trial on the merits of the charge made against. The laws of many of the states and the law of the District of Columbia recently enacted by the congress, give the government the right of appeal. A general law of the character indicated should certainly be enacted.

Will Hardly Be Followed.

Furthermore, it is very desirable to enact a law declaring the true construction of the existing legislation so far as the immunity clause is concerned. I cannot believe that the ruling of Judge Humphrey will be followed by other judges; but if it should be followed, the result would be either completely to nullify very much and possibly the major part of the good to be obtained from the interstate commerce law and from the law creating the bureau of corporations in the department of commerce and labor; or else frequently to obstruct an appeal to the criminal laws by the department of justice. There seems to be no good reason why the department of justice, the department of commerce and labor and the interstate commerce commission, each should act, for the common good, proceed within its own powers without undue interference with the functions of the other. It is, of course, necessary under the constitution and the laws, that persons who give testimony or produce evidence as witnesses, should receive immunity from prosecution. It has hitherto been supposed that the immunity conferred by existing laws was only upon persons who being subpoenaed, had given testimony or produced evidence as witnesses, relating to the offense with which they were, or might be charged. But Attorney General Moody's decision is, in effect, that if either the commissioner of corporations does his duty or the interstate commerce commission does its duty by making investigations which they, by law are required to make, though they issue no subpoena and receive no testimony, given within the proper meaning of those words, the very fact of the investigation may of itself operate to prevent the prosecution of any offender for any offense which may have been developed in even the most indirect manner during the course of the investigation, even for any offense which may have been detected by investigation conducted by the department of justice entirely independent of the labors of the interstate commission or of the commissioner of corporations—the only condition of immunity being that the offender should have given, or directed to be given, information which related to the subject out of which the offense has grown.

Hard to Execute Justice.

In offenses of this kind it is at the best hard enough to execute justice upon offenders. Our system of criminal jurisprudence has descended to us from a period when the danger was that the accused should not have his rights adequately preserved and it is admirably framed to meet this danger. But at present the danger is just the reverse; that is, the danger nowadays is, not that an innocent man will be convicted of crime, but that the guilty man will escape free. This is especially the case where the crime is one of greed and cunning perpetrated by a man of wealth in the course of those business operations where the code of conduct is at variance, not merely with the code of humanity and morality, but with the code as established in the law of the land. It is much easier, but much less effective, to proceed against a corporation than to proceed against the individuals in that corporation who are themselves responsible for the wrongdoing. Very naturally outside persons who have no knowledge of the facts and no responsibility for the success of the proceedings, are apt to clamor for action against the investigations. The department of justice has most wisely invariably refused thus to proceed against individuals unless it was convinced both that they were in fact guilty and that there was at least a reasonable chance of establishing this fact of their guilt. These beef packing cases offered one of the very few instances where there was not only the moral certainty that the accused men were guilty, but what seemed—and now seems—sufficient legal evidence of the fact.

No Promise of Immunity.

But in obedience to the explicit order of the congress the commissioner of corporations had investigated the beef packing business. The counsel for the beef packers explicitly admitted that there was no claim that any promise of immunity had been given by Mr. Garfield, as shown by the following colloquy during the argument of the attorney general:

Mr. Moody—I dismiss almost with a word the claim that Mr. Garfield promised immunity. Whether there is any evidence of such a promise or not I do not know and I do not care.

Mr. Miller (the counsel for the beef packers)—There is no claim of it.

Mr. Moody—Then I was mistaken and I will not even say that much. But Judge Humphrey holds that if the commissioner of corporations (and therefore if the interstate commerce commission) in the course of any investigations prescribed by congress, asks any questions of a person not called as a witness, or asks any questions of an officer of a corporation not called as a witness, with regard to the action of the corporation on a subject out of which prosecutions may subsequently arise, then the fact of such questions having been asked operates as a bar to the prosecution of that person or of that officer of the corporation for his own misdeeds.

Such interpretation of the law comes measurably near making the law a farce; and I, therefore, recommend that the congress pass a declaratory act stating its real intention.

(Signed.) Theodore Roosevelt.

HARD COAL ROADS WILL BE PROBED

GOVERNMENT TO MAKE SWEEPING INQUIRY.

Attorney Hughes, Famous in Life Insurance Cases, Employed as Special Counsel.

Washington, April 18.—There is to be a sweeping government investigation of the anthracite coal roads, and Charles E. Hughes, who made such a splendid success in digging into the mysteries of the insurance business in New York, has been engaged as a special counsel to aid the United States in pushing the inquiry.

This is in addition to the general investigation being conducted by the interstate commerce commission. In fact, it is the direct result and a speedy one, of the facts developed in the hearings in Baltimore and Philadelphia which showed that many officials of the highest rank in the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad were interested personally in mining companies along the line of their road.

The testimony taken by the commission showed that some of these officials were given stock without paying for it, the obvious object of such a transaction being to secure from the railroads illegal favors in the way of rebates and particularly in the direction of furnishing cars, sidetracks and other transportation facilities.

It is the belief at the department of justice that the interstate commerce commission already has developed facts enough to justify a sensational presentation to the federal court for violation not only of the interstate commerce law, but of the anti-trust law as well.

A GREAT MAN IN PRAYER.

An anecdote about Phillips Brooks, given to illustrate the delight in communion with God, which is a condition of effective prayer, will be long remembered:

"A friend of mine," said Dr. Laws, "was crossing the Atlantic once in company with Phillips Brooks. The great man was very companionable, very gentle, very loving, and so he took this obscure young minister to his heart, and they became friends and comrades.

"One day my friend wanted to see the bishop, and so he sought for him all over the ship. He even went down among the steerage passengers, where the great-hearted bishop sometimes used to go on errands of mercy and love. Finally he went to his stateroom and knocked gently. There was no answer. He turned the knob of the door and pushed it open a little, and there he saw Phillips Brooks lying prostrate upon the floor of the little cabin."

At first Dr. Laws' friend thought the bishop was ill, or perhaps dead, and he stood motionless. All of a sudden, however, he heard these words: "O Lord Jesus, thou hast filled my life with peace and gladness. To look into thy face is earth's most exquisite joy."

"My friend realized for a moment that he was listening to Phillips Brooks in prayer, so he shut the door and stole silently away."—Selected.

HENRY W. GRADY ON WHISKY.

Henry W. Grady, one of the greatest orators America ever produced, said this of the liquor traffic:

"Tonight it enters an humble home to strike the roses from the cheeks, and tomorrow it challenges this republic in the halls of congress. Today it strikes a crust of bread from a starving child, and tomorrow it levies a tribute from the government itself. There is no cottage humble enough to escape it, no place strong enough to shut it out. It defies the law when it cannot coerce it. It is flexible to cajole, but merciless in victory. It is the mortal enemy of peace and order, the despoiler of men and women, the cloud that shadows the face of children, the demon that has dug more graves and sent more souls unshrouded to judgment than all the wars since Joshua stood before Jericho. It comes to ruin, and it shall profit mainly by the ruin of your sons and mine. It comes to mislead human hearts and to crush human hearts under its rumbling wheels. It comes to bring grey-haired mothers down to shame and sorrow to their graves. It comes to change the wife's love into despair and her pride into shame. It comes to stifle the music in the home, and fill it with silence and desolation. It comes to ruin your body and wreck your home, and it knows it must measure its prosperity by the success and certainty with which it ruins the world."

Dick McKinney, who tried to pass a forged check at Decatur, pleaded guilty and goes to the Jeffersonville reformatory for from two to fourteen years.

Rev. W. H. Daniel, who has been critically ill at Decatur, is now said to be slightly improved. He was formerly presiding elder of the Fort Wayne district of the M. E. church.

Jonathan Shook, a well-known DeKalb county man, died Monday evening at his home near Corunna from heart trouble. He was 76 years of age and was stricken with heart failure while walking about his home.

THROWS LIGHT ON DIVORCE DECISION

SUPREME COURT OPINION IS SWEEPING IN EFFECT.

Marriages Not Legal When One of the Parties is Represented by Attorney.

Washington, April 18.—There is no doubt that the decision of the United States supreme court, handed down yesterday, will rip open thousands of divorces which were supposed to be binding by all parties to them. It will dissolve all marriages made by parties to such divorces afterwards, and all children of those subsequent marriages will become illegitimate and will be unable to inherit property from their parents.

The decision of the United States supreme court, revolutionary though it may seem, is extremely simple in its actual bearing. In the first place, it must be understood that it does not concern any divorce case whatsoever where there has been actual service upon the defendant, and where the defendant actually has appeared in court in person or by an attorney.

Many Divorces Not Affected.

It does not concern any divorce case whether the defendant is present in court or not, when the offense for which divorce is granted was committed within the jurisdiction of the court.

The decision of the supreme court, expressed in the briefest possible form, is: That no court can grant a valid divorce unless the defendant is personally within the jurisdiction of the court, or unless the offense for which the divorce is granted was committed within the jurisdiction of the court.

In the Haddock case, decided by the supreme court yesterday, the two persons were married in the state of New York and lived there. The husband went to Connecticut. The wife remained in New York. Later on the Connecticut court granted a divorce on the ground of desertion. This divorce the United States supreme court has held was not necessarily binding upon Mrs. Haddock in the state of New York. She sued in New York for separation and maintenance, and was awarded alimony.

How One Case Worked.

When Haddock returned inadvertently to New York he was personally within the jurisdiction of the New York court which found judgment against him for the amount of alimony Mrs. Haddock had been awarded. The New York court refused to give credence to the decision of the Connecticut court. The supreme court upheld this view.

Mrs. Haddock, having remained in New York, of course, could not have deserted Mr. Haddock in Connecticut. She never went to Connecticut, and, therefore, it is seen that the Connecticut court never acquired jurisdiction, either of the defendant or of the offense for which the divorce was granted, and the divorce, therefore, the supreme court says, was invalid, or, at least, was not necessarily entitled to respect in the state of New York.

Lawyers Not All Agreed.

Lawyers differ a good deal as to the effect of the supreme court decision in all its ramifications. They are more or less agreed, however, on the effect under certain conditions. That is to say, if any man in Chicago left his wife behind him there, went out to South Dakota, staid there the necessary short time, and secured a divorce after notice to his wife through publication or otherwise, of which she was unaware, or to which she paid no notice, his divorce is valid in the state of South Dakota, but it is not entitled to any respect in the state of Illinois.

Therefore, if the wife, after any period of time, chooses to assert her rights in the state of Illinois, she may sue for divorce and it may be granted to her by the Illinois court. If her husband is within the jurisdiction of the Illinois courts he can be compelled to pay her alimony. If he owns property in Chicago or elsewhere in the state her right to it will not be affected by the South Dakota divorce.

If, after having received the divorce in South Dakota, the husband returns to Chicago, marries again, and has children neither the children nor the second wife are legitimate, provided the first wife sees fit to contest the case. If the man dies the first wife, and not the second nor the children of the second, would inherit the property.

Means Grief to Many.

It is easy to see how widespread will be the effect of this decision. Every husband and wife who has secured a divorce in one state for an offense committed in another in which the defendant still resided, is married still in the state where he or she had his or her original domicile.

The decision does not absolutely annul divorce, nor does it absolutely annul any subsequent marriages, nor directly illegitimize the children. The divorce, the subsequent marriage, and the rights of the children can only be attacked, apparently, by subsequent proceedings on the part of the party to the original marriage who was not consulted and who took no part in the divorce proceedings.

That is to say, one state is not bound to accept the decree of a divorce court in another state unless that decree was found as the result of a complete jurisdiction of the defendant or the offense. Of course, if the defendant does not subsequently appeal to the court, the original decree stands, because no one else has a right to question it.

In all those cases, therefore, where what are known as "Dakota divorces" are not contested they will stand. If the defendant, whether man or woman, has died, they will stand, and the property rights of the new wife and children will not be interfered with.

Will Hasten Uniformity.

This decision undoubtedly will have a good effect in the direction of hastening some uniformity of action among the states regarding the divorce laws. The federal government has no authority to prescribe the conditions of marriage or divorce. Regulation of these relations belong exclusively to the state. Any uniformity of divorce laws necessarily must come as a result of voluntary action.

The decision of the court unquestionably will go a long ways toward breaking up the profitable divorce industry in a number of states. It would be just as sweeping, however, if there were uniformity for causes for granting divorce. It covers a divorce for adultery just as much as one when only desertion is alleged. New York, for instance, gives absolute divorces only for the biblical reason, but under the decision of the supreme court a New York divorce would not be valid if the offense was committed in Illinois and the defendant remained outside the jurisdiction of the New York court. The whole burden of the supreme court decision, therefore, rests upon the question of jurisdiction and not upon that of the causes of divorce.

Simple Lemon Pie Recipes for Home Cooks

(By Mrs. Telford.)

Fig Bars.

The fig bars that are sold as fancy crackers are all made in forms, most of them coming from one firm in Connecticut. A cake could be made at home that would taste much like the commercial cracker, but it would not be so uniform in size. For the filling chop fine a pound of figs, add one-half cup sugar and one cup water, or sherry if preferred, and stew until soft and tender. Make a rich, cool cookie batter thin enough to spread easily. Pour in the bottom of well greased dripping pans. As soon as baked take out carefully and lay on the moulding board, spread one with a thin frosting, then with the fig filling and cover with the second sheet that has also been lightly spread with frosting. Cut in bars while warm.

Perfect Lemon Pie.

Wash one good sized lemon, then grate off the thin yellow rind. Peel off the bitter white membrane and cut up the pulp, discarding the seeds. Put pulp and rind in a bowl with any juice that may have oozed out; add one cup sugar, the yolks of two eggs well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cup sweet milk and half a tablespoonful of butter. Stir well, then lastly add the whites beaten to a stiff froth, folding in lightly. Pour into a deep custard pie plate and bake about forty minutes in a rather cool oven so that the top of the pie will not burn.

Lemon Pie With Molasses.

Another lemon pie where the pulp is used is made with molasses. Peel two lemons, pour cold water on the rinds and cook for a few moments. Throw away this water and again take cold water and bring to a good boil. Repeat this process once more, when the bitterness of the white membrane will have been dissipated and it will be tender. Chop fine and add to the pulp, also chopped. Mix with this two cups molasses, two cups water and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, stirred smooth with a little of the cold water. Cook until smooth and thicken. Pour in crust already baked, then set in oven long enough to brown.

SEVERAL HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When decanters or carafés become so discolored inside that shot or fine coals will not cleanse them, fill the bottle with finely-chopped potato skins. Cork tightly and let the bottle stand for three days, when the skins will ferment. Turn out and rinse. The bottles will be as bright and clean as when new.

If a cloth be wrung out of water and laid over the registers, when removing the ashes, the annoyance of dust flying over the rooms from the furnace will be done away with.

HERE IS A POINT OF ECONOMY.

The proper selection of clothes is not more important than the proper care to be taken of them afterward, and garments that are well cared for will last as long again as those that are not.

It is a matter of economy to invest in the various articles that are sold for the purpose of preserving the shape of clothes and shoes, and when invested in to use them constantly.

Coat hangers cost only a trifle, and every wardrobe should contain a large supply of them, as they are useful not only for heavy coats and wraps, but for blouses of all kinds.

There is a noticeable difference in the shape of a coat that has invariably been placed on a hanger and one that has invariably swung from the loop in the back of the neck; it would probably be more to the point to say that one has a shape, while the other has not.

Most women, unfortunately, make the mistake of considering shoetrees a luxury instead of a necessity, and their shoes are an unmistakable evidence of the fact. The woman whose feet always look trim and tidy is the one who has shoetrees and uses them.

The care of the small accessories of dress is quite as important as that of outer garments and shoes. Much can be done toward preserving the crisp, fresh appearance of a hat if it is always kept in a box.

A hat brush that is kept busy and a handbox for every hat are necessary if one's headgear is to be kept up to the standard set by coat hangers and shoetrees.

The occasional use of a hot iron and a little care in folding when putting away will keep veils fresh and new-looking for a long time and for chiffon veils a thorough rubbing in soapsuds and warm water is very beneficial. The worst thing in the world for a veil is to leave it tied around a hat, particularly if it is at all damp.

HATPIN HOLES.

It isn't everybody who can manipulate a hatpin so successfully that at the end of the season there are only two punctures in the felt to be seen—where the pin went in and where it came out.

Most of us jab it in wildly, with the result that sometimes a little round of felt is neatly cut out or pierced into a limp semblance of itself, says Woman's Life.

When that does happen, slip a tiny piece (but big enough to cover the worn spot) of buckram inside your hat, and sew the cut part firmly to it. It will stiffen up the limp felt like magic.

In many rooms where everything else is correct the pictures are hung wrong. The proper plan to hang any picture is not where it will "balance the room," but where it gets the best light; and many a good picture is completely wasted because this precaution is not observed. Another fault is that pictures are hung too high. Don't put them above the level of the eye if you want them to be seen and admired.

Mr. Bowser In A New Role

Went Out In the Country to Study History For the Benefit of Mr. Green.

FARMERS CHASED HIM

They Intimated That He Was Spying Around to Steal Something and Grew Suspicious.

[Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells.]

Mr. Bowser had given no hint in word or action of his intentions, but at breakfast the other morning he said to Mrs. Bowser:

"I see that you take no interest whatever in natural history, and I am disappointed in you."

"What interest do you expect me to take?" she replied.

"Oh, none at all. Keep right on sloshing around and never give a thought as to why a grasshopper's hind legs are longer than his front ones."

"I suppose he was built that way to make a jumper of him."

"You suppose, but you don't know. Why should the grasshopper jump any more than the beetle? Why should a rabbit jump any more than a fox? Why should nature have made a bear to climb and denied the same privilege to a wolf? How is it that a cat can see in the darkness and a cow can't? Why should the ox hollow and the horse neigh?"

"Why should water beetles be running around our kitchen instead of canary birds?" asked Mrs. Bowser after a minute.

All Fiddle Faddle With Women.

"Woman, don't make a fool of the thing! When a woman is ignorant it is much better that she owned up and got posted. All your life you have seen rats and mice, and yet it never occurred to you to ask why rats are the largest. You find water beetles in the kitchen and cockroaches in the clothes closets. Why? What part do they play in nature's game? If you could keep your nose off a bargain counter for fifteen minutes you might learn something of animal and insect life."

"Will you kindly tell me where all this talk is intended to lead to?"

"I will. Business is not very pressing at the office just now, and I propose to take a day off and go out into the country to study nature a bit."

"As applied to the animal kingdom in the aging winter?"

"Just so, madam. I had an argument with Green the other day about woodchucks and rabbits. I know I was right, but the obstinate jackass wouldn't give up. The woodchuck, as I contend and positively know, crosses his front legs when he walks, and a rabbit can run faster in a circle than straight ahead. I shall take a little run out among the farmers and bring back the evidence to crush Green forever. I shall take my gun along and knock over a few quails and partridges while I am about it."

Feared a Calamity.

Mrs. Bowser knew that some calamity would happen and that she would be held responsible for it, but she also realized that he had made up his mind and that it was useless to argue with him. After breakfast he got into an old suit of clothes, brought down his shotgun and started off in the interests of natural history. Mr. Bowser felt like a boy out on a holiday, and as the suburban car sped with him countrywards he would have been very gracious to the farmer sitting on his right had his advances been met in a friendly spirit. But they were not. He had only inquired if woodchucks and rabbits were plenty in the country when the farmer looked him over with critical eye and slowly replied:

"Lemme tell you something. If you are one of those fellers they call a Nimrod you don't want to come footing around my place. I've had a calf and a pig shot within the last month, and the next trespasser will get it in the neck."

"Don't you suppose I know a woodchuck from a calf?" demanded the hunter as he began to bristle up.

"You don't look it!"

"That's because I can't tell whether you are a man or a jackass!"

Wanted to Punch Him.

That ended the conversation, except that the farmer went out on the back platform and told the conductor in confidence that he'd give a spring lamb to punch the head of the old coon inside, who claimed to be a sportsman, but was probably looking for a chance to steal eggs. When he left the car Mr. Bowser struck across the fields toward a distant farmhouse. There were patches of snow on the ground, and he stopped here and there to look for tracks. He had come within twenty rods of the house when three men emerged from a barn, and one of them signaled for him to halt where he was. It was a father and his two sons, and as they came up the old man asked:

"Now, then, what are you doing on my land?"

"I came out into the country today in the interests of natural history," was the reply.

"And what in thunder is that?"

"Why, man, don't you know what natural history is? You have it all around you every day of your life. For instance, there's a crow flying"—

"Don't let him soft soap you, dad!" said one of the sons.

"I'll bet my boots he's been with a circus!" added the other.

Told to Go.

"Why, I can't say that I have any legal right; but, as I told you, I came out to post myself a little on natural history. I don't see why you should object to me walking across your land."

"Oh, you don't? Perhaps you wouldn't object if I came to town and walked around in your back yard? Stranger, I don't like the looks of your mug. If you ain't a bad man then I never saw one. If you ain't off my land in five minits I'll put you off!"

"Get a bump on you!" shouted one of the sons.

"Or you'll be taken with that tired feeling!" added the other.

Mr. Bowser trotted along. He hated to be driven, but he felt that woodchucks and rabbits awaited him farther on. The farmer kept calling to him to step lively until he climbed a fence and reached a highway, and then the affair was over.

Half a mile farther down the road the Nimrod found a farmer chopping wood at his gate, and he sat down on a log and entered into conversation, but not before the chopper had warned him:

"Now, then, you can't sell me no gold bricks nor talk me into life insurance, and you needn't waste your breath trying."

Denies He Is a Fakir.

"My dear man, I am no fakir," replied Mr. Bowser. "I came out here to observe and ask questions. I had an argument with a man named Green the other day."

"You look like a windy sort of man."

"Thanks, but I want to ask you a question or two, and I shan't pick your pocket while you are answering. You have seen woodchucks, of course?"

"A few."

"Then you know that when a woodchuck walks or runs he crosses his fore legs. What does he do it for?"

"He don't. Nobody but a fool would claim he did. Might as well say that you crossed your feet when walking. Where in thunder did you get that idea from?"

"No matter, but I know I'm right. You simply haven't observed the animal. Another question: Why does a rabbit run faster in a circle than straightaway?"

"He don't."

"But I claim that he does."

"Then you are a bigger fool than I thought at first. Will a barrel of cider roll faster in a circle than straight ahead?"

"What has a barrel of cider got to do with it?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he got hot.

Has Quarrel With Farmer.

"It's got everything to do with it, and don't you yell at me that way. If you are spying around to see where my hens roost at night I can tell you that I keep two big bear traps for such fellers as you."

Mr. Bowser had opened his mouth to answer when a wagon came along and four men jumped out. One was the farmer he met on the car; the others the old man and his two sons.

"Jim," called the old man to the chopper, "this feller here with a gun probably belongs to that gang of cow thieves in town, and we are going to run him in. Come on and help."

They didn't run him in, but they ran him two miles across fields and through woodland before they ceased pursuit. From then on Mr. Bowser was dead to the woodchuck and the rabbit world. At 10 o'clock at night he unlocked his own front door to find Mrs. Bowser sitting up for him.

"How about the woodchuck and his crossed fore legs?" she asked.

He made no reply.

"Do rabbits run faster to port or starboard than straight ahead?"

He clumped upstairs without seeming aware of her existence and without a whisper about divorce.

A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and while the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. It is sent free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol or harmful, habit-forming drug. Ingredients all printed on each bottle wrapper in plain English.

Sick people, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FIGURES MAKE A MIGHTY SHOWING

REPORT ON CITY'S COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

Was Presented to Commercial Club By Chairman Culbertson—Other Notes of the Meeting.

Figures on Fort Wayne's commercial and industrial strength were submitted to the Fort Wayne Commercial club at its meeting Thursday evening in a carefully prepared report by Chairman F. V. Culbertson, of the committee on manufactures and commerce. The report discloses not only the magnitude of the city's business interests, but reveals a splendid growth as well. Epitomized, the report shows a total of 1,238 business and industrial institutions and 240 manufacturing institutions, with a capital of $12,981,853 invested. During the year just passed a total of $1,012,128 in salaries was paid. There are 9,224 wage-earners to whom wages to the amount of $3,919,588 were paid in 1905, and the value of manufactured products turned out was $15,129,652.

The Report in Full.

Mr. Culbertson's report in its complete form was as follows:

Mr. President and Members Fort Wayne Commercial Club:

Gentlemen—A careful count brought down to April, 1906, shows 1,238 financial, industrial and mercantile houses and concerns actively engaged in business in the city of Fort Wayne. The number on Dec. 31, 1905, was 1,215. Upwards of 210 of these can be properly classed as industrial and manufacturing houses employing official, clerical and wage-earning forces. Many of these are small concerns, but 200 were of sufficient importance to be recognized by the government department of labor and manufacturing in its compilation of statistics in 1905. These statistics are the only late complete figures now available, and bring information of great interest and much value.

The 200 concerns referred to in the manufacturing class showed in 1905 the following: Capital invested, $12,981,853, as compared with $8,673,586 in 1900, five years preceding; per cent of increased capital invested, 49.7; officials and clerks, 961, as compared with 601 in 1900; gain, 59.9 per cent; salaries and wages paid these forces, $1,012,128 for 1905, $527,868 in 1900; per cent of gain in five years, 91.7; wage earners in these concerns number 5,224 in 1905, against 3,619 in 1900; per cent of increase in number employed for same period, 26.2; wage paid for 1905, $3,919,588, as against $2,625,544 in 1900; per cent of increase in wage disbursements for same period, 49.2. Combining the figures of officials, clerks and wage earners by these 200 industries in 1905 the total annually is now employed and receiving the aggregate sum of $4,931,716. In 1900, five years preceding, statistics were compiled from 178 concerns showing 7,129 total number employed, with aggregate salaries and wages of $3,154,402.

The cost of raw materials used in 1905 by these 200 concerns is reported at $7,545,102, and the value of all products, including custom work and repairing, is given at $15,129,652. The increase in value of products for 1905 over 1900 is given at 34.3 per cent.

The growth and development of industrial concerns in the city of Fort Wayne for the five years from 1900 to 1905 is considered remarkable in face of the fact that the government statistics show for the state of Indiana, 7,128 concerns in 1900 and 7,045 in 1905, a decrease in industrial houses of a trifle over 1 per cent.

I have just completed an investigation as to the disbursements of Fort Wayne industries located within the last thirty months by the Commercial club and the Commercial Improvement company in the new addition directly west of and adjoining the city, and find these concerns have paid out in salaries and wages the magnificent sum of $888,303.33 since they began operations. In this connection it seems proper to say that another factory in that addition is just about completed and it is expected will soon start with fifty or seventy-five people on its roll. This plant has been constructed in a modern way and anticipates the future. It is expected to employ in due course 150 or more.

The industrial activity of the past few months has caused a majority of the manufacturing concerns of the city to add materially to their forces. It is believed fair to say that more than half the plants have increased their working force, some liberally, and this taken in connection with new concerns not included in the 1905 statistical report leads to the belief that a conservative estimate of officials, clerks, wage earners and employes of all classes in the lines indicated now reach in round numbers 10,000 people receiving in salaries and wages the aggregate sum of $5,000,000 annually.

Fort Wayne as a manufacturing and distributing center certainly has reason to be proud of its records; its opportunity was never so good and I firmly believe its achievements in the future will surely eclipse anything in the past.

Yours very truly,
F. V. Culbertson,
Chairman Committee on Manufacturing and Commerce Fort Wayne Commercial Club.

Will Name a Committee.

Judge S. M. Hench, Judge B. W. Skelton, Capt. Scott Swaun and Charles Jose were present at the meeting to request the Commercial club to name a committee to go to Lafayette in May and assist in securing the 1907 encampment of the Indiana Grand Army of the Republic for Fort Wayne. President Orr was authorized to name a committee which will co-operate with the Grand Army committee and the committee named by the city council in this effort.

The Commercial club's membership reported a roster of 340 members, an increase of 81 during the year. Secretary Hanna announced that work upon the forthcoming year book was progressing favorably, and the volume soon to be issued will be the handsomest publication of its kind ever issued in this section of the country.

DANGER FROM THE PLAGUE.

There's grave danger from the plague of Coughs and Colds that are so prevalent, unless you take Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Mrs. Geo. Walls, of Forest City, Me., writes: "It's a Godsend to people living in climates where coughs and colds prevail. I find it quickly ends them. It Prevents Pneumonia, cures LaGrippe, gives wonderful relief in Asthma and Hay Fever, and makes weak lungs strong enough to ward off Consumption, Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00. RAILROAD GUILTY OF REBATE GAME

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON AND QUINCY FINED $50,000.

Two Traffic Officers Will Have to Pay $20,000 for Violation of the Law.

Chicago, April 20.—The C., B. & Q. railroad and Darius Miller and Claude C. Burnham, officials of the road, were found guilty today in the federal court of granting rebates in violation of law. The railroad corporation was fined $40,000 and the two officials $10,000 each.

The technical charge against the railroad and against Mr. Miller, who is traffic manager and vice president of the road, and Mr. Burnham, who is foreign freight manager, was that illegal rebates had been granted to the United States Steel Product Export company, which is a subsidiary company of the United States Steel corporation, in shipping timplate from this country to Vancouver. A few minutes sufficed to procure a jury and Chester M. Dawes, counsel for the railroad company, read an extended statement in which he acknowledged that the facts as charged in the indictment were correct. He admitted a technical violation of the Elkins act and the case then went to the jury. District Attorney Morrison made no recommendation to the court. A verdict of guilty was returned at once and Judge Bethea immediately passed sentence.

WILSON AND DUNN FINED.

Made an Assault on a Stranger—The City Court.

Harry Wilson was fined $10 and costs for assault and battery and Bernard Dunn $5 and costs for drunkenness in the police court Thursday and both went to jail. They were arrested Wednesday afternoon at John Kennedy's saloon on Harrison and Columbia streets after they had made an attack upon Louis Nadig, a florist from Marion.

Dunn had his hands in the florist's pockets and when the man objected Wilson slugged him. The latter is a piano player in a resort and Dunn says he is a railroad man from Pittsburg. When Patrolman Dickson, Bailiff Strodel and Detective Lenz arrested them they put up a fight.

The case against J. L. McKee for assault and battery was continued until Saturday and will be heard by A. E. Houk as special judge.

Jack Case was fined $25 and costs for drunkenness.

THE RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

The richest man in the world can not have his kidneys replaced nor live without them, so it is important not to neglect these organs. If Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at the first sign of danger, the symptoms will disappear and your health will be restored, as it strengthens and builds up these organs as nothing else will. Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: "I have used Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease, which certainly would have cost me my life." WHY A WOMAN NAGS.

A doctor expresses the opinion that nine times out of ten the woman who nags is tired. One time out of ten she is hateful. Time's out of mind her husband is to blame.

The cases that come under the physician's eye are those of the women who are tired, and who have been tired so long that they are suffering from some form of nervous disease.

They may think they are only tired, but in fact they are ill. In such cases the woman often suffers more from her nagging than her husband or the children with whom she finds fault.

She knows she does it. She does not intend to do it. She suffers in her own self-respect when she does it, and in the depth of her soul longs for something to stop it. The condition is usually brought on by broken sleep, improper food, want of some other exercise than housekeeping, and enough of out-of-door air and practical objective thinking.

It is often the most unselfish and most affectionate of women who fall into this state, says Woman's Life. They are too much devoted to their families to give themselves enough of any healthy exercise and diversion, enough of naps, perhaps, or concerts.

A dose of Pine-ules at bed time will usually relieve backache before morning. These beautiful little gobules are soft gelatine coated and when moistened and placed in the mouth you can't keep from swallowing them. MAY OFFER PLACE TO C. H. WORDEN

AS PRESIDENT OF BIG INDIANAPOLIS BANK.

Fort Wayne Banker Had Heard Nothing of Rumors Afloat in Capital City.

Indianapolis, April 20.—It is rumored among bank officials here today that Charles H. Worden, vice president of the First National bank of Fort Wayne, will be offered the presidency of the Capital National bank, of this city, to fill the place made vacant by the death of Frank Powell.

News of the rumor in circulation in Indianapolis was given Mr. Worden by a representative of The Sentinel this afternoon, and the Fort Wayne banker was immeasurably surprised, declaring that it was the first inkling of any such possibility that had reached him. Certainly no tender of the place has been made to Mr. Worden, and under the circumstances, of course, he could not discuss it.

Since he became actively connected with the First National bank in this city, about two years ago, Mr. Worden has achieved a prominent position in the ranks of western bankers, and the rumor from Indianapolis indicates that he is regarded very highly in financial circles.

CATALPA TREE CULTURE.

Pennsylvania Company Planting 45,000 on Kosciusko Farm.

As a result of the investigations of F. I. Brown, lumber agent of the Pennsylvania company, into catalpa tree culture two years ago and his subsequent report to the officials of the company, the Pennsylvania has commenced the planting of 45,000 trees on its recently acquired farm in Kosciusko county. The trees are pure catalpa speciosa, which are natives of the lower Wabash valley. They grow rapidly and are entirely free from fungus or other defects which induce early decay. In fifteen years a tree of this specie will attain a size sufficient for a twenty-five foot telegraph pole or to make three cross ties. In addition to its almost indestructible character, catalpa speciosa is very light when seasoned and sufficiently firm to retain railway spikes a quarter of a century. Ties made of this timber, and which had been in use on the Southern railroad thirty-two years and were still in a fair state of preservation, were exhibited at the world's fair at St. Louis two years ago. Catalpa speciosa must not be confused with the low, scrubby catalpa so generally used in Fort Wayne for shade purposes and which has no value for cross ties or telegraph poles. Arboricultural statistics show that a catalpa speciosa plantation of 500 acres yielded an annual net profit of $30 per acre. The Pennsylvania company does not expect to reap a very great harvest from its small plantation in Kosciusko county, the chief aim being an "object lesson" to show what can be accomplished in the way of raising timber of this character.

RURAL CARRIERS OBJECT.

Complaint Regarding Bad Roads Made to Postmaster Hanna.

Renewed complaints concerning almost impassable highways are again being made by rural mail carriers to Postmaster Hanna, and it is said that the service over some sections of road is being maintained only with the greatest difficulty.

Some time ago, under orders from the postoffice department at Washington, one section of territory in this county was cut off from the mail delivery for the reason that the roads were not kept in passable condition, and unless there is improvement in conditions other routes are likely to suffer similarly. There is strong complaint over the condition of a stretch of the Lima road a short distance north of the city, where it is said the construction of the new Toledo and Chicago interurban line has left the highway in deplorable condition for a distance of several hundred feet.

TRACK IS COMPLETED.

(Auburn Courier.)

Mr. A. B. Nichols, the financial agent for the Toledo and Chicago Interurban railway company, returned to Fort Wayne last evening. He informed us that yesterday he disposed of a large block of bonds to Fort Wayne capitalists and that the work of financing the line was practically completed. The last stretch of track between Garrett and Fort Wayne was laid yesterday and the overhead work will be completed at once and the service into Fort Wayne will be afforded the traveling public on Tuesday, May 1. When the work at Spy Run is completed the force of men there employed will be transferred to the line between Auburn and Waterloo.

This summer will see the completion of the interurban from Waterloo as far east as Bryan and west from Garrett as far as Goshen.

MICHIGAN MEN ENJOY BANQUET

ALUMNI HOLD SECOND ANNUAL FUNCTION HERE.

Prominent Graduates and Teachers of University Were Present.

The second annual banquet of the Michigan Alumni association of Fort Wayne was held at the Anthony Wayne club Thursday p. m., and all present declared the function was a grand success. About fifty local graduates were present as were a number of the prominent instructors of the university. The banquet hall was handsomely decorated with the colors of the Alma Mater, and musical numbers were rendered during the evening by the Metropolitan orchestra. Manager Harry Somers, of the Anthony Wayne club had charge of all the details of the banquet and the menu and appointments were perfect.

Although Dr. Angell, president of the university, was unable to be present, as he was at the first banquet, the interest and enthusiasm were fully up to the first meeting. College songs were sung and college stories were told by all present in a manner that brought the old school days vividly to mind.

After the banquet proper Dr. Kent K. Wheelock acted as toastmaster and called upon a number of gentlemen for speeches.

He Brought Greetings.

Prof. Hutchins spoke on "The University." He brought greetings from President Angell to the local association and also from the others of the faculty that were not present. "Michigan university," said Prof. Hutchins, "now has 4,751 students, who represent every state and territory in the union and also many foreign countries. There are more students in the state universities of the west than in all of the private or endowed schools and our universities are not hampered by traditions which have interfered with the endowed colleges of the east, thus allowing us to develop along the lines demanded by the country.

"The state university is a great power for good. It is really endowed by the hearts of the people and it is repaying them by giving the students high ideals of citizenship, thus raising the plane of the citizenship of the whole country. It teaches students democracy, worth and not money being reckoned, and millionaires' sons and laborers' sons work side by side."

In conclusion Prof. Hutchins urged that the states base the endowment for their universities on the valuation of the state and allow it to increase with the value of the state and closed with an appeal to the alumni to aid their Alma Mater at every opportunity.

Prof. Trueblood responded to the toast "The Students" and said that he was glad to be on Indiana soil. He paid the state, its inhabitants and its institutions of learning a number of compliments and said that the Hoosier public school system is the best in the world. He devoted much time to athletics in the university and said that all the evils of football have been eliminated. Prof. Trueblood's speech was greeted with much applause.

Others Were Heard.

Among others who responded were: Attorney Walter Penfield, of Auburn, who had for his subject "College Friendships;" Attorney Hugh Keegan, of this city, spoke on "The Advantages of Education," and C. H. Worden, in behalf of Judge Allen Zollars, who was unable to be present, spoke on "The Fort Wayne Alumni." All of the toasts were interesting and in many cases delightfully entertaining.

The guests of honor were Prof. Harry C. Hutchins, dean of the university law school, and Prof. Thomas C. Trueblood, of the department of elocution and oratory.

A YOUNG MOTHER AT 70.

"My mother has suddenly been made young at 70. Twenty years of intense suffering from dyspepsia had entirely disabled her, until six months ago, when she began taking Electric Bitters, which have completely cured her and restored the strength and activity she had in the prime of life," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick, of Danforth, Me. Greatest rest rative medicine on the globe. Sets Stomach, Liver and Kidneys right, purifies the blood, and cures Malaria, Biliousness and Weaknesses. Wonderful Nerve Tonic. Price 50c. Guaranteed by Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

William Fike, a well known farmer near Corunna, DeKalb county, committed suicide Thursday morning by firing a bullet into his abdomen, dying three hours later. Fike arose in the morning and went to a field to sow a quantity of timothy seed before firing the shot. His son, who heard the report of the pistol, rushed to his father's side in time to prevent him firing a second bullet. Fike left a letter in which he indicated that the cause for the act was indebtedness and domestic trouble.

CURED HEMORRHAGES OF THE LUNGS.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar, and my lungs are now as sound as a bullet. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stops the cough and heals the lungs, and prevents serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes. Dreier & Bro.

GRAVEL ROAD NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following petition has been certified to the auditor of Allen county from the auditor of Adams county for the improvement of an unimproved highway under the act of 1905, approved March 7th, 1905 (see acts 1905, page 457); the same will be heard May 7th, 1906, at the Court House at Decatur, Adams County, Indiana, said petition being as follows, to-wit:

To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of Adams County, Indiana:

We, the undersigned, all resident freeholders and voters on Root Township, Adams County, Indiana, and of Madison Township, Allen County, Indiana, most respectfully petition your honorable body to cause to be built and constructed a stone road on and along the following route, to-wit: Commencing at the northwest corner of section six (6), Township twenty-eight (28) north, range fourteen (14) east, thence running east on the public highway known as the county line road, a distance of one mile and terminating at the northeast corner of the section six (6), Township twenty-eight (28) north, range fourteen (14) east; said road thus sought to be improved and macadamized is on the line dividing Adams County, Indiana, and Allen County, Indiana, and is part of the highway at the south side of Madison Township in Allen County, Indiana, and said highway is at the north line of Root township in Adams County, Indiana; the said highway sought to be improved at the commencement thereof is connected with a free gravel road known as the Kocnemann Gravel Road and at the terminus said highway thus sought to be improved connects and is connected with a free gravel road known as the Williams Branch Gravel Road. Said highway thus sought to be improved is an unimproved highway and does not exceed three miles in length.

Your petitioner further ask your honorable body that said highway above described be graded and drained, and that broken stone be placed upon the grade and that there will be built, constructed and made upon said highway what is known as a macadamized road, and your petitioners further show that the public highway sought to be improved is a highway already established and is what is known as a dirt road, and is situated as above described on the line dividing Adams and Allen Counties, in the State of Indiana.

Your petitioners further ask that said road, as above described, be graded to a width of —— feet and that broken stone be placed thereon to a width of —— feet and to a depth of —— inches. The name of said road above described shall be called the Joint Root and Madison Township road.

We ask that said improvement shall be paid for by bonds issued by the counties of Allen and Adams, in the State of Indiana, payable in twenty semi-annual installments or series, for the payment of which we ask that a tax be levied upon the taxable property of Root Township, in Adams County, Indiana, and upon the taxable property of Madison township, in Allen County, Indiana, in a sufficient amount to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as they may become due, that said road be built and that said bonds be issued and that said tax be levied upon said property of said townships, heretofore mentioned, in accordance with the acts of the legislature of the state of Indiana, now in force and passed in the year 1905, page 493, and approved March 7th, 1905.

CANNOT BEAT THE HEN.

Incubators Will Never Entirely Take Her Place.

(Miller Purvis.)

Notwithstanding the enormous sale of incubators, a very large percentage of the poultry of this country is still hatched under the hen, and very good results may be obtained if proper care is taken of the hens during the time of incubation.

My plans, when I used hens for hatching, was to give them a room by themselves in the poultry house. I made nest boxes of the packing boxes in which canned tomatoes or fruits were packed, a box for each nest. One side was taken off except three inches, which was next the bottom of the nest and held the material in place.

A nicely hollowed out nest was made of ordinary soil, and on this was placed an inch of hay or straw. The nest should not be hollowed out too much, as this will cause the eggs to roll to the center, and the weight of the hen will pack them so tightly that danger of breakage is always present.

I always set five or six, or more, hens at a time, as it is no more trouble to care for a dozen than for one. The hens were placed in the nests with the open side turned to the wall to keep the sitters from getting off the nest. Each day at noon the boxes were turned around and each hen taken off the nest whether she wanted to come or not, and the boxes placed so that they could not return to the nests until I wanted them to.

Corn, fresh water and grit were always provided for them in the big room, and a box stood in one corner. The hens were given thirty minutes in cool weather, and from that to an hour in warm weather to eat, drink and dust themselves, and then each was returned to her nest until the next day at noon.

When the chicks began to hatch they were taken from all the hens but one, and placed under that one. As soon as she had fifteen chicks no more were given to her, and another was chosen as the mother. As chicks were taken from a hen and given to another, eggs from under the hens given chicks were transferred to the one the chicks were taken from. This plan was continued until all the chicks were hatched; each hen having as nearly fifteen chicks as the number hatched would allow.

This usually left a part of the hens without chicks, and these were put back into the yards, or re-set, as a hen will sit contentedly six or nine weeks if her chicks are taken away as soon as hatched and replaced with eggs. This is not cruel as a hen has no notion of time and enjoys sitting. A hen gets poor the first three weeks she sits, but takes on fat after that.

If this plan is followed a large number of chicks may be brought out with but little trouble, and shutting the hens on the nest makes it impossible for them to change nests, double up, or get into a fight and break the eggs.

WATER FOR THIRSTY TREES.

A single oak tree of the larger varieties will lift (and use if it can get it) 150 tons of water during the months it is in leaf. One hundred and fifty tons! Think of it, and then resolve to treat your trees better hereafter. Giving trees a sufficiency of water to drink does not necessarily mean irrigation or the lugging of water in pail, or the hauling of water in barrels. There is an easier way than that, a more common-sense way and a cheaper way:

Allowing that the rain fall is sufficient in annual quantity in a given locality the problem is simply this: To conserve, that is, to hold and store nature's supply of moisture so that the trees can readily draw upon that supply day by day as thirst requires. The handiest and most inexpensive receptacle in which to store such a supply is in the ground where the trees' roots are. But water strays, unaided in such a receptacle. The farmer must provide a cover for the receptacle. This cover, in practical terms, may be in the form of a mulch or "dust blanket," the latter being preferable usually.

Cultivate the soil around your trees; keep a two-inch dust cover there during the growing season, and your trees will not be apt to be thirsty at any time.

SNAP SHOTS OF THE FARM.

Clover is, and will continue to be, the surest anchor of successful agriculture in the north, and the man who is careless and indifferent about it, or has a wet, acid soil where it is extremely hard to get a stand, must look about and correct the trouble. If he does not, the time will certainly come when he will be forced to the wall.

A very handy implement can be made from an old hoe—one that has had its day. Bend it out straight so that the cutting edge will be in line with the handle. Sharpen it up to a good edge. It makes several tools—one for chopping up icy spots, scraping boards in barn, cutting strawberry runners; also for getting up turf into squares.

BETTER GROW FROM SEED.

Plants Will Be Stronger and Give Better Satisfaction.

(Emma Clearwaters.)

It is cheaper and better to grow plants from seed than to buy from the florist. Procure the seed early. If possible, sow during March. File the hard shell just through in one place, then soak in very warm water, until the seed swells. Plant in good soil, keep very warm, and moist enough and the shoots will soon appear. Now, if the plants are kept growing briskly until settled, warm weather comes, then are placed in a sunny bed of rich soil and kept watered well, the bed will be a revelation of tropical growth and bloom by the last of July. If the seeds are not filed, pour boiling water on them. Some will pop upon the first application; these should be removed to warm water to soak and swell, and more boiling water poured on the others. Some will need a dozen boiling baths before the tough shell will break. When popped, soaked and swollen, plant as directed above.

Fine blooming geraniums are grown from seed in four or five months, and if the seeds are soaked until swollen, then planted in warm, moist soil, some plants will appear in a very few days. These should be transplanted as soon as the second pair of leaves appear, and the seed box kept moist, for some will be weeks in appearing.

Abutilon seeds are a little slow to germinate, but they are sure, and if the seed box is kept moist and warm, success is certain. The seedlings are quick and profuse bloomers. Hibiscus seed are as easy to germinate as most of the common flowers; seedlings are quick growth and healthy. The seed of impatiens, coleus, begonia, nicotiana, fine double petunia and some others are fine as dust, hence the trouble. The seed-bed must be of fine, loose soil, sifted; the seed grooves a mere line. Seed must be slowly and carefully dropped, if possible, and the merest pinch of fine sand sprinkled and lightly pressed over them. Cover with glass and set in a warm place. If watering is necessary before plants appear, do so by setting the box in a pan of warm water until moisture appears on the surface.

Give air and light as soon as first plants appear, else the loss will be great from damping off, or rotting off at the surface of the soil. The plants will of course be very tender and tiny at first, so great care is needful as to watering and protecting from drafts, but soon they will be sturdy enough to transplant. The soil for all greenhouse seeds should be baked in an oven, or scalded, to kill all weed seed. The finer prize chrysanthemums may be grown from seeds, easily, and will bloom in the fall.

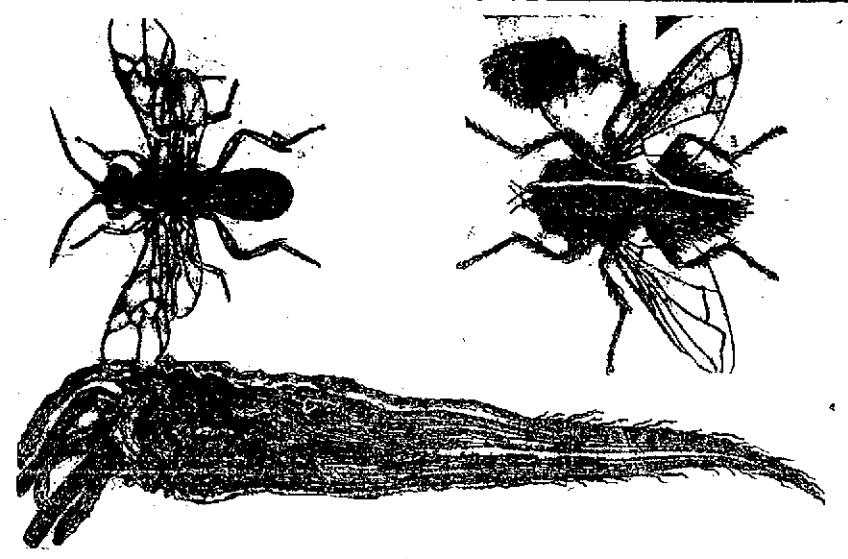
It is not difficult to grow any or all of the above plants from seeds, if right care is given but do not expect to sow the green-house seeds as you would radishes or sunflowers and achieve success. Better save your money or buy one plant. Fine dahlias are grown from seeds, and these are easy, for the seed is coarse and quick to germinate.

Some people seem to thing that growing corn on the land makes it richer, but it does not add one iota to the fertility of the soil; however, the grain crop that follows a well cultivated corn crop is usually a good one. This is caused simply by the excessive cultivation and stirring up that the soil particles receive. The rubbing, scratching and grinding which the cultivator has given them liberates the plant food which goes to feed the succeeding crop of grain. This naturally leads one to believe that the soil has been made richer, while in reality the soil has only been made to yield up more of its locked up plant food.

Don't feed the calves from the trough at the same time. Calves, like men, do not all drink at the same speed. One will gulp down three times as fast as another when all are fed together. One gets three times as much as he should while another gets only half as much as he needs. This isn't all, the calf that gets the small allowance goes hungry, yet is more fortunate than the one that gets too much, for he is blessed with a good digestion, while the other suffers with the stomach ache, and is inconvenienced with a big middle.

Nothing adds quite so much to the appearance of the homestead as a smooth, green lawn. If the ordinary lawn is closely examined it will be found to be full of little hillocks and depressions. These may be gradually worked out by putting a thin layer of rich soil in the depressions, letting the grass grow through it, and repeating the operation until the whole is level. Mow the lawn frequently, but do not sweep or rake off the clippings. Leave them where they fall from the lawn mower and they will wither and settle close to the ground, fertilizing the soil as they decay and making the sod velvety and springy. Under this system the lawn should be mowed every week or oftener.

Cucumbers and melons are given a bad name because the cucumbers are not eaten when freshly picked and the melons are picked before they are ripe. These things eaten fresh from the vines in moderation are distinctly wholesome instead of producers of pain and discomfort.



THE CORN EAR WORM.

It seems certain that the usual method of passing a winter is as a pupa, under the surface of the ground. The adult moth comes out in spring and being very active flyers wander where they will in search of nectar-bearing flowers or suitable plants upon which to place the eggs. When corn is the object of attack the eggs are laid on the silk, though the early brood of moths often deposit them in the terminal growing part of the plant, in which case the caterpillars eat the leaves and tassel and are called "Shatter-worms." The great majority of the eggs are laid on the silk and the larvae work down the silk, or bore directly through the husk to the forming ear, where they burrow out through the husk and enter the ground to pupate. There are a number of broods during the summer, the last brood passing the winter in the pupa state and emerging as adults in the spring.

BOIL WASH FOR SCALE.

Experiments Show That Somewhat Better Results Are Obtained Than When Unboiled.

Lime, sulphur and salt wash for the destruction of the San Jose scale is generally boiled and applied while hot. However, as the spray is forced through a nozzle of the proper size, is cold when it reaches the tree, there has been much doubt as to whether it has been more effective than a wash made without boiling.

Prof. C. O. Houghton, of Delaware, has recently made some experiments with both [illegible] which show that both adhere well, and no injuries result to the trees from the use of either. Very few scales are found on the trees treated with the boiled wash, while those treated with the unboiled wash were somewhat infested. The composition of the washes differ somewhat, the boiled wash being composed of lime ten pounds, sulphur five pounds, caustic soda one and a quarter pounds, water fifteen gallons; the unboiled wash is composed of lime five pounds, sulphur five pounds, salt five pounds, water fifteen gallons.

The best results were obtained by boiling for sixty minutes, although there were considerable causticity and sulphur in solution when the mixture was boiled for fifteen minutes.

Prof. Houghton makes the following conclusions from his experiments: The sulphur should be added to the salt and lime. The ingredients of the wash should be boiled in as large an amount of water (not exceeding the amount that would be used to dilute the wash for spraying) as can be conveniently used. When copper sulphate is used, it should be added to the lime and sulphur solution at the rate of two pounds or less to fifteen each of lime and sulphur.

The wash should be applied as soon as possible after being prepared, but in case application cannot be made before crystals form in it, these may be strained out, dissolved in hot water and the solution added to the original wash, without impairing its value.

GROWING HORSERADISH.

Growing horseradish, one of the hardiest plants on the earth, is so easy that one would naturally expect to find a plentiful supply at all times. But this is not the case. This spring horseradish has been imported into this country from Germany and has been sold for as high as $10 a barrel (800 pounds,) which usually brings two to four dollars.

It is so easy to grow that it is a very profitable crop for those who live near the larger towns. The small roots are cut into six inch lengths and planted with the upper ends an inch or two below the surface. These at once develop a top and a root system, and by fall are ready to dig. The large roots are used for market, and the smaller ones for planting next year. The roots for market are trimmed and washed and sent to market in old barrels. The seed roots are cut into lengths and buried in sand or mould until spring. The top ends are squared so as to avoid planting upside down.

Horseradish makes a good second crop after early cabbage and other early crops, occupying the whole ground, after the first crops are taken off, and continuing to grow until freezing weather.

The big cities furnish an unfailing market for horseradish roots and they are easily kept until late in the spring after being grown.

TO FORCE EARLY STRAWBERRIES

Experiments at the forcing house of the horticultural department at the State University of Illinois go to show that bone meal is superior as a fertilizer for producing earliest and largest yields. Brandywine and Sample Strawberries were potted for the experiment January 6 and kept at a temperature of 40-45 degrees F. for the first week, after which the temperature was raised. The first picking was from Brandywine March 19. The experiment was conducted to determine the value of bone meal, ash and nitrate of soda in forcing under glass. Results as to yield, texture and flavor cannot be determined at this writing, except in an approximation. The bone meal gives by far the earliest berries and the darkest foliage. The ash (applied for its potassium content) gives the next best yield, and the nitrate of soda yield is poorest.

GET READY SEED POTATOES.

Sort Out and Treat With Corrosive Sublimate.

(F. O. Sibley, Massachusetts.)

As warm weather approaches, potatoes for planting should be sorted and kept in a cool place to retard sprouting. For the more the seed sprouts the less vitality it has, and that, of course, is a serious hindrance to obtaining a large crop.

What sort of tubers should be selected?

Generally speaking, those which are smooth, clean and uniform, and of medium size. These, as a rule, give the best results, and for the sake of economy they should be cut to two or three eyes; or, if seed is high-priced, or some large premium potatoes are wanted, to one eye. This will give the largest potatoes and fewest in the hills possible.

Otherwise, the cutting of potatoes for seed depends entirely upon the land. If it is fertile and in good mechanical condition, one eye to a piece will often produce as large a crop as if the whole tuber were planted. In truth, the only advantage of planting the big pieces or whole potatoes is to furnish the starting plant with food from the parent seed. Hence, in rich, properly prepared soil, this would not be so necessary as in poorer ground; there it is of inestimable benefit. The fact remains, nevertheless, that a whole potato will start more quickly even in rich soil than from one piece, but not enough to justify its being planted altogether, for in the end just as good a crop can be raised on rich land from two to three-eyed pieces as from whole potatoes.

Cut, or not, however, the seed should first be treated with a corrosive sublimate solution made by adding to eight or ten ounces of corrosive sublimate—this, remember, is a deadly poison and must be handled with care—a gallon of boiling water and stirring the mixture until the sublimate is thoroughly dissolved. Put, then, into a tight barrel, add fifty gallons of cold water and stir the whole thoroughly again. It can next be divided into different barrels, each holding enough to cover a lot of potatoes that have been placed in a gunny sack.

They should thus be allowed to remain in the mixture an hour, and the sacks agitated occasionally in order that the potatoes may become thoroughly wet. It is more convenient, however, to put the whole mixture into a handy tank, so that the potatoes can be emptied directly into the liquid.

At the end of an hour they should be removed and spread on a drying floor, so constructed that the potatoes can drip and the drippings in some way be saved. When dry they are ready to cut and plant.

It is very plain why the little mill on the creek has gone into disuse when we learn that last year 100,000,000 bushels of wheat was sent to the two cities of Duluth and Minneapolis for milling purposes.

To kill a tree without cutting it down: Girdle the tree a few feet above the ground with an ax in May. The trees die at the roots better then than at any other time of the year, and better than if cut down.

CULTURE OF THE DANDELION.

Growing in Popularity as a Potherb It Brings Good Prices.

The cultivation of the dandelion has been done in an experimental way very thoroughly, and according to experts the dandelion, like celery, is at its best when grown rapidly on rich, sandy loam. The seed should be sown in the early spring in drills twelve to fifteen inches apart and covered one-fourth to one-half inch deep. As the young plants are small and dark in color, and therefore inconspicuous, it is well to mix a few radish or lettuce seeds with the dandelions to mark the rows.

They should be given the same culture as carrots during the summer, except that they require thinning to eight or ten inches apart. The following spring the leaves will be fit for use, and are best when partially blanched by putting a board covering or one of boughs over the rows. The blanched dandelions are superior to those growing wild, being more tender and less bitter. The plants are prepared and marketed in the same way that spinnach is, and may be profitably grown at 50 cents per bushel, though the price received is frequently much higher.

In forcing beds the seeds may be sown in rows six inches apart, or plants may be transplanted from the field. The seedlings usually are more satisfactory. However, except in a limited way, forcing dandelions cannot be recommended, since other plants manure so much more quickly. There are only a few varieties of dandelions listed by seedmen, the most important being French Garden and Improved Thick Leaved.

Dandelion greens are very similar to spinnach and other common potherbs in composition. They contain on an average, uncooked, 81 per cent. water, 2 per cent. protein, 1 per cent. ether extract, 11 per cent. carbohydrates and 5 per cent. ash, the fuel value being 285 calories per pound. Dandelions have a more decided flavor than spinnach, which is caused by a bitter principle contained in the milky juice.

TO CURE OAT SMUT.

Unless seed oats are known to be exceptionally clean and free from smut, they should be treated before seeding. The loss from oat smut is absolute; every grain that is affected is totally destroyed not merely shriveled as in the case of rust. This may be cheaply and easily prevented by the use of hot water or chemicals. Probably the best method, and one now extensively used, is to treat the seed grain with a weak solution of formalin.

Secure at the drug store a half pound of formalin, add to it thirty gallons of water. Spread the seed grain on the barn floor and sprinkle the solution over it, making it thoroughly damp. Shovel together into a pile, cover with sacking or other convenient material and leave for two to twelve hours for the chemical to act. Sow at once or spread out and dry and sow after a time.

Thirty gallons of the solution are enough for 100 to 150 bushels of grain. While the seed should be moist it ought not to pack in the hand. Formalin is often called formaldehyde. It looks like water and has a pungent odor like ammonia. The standard commercial article is known as a 40 per cent solution. It is not poisonous.

COWS MUST HAVE REPOSE.

The well-known phenomena of not "giving down" milk is the result of lack of nervous tone in the glands brought about by excitement. The udder is not a container in which the milk is ready stored up at milking time, but an organ in which the greater part of the milk is elaborated while milking or suckling is in progress, by virtue of the agitation it produces. Unless the cow is in perfect repose this secretion will not take place normally. The lesson to be derived from this is that the cow should be treated with the greatest gentleness and be otherwise free from excitement, especially during the time of milking or suckling.

When out in the woods at work, the head of the ax stuck fast in a stump or log makes a good place to do any riveting that may be necessary. A small hammer that can be carried in the pocket is handy to have at such times, too.

Many a cow learns to kick because the milker does not keep his finger nails properly trimmed.

MILKING MACHINE TO STAY.

Recent Tests Show It Will Do the Business.

The milking machine has come to stay. An exhibit of a machine at the recent dairymen's convention in New York showed this fact very plainly. Dairymen from every part of the state and even from the good old state of Maine were present to witness the workings of this wonderful machine. The four cows which were to be milked stood on a flooring of sawdust and shavings and seemed to be for the most part well satisfied with their surroundings, although the inventor of the machine more than once told the spectators, who crowded noisily up about the stage, that if they would keep more quiet the cows would do better; that they were knowing animals and understood as well as anyone what was going on.

Two performances were given every day, the first at four o'clock in the morning and the other at the same hour in the afternoon. It is safe to say that the operation of milking was carried on with little interruption at the early hour first mentioned. But the afternoon exhibitions were always witnessed by a host of interested spectators.

The milking machine is a simple affair, consisting of a large pail fitted with a cover at the top, and on this was located a small engine, running either by gasoline or electricity. From the engine radiated a number of tubes of rubber about an inch and a quarter in diameter, at the outer end of which were four rubber handles, hollow, to fit up over the teats, and long enough to take in the largest teat. Two sizes of these appliances were shown, to meet the requirements of large and small cows.

The handles being fitted on, the engine is started and by the power of suction the milk is drawn from the udder. The motion was rhythmical, in imitation of the working of the human hand; and so far as one could see was not attended by any unpleasant sensations on the part of the cow. Two were milked at once, one attendant caring for the two. One man could not very well care for more than two cows at a time.

The machine will milk a cow in about one minute, when worked at a fair rate of speed. At this exhibition, however, much longer time than that was consumed in order to give all a chance to witness the performance.

Now, as to the practical adaptation of this machine. Surely, the cows which were on exhibition at the New York state convention, to all appearances, were fully as well satisfied with the working of the machine as they might have been had they been in the hands of the ordinary milker, and far more than they might have been when subjected to the pulling and hauling of some farm hands who have little or no sympathy with their cows. The question of the clean milking of a cow is one of such importance that it must be taken into account.

It was said at the convention that those who did try the cows after the machine had done its work were in the main satisfied that the milking was perfectly done. If that is true, it adds much to the value of the machine.

The inventor of the machine stated that he could equip a barn of thirty cows with this apparatus for $300, and believed it would be a profitable investment for a dairy of that size.

FEED AND MILK RESULTS.

Investigation by English Expert Dairymen Show the Following Interesting Facts.

"That when a cow is in full milk and full flesh she will give her normal quality of milk for at least a limited time, even though the quality of food be very deficient.

"That when in good condition a cow will take off her body whatever is deficient in food, in order to give her normal quality of milk.

"That an extra supply of nutritious food at all times increases the quantity of milk, but the percentage of fat is not in any way improved by it; if anything, the tendency being rather the other way.

"That an extra supply of nutritious food almost invariably very slightly increases the solids, not fat of the milk. That a ration poor in food ingredients has a very slight tendency to reduce the solids not fat in milk, but has little appreciable effect on the fat.

"That with a poor ration a cow in full weight will lose carcass weight, while on a rich diet she will gain weight.

"That although the percentage of fat in a cow's milk may vary daily, we at present seem unable to control these variations or to account for them.

"That for limited periods up to one month or thereabouts, all ordinary quantities and qualities of foods seem to have no material effect on the quality of the milk.

"That some foods exercise a material effect in raising the melting point of butter.

"That the aim of all producers of milk, butter or cheese should be to feed what will give quantity in moderate amount and of a mixed nature, and the produce will be the best that the cow can give.

"That extra quality must be looked for by improving the breeds, and judicious selection, rather than by any special foods or methods of feeding.

"That the variations in the percentage of fat in a cow's milk are caused by something, but what that, something is we at present do not know, though if we did we might be able to influence the quality."

The first time a new share is "drawn out" it is safest to take the beam along with it, moldboard and all. It is quite a job to take the beam out of some sulky plows, but if you don't do it the first time the new share is sharpened you may regret it.

Some Illinois farmers are suffering loss from a most unusual cause. In several instances rats have attacked brood sows with young pigs, exhibiting a fondness for the pigs' source of nourishment. In a number of cases the teats of the sows have been nibbled, and in each the victim has later died of blood poisoning. The young pigs have also been attacked and killed.

CARE OF THE YOUNGSTERS.

Common Mistake is to Feed Little Chicks Too Early.

(V. L. Conoday.)

One of the most common mistakes of amateurs is to begin feeding the little chicks too early. As soon as they are thoroughly dry they can be taken from the nest and placed with their mother in the brood coops, when they should be provided with good sharp grit and pure water and left to themselves until they are at least thirty-six hours old.

Some well informed poultry writers claim that seventy-two hours is still better, but it is a safe rule to never give a brood of little chicks food the first time until they are hungry enough for it to manifest it by their insistent cry and restlessness that all poultry keepers have noticed when food has been withheld beyond the regular feeding time.

It is claimed that the yolk of the egg absorbed by the chick just previous to hatching is fully sufficient for the support of the chick until it is four or five days old, so the folly of feeding them as soon as they can be transferred to the brooder or brood coops ought to be evident to all.

If proper precautions have been taken to thoroughly rid the setting hens of lice by carefully dusting them regularly once a week while they have been setting and just before placing them in the brood coops with the chicks with a good insect powder, there should be very little trouble from lice, and by occasionally dusting the mother hen while brooding the chicks they can be kept practically free from lice during the early part of their lives, which is the time when most of the mischief is caused by the presence of these parasites.

Before placing the young brood in their new home the brood coop should be thoroughly sprinkled with kerosene oil to prevent red mites from getting a foot-hold. This is a very important precaution to take in cooping the chicks and no one can fully appreciate its importance until they have seen the havoc these little pests can work in a brood of young chicks. Each time the coops are cleaned they should be sprinkled with the oil and the red mite will have no opportunity to infest them.

PIN FEATHERS.

The modern hen trained to lay more naturally sits less, hence the incubator grows more necessary.

The poultry and poultry owner that scratch round lively will later have something to cackle over.

Any old scrub hen will lay in spring. You show your skill by producing fowls that lay in winter, too.

Some uncultivated people do not know the taste of good eggs or they would demand them and take no others.

Unfortunately, those who let fowls get overloaded with vermin, are not those who read about cures or try them.

Have as little struggle as possible when giving a fowl medicine, or you may get it down her windpipe and choke her to death.

While chicks are being conveyed from nest to coop, wrap in a cloth sprinkled with coal oil. Later by some days, grease very lightly with lard and coal oil.

Our western corn yellows the plumage and legs of birds fed on it. This bothers exhibitors of white plumaged breeds, but eastern breeders are troubled to get color enough in the legs of their Plymouth Rocks, etc., since their corn is paler.

Do not keep all old hens. Let pullets take their place, except for breeders and mothers.

Some ailing fowls got accidental access to borax and ate it. They got better, so a correspondent wishes to know if he better feed borax regularly. No, it is a medicine. The sick need remedies. The well may be made ill by drugs. Borax is a purifier and sweetener, and would be good for diorrhea caused by decayed food.

It seems singular that 100 hens produce in egg shells about 137 pounds of chalk yearly, and yet not a single pound of that substance, or perhaps even an ounce, exists on the farm, or anywhere about the house within the circuit of the hens' feeding ground. But the material is found in the sand, pebble stones, brick dust, bits of bones and so forth that they pick up miscellaneously.

FRINGED BROME GRASS.

A perrennial grass, with slender, leafy stems and a broad, open panicled, drooping head. This grass is hardy and well adapted to many soils of the western states.

It is now recognized that spraying is essential to successful growing of cucumbers. The picture shows a cheap and effective sprayer which will cover a great deal of ground in a short time.

TALES TOLD BY THE REFUGEES

Persons Who Escaped From San Francisco Have Interesting Stories.

The Ludicrous Occurs Side by Side With the Most Heart-Rending —Some Experiences.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 23.—Scores of Salt Lake people were in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake and many of them returned home yesterday, bringing a mass of information. E. J. Daly, a wealthy mine owner, escaped with his wife and four children. He left the Charlemagne hotel in his automobile, but the police made him give it up to carry the wounded. Nevertheless he says:

"The policing of the city was perfect under the circumstances and I want to give unstinted praise to the chief and his brave men. We finally got over to Oakland and in a half starved condition entered a restaurant there. Six of us ate a hearty meal and the check was only $1.50. We were astonished, but it is the law among those people that no more than cost could be charged any one from San Francisco. Finding our eyes affected by the heat and ashes, we sought an oculist who treated us with more than ordinary care. When he finished I asked for the bill and he said: 'No, sir; we charge nothing to the people who came from that awful trial over yonder.'"

Freaks of the Quake.

Another arrival describes a number of queer freaks of the earthquake. In the midst of ruined buildings stood a house of three stories, which had been lifted on jackscrews and timbers to make room for another story beneath it. It stood apparently unharmed by the shock. Not a piece of the underpinning was displaced. One of the churches on Vanness avenue had a mosque-like dome. The building was blown down, all the walls falling away, but the steel structure, invisible at a distance, remained supporting the dull gray dome, which seemed floating in the air like a balloon. Two theatrical people were in a hotel in Santa Rosa when the shock came. The room was on the fourth floor. The roof collapsed. The women were thrown from the bed and both were caught by the descending timbers and pinned helplessly beneath the debris. They could speak to each other and could touch one another's hands, but the weight was so great that they could do nothing to liberate themselves. After three hours rescuers came, cut a hole in the roof and both were released uninjured.

Recovered His Cash.

A man had in his room a pocketbook containing $100 and his card and a pair of cuff buttons. Both were restored to him before he left Santa Rosa. Among the queer sights witnessed by this narrator was a lone woman patiently pushing an upright piano along the pavement a few inches at a time, an old man riding a bicycle and carrying a sky terrier, the only thing he had saved, and a woman lovingly embracing a Japanese doll. He also heard a guest berating the proprietor of a hotel five minutes after the shock, because he had not been awakened at 5 o'clock, according to instructions. The guest vowed indignantly that he would never stop at that house again, and he never will, for the hotel is not there.

Incidents at Stanford.

Miss Ida G. Bothwell, a student, tells of incidents at Stanford university. A girl was dressing in one of the sorority houses when the floor gave way. Her companion looked up, saw that she was gone, and shrieked: "Where are you, Mary?"

"Oh, I am in the parlor," replied the girl, calmly, as she wriggled out of the heap of plaster and mortar below. One man, at least, according to Miss Bothwell, missed what would have been the opportunity of a life time, because he did not wake up. Although the fraternity house was almost razed to the ground, this man, whose name she did not learn, slept on and was still sleeping when they rescued him from the ruins.

"The fortunate thing about the earthquake is that it did not occur in the daytime," said Miss Bothwell. "In that event the result would have been terrible. The structures that are mostly occupied by classes were completely destroyed and the loss of life would have been great."

Some Ludicrous Scenes.

"There were ludicrous scenes even in the saddest hours and I cannot forget them," said L. E. Ryter, a Salt Lake mining man. "I never saw so many parrots, canary birds, mocking birds and pet dogs together in my life. I saw a pet dog on the seat of an automobile, the owner of which would not stop to take in a wounded man on the sidewalk. One thing in particular will always remain in my memory. On a pile of bricks, stones and rubbish was thrown the body of a man shot through the heart and on his chest was pinned a placard: "Take warning." It was a most effective way to terrorize those who would steal or make trouble.

"I met one poor crazy woman who stopped us to say that they had killed her husband and might as well kill her. Then she changed her cry and said she was a cow and asked us to take her away. Our hearts were convulsed with pity, but what could we do? We left her talking to the next comers and could only hope that those finally in authority would care for her."

The Spirit That Conquers.

"It was grand to see the spirit of the men who had lost fortunes themselves in cheering up the poorer ones who had lost things of no great value. "Why, I lost $200,000," said one. "What is your baby carriage to that? Cheer up, it will all come out in the wash." The acts of some of the express and carriage drivers, however, were outrageous. I witnessed one case in front of the St. Francis hotel. After much parley, a man got an expressman to agree to take himself and wife to the ferry for $20. A bellboy ran out and said: "What yer doin'? That feller over there's got $50 for that trip." So the man had to pay $50 or walk. His wife could not walk, so he paid it."

Pressed Into Service.

Dr. George V. Schramm, a young medical graduate, says:

"As I was passing down Market street with a new found friend, an automobile came rushing along with two soldiers in it. My doctor's badge protected me, but the soldiers invited my companion, a husky six-footer, to get into the automobile. He said: 'I don't want to rise and have plenty of business to attend to.' Once more they invited him and he refused. One of the soldiers dropped a gun on him and said: 'We need such men as you to save women and children, and to help fight the fire.' The man was on his way to find his sister, but he yielded to the inevitable. He worked all day with the soldiers and when released to get lunch he felt that he was able conscientiously to desert and go and find his loved ones."

WOMEN SAVED THEIR MONKEY.

Portland, Ore., April 23.—Mrs. Jacob Babler and her two children, who were among those arriving on the Southern Pacific free train yesterday, in telling of their escape said that among the frightened crowd which surged toward the ferry just after the earthquake she saw two grayhaired women carrying a monkey in a cage between them. Another woman with hardly a stitch of clothing upon her carried two bird cages. At one time a lunatic ran past them with staring eyes shrieking "It's the alarm clock." Again they saw a woman jump from a second story window onto a stone sidewalk.

WILL NOT RELEASE PASTOR.

After the morning service at St. John's Lutheran church Sunday the congregation held a meeting and met Prof. Sites, of the St. Paul's Lutheran church, in Detroit, which recently called Rev. Dannecker to its pastorate. Prof. Sites endeavored to gain the congregation's consent to the transfer of its pastor to Detroit, but without avail, and it was unanimously resolved not to accept his resignation under any circumstances. Rev. Dannecker is deeply loved and highly respected by his flock in this city.

EDWARD MERTENS BADLY INJURED

HIS SKULL WAS FRACTURED IN RUNAWAY SUNDAY.

Is in a Dangerous Condition But It is Hoped That He Will Recover.

Edward Mertens, 18 years old, of 1217 Liberty street, had his skull fractured Sunday in a runaway on Liberty street. The injured man is now at the Lutheran hospital in a semi-conscious condition and while his hurt is very serious the doctors think that unless further complications develop he will have a chance of recovery. He was operated upon Sunday night by Drs. Duemling, Crull and Snyder.

Mr. Mertens had been driving and while turning the corner of Liberty and Canal streets the buggy was tipped over and he was thrown out. His feet became entangled in the lines and the horse becoming excited dragged him a considerable distance before it was stopped by Irvin Wolf. Upon being stopped the animal suddenly backed and kicked young Mertens in the forehead, fracturing his skull.

The young man was unconscious when picked up, and was removed to the Lutheran hospital in an ambulance.

TO CLEAN MATTING AND PRESERVE ITS COLOR.

To clean matting it should be first swept thoroughly with a stiff broom, following the grain of the straw, then swept cross the grain with a soft broom that has been dipped in warm water. Then wash thoroughly in warm water in which a handful of salt has been dissolved. Nothing brightens colored matting so much as the salt, and, moreover, it goes far to prevent it fading. The light colored matting should be washed in water in which borax has been dissolved.

If any grease spots are noticed before the matting is cleansed cover them with a mixture of prepared chalk wet with turpentine, which after being allowed to remain on for two days should be removed with a stiff brush. In the event of the grease having sunken in about one-eighth of washing soda added to the mixture will be effectual. Sweet milk is said to keep the matting in a good state of preservation, and it is only necessary to use the application about once a year.

Brown-Bryan.

Miss Eliza P. Bryan and John W. Brown were married at the parsonage of Simpson M. E. church Saturday evening by Rev. J. N. Cause. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will live at 1322 Lafayette street.

DISASTER DISTURBS MARKET.

California Disaster Precipitates Heavy Liquidation.

New York, April 23. The California disaster precipitated heavy liquidation in the stock market and threw into the background all offsetting influences in Wall street last week. The selling was largely to meet necessities where losses in San Francisco had left a lack. This was supplemented by unloading of large holdings of purely speculative character induced by the certainty of a fall in prices and the evident unlikelihood of any prompt revival of a general demand. This unlikelihood had already been accepted in view of the lack of response to the breaking of the money stringency. The coal strike and government measures for investigation of the coal carrying railroads had already shaken the market.

A. E. Humes, who has had an office in the Schmitz block, will soon leave for Philadelphia where he will engage in business and will reside permanently.

CONGRESS ADDS A MILLION AND HALF

Bill to Further Relieve Earthquake Sufferers Promptly Passed.

WILL SOON BE A LAW

Senate Increases House Measure for $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 and House Concurs.

Washington, April 23.—The house concurred in the senate amendments to the San Francisco relief resolution appropriating $1,600,000. As soon as the resolution is signed by the presiding officers of the two houses, it will go to the president.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, April 23.—When the senate convened today a message was received from the president recommending the appropriation of an additional $1,500,000 to alleviate suffering at San Francisco.

The house joint resolution appropriating $1,000,000 additional for the relief of San Francisco, passed on Saturday, was laid before the senate. Mr. Allison offered an amendment increasing the appropriation to $1,500,000 in accordance with the president's request. He also offered an amendment making the fund applicable to the payment of extra mileage and transportation of troops occasioned by the calamity on the Pacific coast. In this form the resolution was passed.

The railroad rate bill was then laid before the senate and Mr. Lafollettte resumed his speech.

BURIED ABOVE GROUND.

In the churchyard of the little Middlesex village of Pinner, well known to cyclists, there stands a monument quite distinct from all those which surround it. It consists of a tall, square pyramid, overgrown with ivy, through the middle of which projects a coffin made of stone. This monument was raised by a son of his parents, William and Agnes Loudon, as the inscriptions tell.

They do not, however, tell why he chose to have his parents' remains poised in midair in the stone shell, instead of being buried in the usual manner.

It appears that his parents came into some money which was to be theirs "so long as their bodies were above the ground," says Home Chat. When they died, therefore, in order that the money should not pass into other hands, their son "buried" them in this curious manner, and despite the apparent injustice his object was attained.

WHEN ASKED AN IMPUDENT QUESTION.

The mildest way of meeting the difficulty is to deliberately ignore the question. A more severe plan is to listen with all attention and then, instead of replying, to address a remark to some one else, or, if no third person be present, to speak to the questioner of something quite unconnected with his inquiry, says Home Notes. If, being sufficiently boorish not to take the hint, he repeats the query, reply to the effect that you see no need for answering it.

NEGROES ESCAPE JAIL SENTENCES

PLEAD GUILTY TO FREQUENTING GAMBLING HOUSE.

Statute Makes a Term Imperative Under Plea—The City Court Proceedings.

Eight negroes captured in a raid of a gambling house over Manuel Curry's saloon on Lafayette street Saturday night, entered pleas of guilty to charges of frequenting a gaming house and Judge Skelton fined each of them $5 and costs and imposed no other penalty, notwithstanding that the statutes provide a fine of not less than $10 and makes imperative a jail sentence of not less than ten days.

The section under which they were charged reads as follows:

"Whoever, being a male person, frequents or visits a house or houses of ill fame or of assignation, except as a physician to treat a patient or patients, or associates with women known or reputed as prostitutes, or frequents or visits a gambling house or houses, or is engaged in or about a house of prostitution, shall on conviction, be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten days nor more than sixty days."

The attention of Prosecutor D. B. Ninde and Judge Skelton was called to the statute before the sentences were announced, and each took the ground that the charge was gaming, although the sheets at police headquarters, the affidavits under which pleas of guilty were entered and the court's docket, all show they were charged with frequenting a gambling house. The negroes were captured Saturday night by Capt. Reichelderfer, Sergt. Pappert and Patrolmen Junk and Klentz, and gave the names of Claude Anderson, William Evans, John Jennings, John H. Shaw, John Smith, William Williams, Osa Johnson and Jim Wright.

Jennings Was Wanted.

A warrant charging Jennings with the theft of two suits of clothes from Oscar Warfield had been in the hands of the police for several days, and he was fined $5 and costs and sent to jail for sixty days for petit larceny. He had previously been fined for frequenting a gambling house, and he can serve both sentences at the same time.

Manuel Curry, whose saloon has been a source of annoyance to the police, was charged with keeping a gaming house, and was fined $10 and costs, although he disclaimed any knowledge of the game which was being carried on above his place of business.

Made Another Raid.

A negro resort next door to the Curry saloon was also raided and Ida Gatewood was fined $10 and costs for keeping it. Her husband, Otis Gatewood, was in the house at the time, and was charged with associating with prostitutes and was fined $10 and costs and sent to jail for ten days, although he made the defense that he had been separated from his wife five months and just joined her Saturday night after having accidentally ascertained her whereabouts.

Lester Curry got $10 and costs and ten days while Iona Bradshaw, fifteen years old, who was also harbored in the place was put in charge of the probation officer.

The Other Cases.

Two lads charged with stealing coal from the Pennsylvania company, were turned over to the probation officer.

Vincent Miller and Charles Deford were each fined $1 and costs for drunkenness.

On the plea of his mother whom he is suporting the case of John Moritz, charged with drunkenness, was continued and he was allowed to go to work.

REV. FLEMING RESIGNS.

Rev. J. Budman Fleming, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, notified his congregation Sunday morning that he had accepted a pastorate at Chicago Heights, Ill., and asked them to join with him in asking the presbytery to accept his resignation. The matter will be acted on at a meeting of the congregation, which has been set for the evening of May 2, and a committee will be appointed to meet with the presbytery at its meeting on May 7. Rev. Fleming has made a warm place for himself in the hearts of his congregation during his pastorate in this city and his resignation is received with much regret.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanRoy, First Fort Wayne People to Reach Home.

TELL OF THE 'QUAKE

Others Hear From Friends Who Are Safe But Lost All and Ask for Immediate Aid.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanRoy, the first of the Fort Wayne people to reach home after passing through the scenes of the earthquake, which devastated San Francisco, arrived in the city Monday morning, exhausted from their long trip, but congratulating themselves upon their fortunate escape. Mr. and Mrs. VanRoy were not in the stricken city itself, but at Oakland, seven miles across the bay, where the devastation was sufficient to give the inhabitants an impressive conception of the worse horrors at San Francisco.

"We were guests at the Touraine hotel in Oakland," said Mr. VanRoy to The Sentinel today, "and the shock of the earthquake was sufficient to practically throw us from our bed. I landed on my feet, however, and hurried to the door of our room. The sensation is almost impossible to describe. The room rocked like a boat, and though it was my first experience, I instantly recognized the disturbance as an earthquake. There were the sounds of crashing glass, followed by confusion everywhere, as people tumbled from their beds and hurried into the streets.

"It had been our intention to remain two or three weeks longer, but that earthquake settled it and we determined to get out of that region as quickly as possible. The first shock was felt shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning, another three hours later. When the second shock came I was down at the wharf getting my tickets countersigned to start for home. The ferry boats made two or three trips between San Francisco and Oakland after the earthquake until they were stopped, but only a comparatively few people had come from the stricken city. We knew the destruction must have been heavy, and one young fellow who came over on the first ferry told us the city was destroyed, but we believed he was overdrawing the picture.

"Our train carried us out of Oakland eastward at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, five hours after the earthquake. Before we left I met 'Cass' Hunter on the street. He had been thrown from his bed and had injured his leg and was then in search of a physician. Within half an hour after the earthquake we could hear the explosions of dynamite in San Francisco and knew they were blowing up buildings to stop the progress of flames. By the time our train left Oakland we could see across the bay dozens of fires which had broken out in the ruined city. I am confident the report of destruction of property and the suffering there has not been overestimated. It was extensive in Oakland, though of course nothing nearly so severe as across the bay."

Get Word From Friends.

Fort Wayne relatives Monday received word from the Misses Mary and Anna Sullivan, who were in San Francisco, advising them that all were safe, but that everything in the way of clothing and personal property had been lost. Financial assistance was at once sent by telegraph and the refugees will start for home at once.

Conductor B. F. Stonecifer, of the Lake Erie and Western railroad, Monday received a message from his son, Herbert Stonecifer, stating that both he and his wife were unhurt, but that they had lost all their property. The young man was a dentist who formerly resided in this city.

Clifton B. Olds, a distant relative of Judge Walter Olds, Sunday telegraphed the latter as follows: "Lee and family safe; lost office and home; don't worry." Major Lee Olds is a son of Judge Olds and is an attorney in San Francisco.

LION ROCK, A CURIOSITY IN NATURAL STATUARY.

THE isles of Bermuda are formed of coral and along the coast and in some of its bays the action of the waves has fashioned curious shapes from the porous rock, frequently fantastic, distorted figures, but now and then one with some striking semblance to familiar living things.

Lion Rock is one of these. The resemblance is the more striking when it is viewed from a distance, and in the soft, tropic twilight one might easily conclude that he was gazing upon the crouching form of some great beast. Even viewed close at hand it is still a strange freak of nature.

Before chrysanthemums are exhibited at the various shows they are curled and frilled by specialists to make them appear to the best advantage.

Primitive Salt Making.

MANY tons of impure salt are made each year at different points on the coast of North China, extending from Tongku to Shanhaikuan and Niuchwang. The methods employed are the same in each place, and the same have been in use certainly from the time of Marco Polo's famous journey through Eastern China.

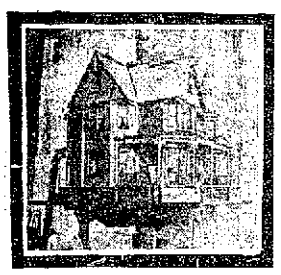
The salt is made by the evaporation of sea water. The water is pumped into the evaporating basins by wind power and evaporated by the heat of the sun. Extending many miles each way from Tongku the coast is nearly level and only a few inches or feet above high tide. On this flat coast are the salt works. The evaporating basins are made on the flats and have much the appearance of innumerable tennis courts of great size. They are separated from each other by small ridges of mud about eight inches high. The bottoms of the basins are made level and hard rolled with a stone roller. The basins are filled to a depth of three inches with sea water, which is evaporated by the heat of the sun in from one to three days, leaving a coating of salt on the bottom. This is carefully scraped into a pile, and after rerolling the bottom more water is pumped in.

These basins are located about two feet above tide level and in groups, so as to be served by a central pump. The flats are cut in all directions by small canals, giving each group water connection with the main salt yards at the railway station or the river. The salt, as fast as it is made, is shovelled into small boats, which are punted through the canals to the main yards, where it is thrown into great heaps and covered with mats, waiting to be sold and packed for the Tientsin market.

Compliment Paid J. G. Brown by Old Fisherman.

ONE summer whilst down at the seashore, said the veteran artist, I had been painting an old chap with a bushel of salt in his hat, and his two sons who were cleaning fish on the beach. Gosh! said the old fellow, on being told my name. I'd rather be that man than Julius Caesar.

HOUSE OF CORN.



HERE is a house built entirely of grains of corn. It is complete in every general detail. The corn selected for the building is of red, white and yellow, the colors being carefully blended. The house is about four feet in height. It was built entirely by Miss Bothwell, of Instant, Ill., and has been exhibited in many cities.

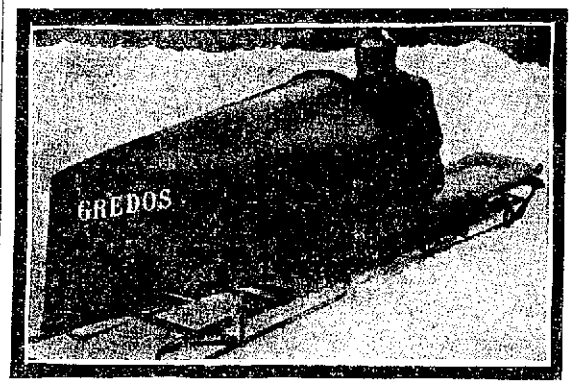
A Gliding Boat.

THE old pastime of "ducks and drakes" seems to have suggested the latest novelty in navigation, the gliding boat. The flat stone which is thrown into the water at suitable angle is seen to glide for a short space over the surface without immersion. And it appears that by giving a boat a suitable form and speed it can be made to glide in a similar way, thus avoiding a great deal of the friction involved in ploughing the water in the usual way. Attempts had been previously made along the same line without any conspicuous practical success. A Frenchman, however, claims to have solved the problem of making a gliding boat. His vessel is twenty feet long by ten feet wide, and consists of a special arrangement of planes. It is very light, the framework being of aluminum tubes. The motive power is furnished by an ordinary automobile motor of twelve horse power, and the boat carries two persons. When it starts the submerged planes plough the water. As it goes on, however, they quickly rise, and soon the boat is gliding on the surface, scarcely touching the water. It attains a speed of twenty-five miles an hour, steers perfectly, and can be stopped with the greatest ease.

When, as an incident of their trip to India, the Prince and Princess of Wales went through the Khyber Pass on December 4 they were met on their return journey by the Resident of the border tribes, who desires for a yearly subsidy to keep the pass in fortunate.

The treasures of the various Russian churches are of fabulous value. St. Isaac's Cathedral, in St. Petersburg, is said to have cost $50,000,000. Its copper roof is overlaid with pure gold. In the cathedral of Kazan the name of the Almighty blazes in diamonds from a cloud of beaten gold, under which are solid silver doors twenty feet high.

A NEW WIND SHIELD FOR BOB SLEDS.



THE principles of the automobile have been applied with success to the sled. The newest form of bobsled comprises a very slender pair of runners of steel, with a body fitted to the front of the sleigh to protect the occupant from the force of the wind. The same principle is being applied as in many racing automobiles, in which a metal wind shield conical in shape is placed before the driver. The tapering form of the shield reduces the wind pressure and thereby accelerates the speed.

The swifter bird is either the vulture, which is said to be able to travel at the rate of 150 miles an hour, or the English kestrel, which can probably equal, if not exceed, this speed.

Tomato Paste and Slot Machines.

It may not be generally known that Malta produces a very superior article in the line of tomato paste. For this commodity a peculiar fruit is required, and the climate and soil of Malta seem to be particularly adapted to raising it. Lately quite a large experimental order has been shipped to the United States, and it is expected that more will shortly follow as a result of the shipment.

Malta is a great consumer of macaroni. Lately, on account of prices prevailing for the Italian article, more attention has been given locally to its manufacture. The present product, while in many cases not as satisfactory as that from Italy, seems to be improving, the only question seeming to be that of securing the proper wheat.

The American slot machine has at last invaded Malta. A year ago only a few weighing machines were imported. These have proved so satisfactory that others have been ordered and are now in transit. One punching machine has been installed, and is meeting with good results financially. Machines delivering candy and cocoa-nuts would prove acceptable. These machines, of course, must be adapted for English money, chiefly pennies. Our metal label printing machines ought also to find favor here.

In a London hospital a wave siren is used to test what sounds a deaf person hears. When once it is discovered that a certain note is not heard or only heard indistinctly a tuning fork of this note is selected and an attempt is made to stimulate the muscle and to arouse the nerve. If the tuning fork is not sufficient the sound is increased by means of a resonator.

AN AIRSHIP PREPARING FOR FLIGHT.

PROFESSOR ALEXANDER BELL, who has conducted some remarkable experiments in aerial flights, predicts that airships will be a commercial fact before the close of the century. The thing may even come to pass sooner than the most sanguine person anticipates if energy, ingenuity and tireless experiment will accomplish it.

In Europe, especially France, experimenters are spending fortunes for the idea, so that the airship industry is an accepted institution, giving employment to thousands of persons. This great torpedo-shaped gas bag was made to sustain one of the latest motor frames.

The two together made one of the largest of airships. The whole contrivance cost a fortune. Besides it has to be housed in a structure specially built for such majestic tenants.

Goods Consigned to Tristan da Cunha Stolen.

THE curious case in which an explorer was charged with misappropriating goods consigned to Tristan da Cunha brings to mind one of the most secluded and isolated spots on the globe. Tristan da Cunha is a group of three desolate islands in the Southern ocean, no fewer than fifteen miles distant from St. Helena. When Napoleon was exiled to St. Helena these islands, which had been discovered in 1506 by the Portuguese, and were uninhabited, were taken possession of by the English, which placed there some troops as a further precaution for the guarding of all possible means of escape of the fallen Emperor. The precaution seemed absurd, and was expensive, and accordingly the troops were withdrawn. A Scotchman, his wife and two others craved permission to settle in Tristan, one of the three islands with some natural resources. The permission was accorded, and the settlement was named New Edinburgh. From these settlers, to whom were added some sailors from sailing ships and some immigrants from Cape Colony, the present population, which numbers sixty people, living under a patriarchal form of government, has sprung. They have sheep, cows and geese, and good crops of potatoes. They know little of the outside world and care less about it. Each year a British ship of war visits Tristan da Cunha with mails. This is the only fixed means of communication with the world outside of this small community, although visits from sailing vessels are of occasional occurrence. The inhabitants are said to be of a somewhat low order of intelligence—the result of the intermarriage of near relatives, and several proposals have been made to deport the children to the Cape for education and to bring in new inhabitants into the dwindling colony.

Music Before Carpets.

There appears to be a growing demand in Mexico for pianos and musical instruments. Many of those of American manufacture are popular with Mexican people, and American manufacturers of pianos and musical instruments of superior quality have a very fair opportunity for increasing their business in Mexico. The Mexicans are a musical people, and, as a rule, the so-called cheap instruments are not greatly in demand. It is a common thing there to find a high grade piano and several high class musical instruments in a Mexican home where there are no carpets on the floor and where the furniture of the house is of the most ordinary kind.

Starvation and Plenty.

THE annual rainfall in North China is most variable, both in quantity and the months in which it occurs. In the best years there is a good rainfall during April and May and a heavier one between the middle of July and the middle of September. In neither of these periods is the rainfall excessive. Then comes a year of floods, or more often a year of drought. Usually the drought extends over comparatively small areas, but owing to the lack of cheap transportation the people in the drought area are dying of starvation, while a few hundred miles away there is a surplus of crops. The construction of railways will alleviate these conditions; but in view of the present conditions all the land possible is irrigated, this being done in a most crude and primitive manner.

There have been no irrigation works constructed of any importance or size, and the Chinese government has no share and has taken not the slightest interest in this most important and vital economic question. The primitive work which is done is performed usually by small village communities or individual farmers. The methods employed are much the same in all North China, and have apparently changed none during the last two thousand years. Stone cut pictures of two thousand years ago show the people raising and handling the water in exactly the same manner as the work is done to-day, and also show that the form of the agricultural implements has not in any way changed.

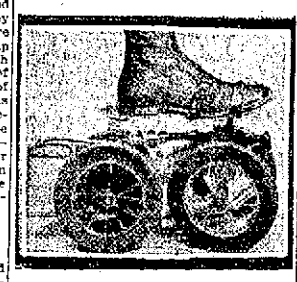
Belgian courts have upheld the will which a man named Devic, who hanged himself in Ardenne, scratched on a piece of rusty iron with a nail. He left $80 for the fire brigade at Aden "to have such a carousal as was never seen before."

AN AIRSHIP PREPARING FOR FLIGHT.

Smiles and Self-Help.

SHAKESPEARE, who studied human nature and knew a thing or two, has put it on record that a man may smile and be a villain. He might have added "healthy." The latest theory emanating from an English source is that if we want to keep well we must do our best to smile for a good many hours a day, especially after meals. There are, it is stated, psychological reasons why smiling is beneficial, which may easily be comprehended by the lay mind. In the first place it accelerates the circulation, and so aids indigestion. The same has been heard of whistling. But it will certainly be easier and pleasanter to smile than to whistle at the conclusion of a satisfactory dinner. In the second place it relieves the brain by quickening the movement of the blood through the veins and vessels. Finally, even an artificial smile produces a considerable increase of vital activity, because it heightens nervous stimulation. With all these rewards for joviality, it seems strange that the streets are not full of people roaring with laughter.

An Auto Skate.



A NOVEL form of the automobile is shown in the accompanying illustration. The auto skate, which consists of a complete auto small enough to fit the foot, is believed to have a great future. This tiny motor can be built to attain a speed of almost any number of miles an hour and yet is light enough to enable the skater or automobilist to navigate in safety and with surprisingly little effort.

Pressing Beans.

THE chief product of Manchuria, beans, is still treated in a primitive manner by many of the manufacturers of bean oil and bean cake. Even in Newchwang, which has been a treaty port for approximately half a century, the crushing of beans with heavy stone rollers drawn by mules and donkeys continues in some of the bean mills. In such primitive institutions the oil is pressed out of the pulp by hand, wedges driven by huge beetles being used.

Steam is becoming quite popular in cooking the beans after they are crushed, and in the mills that are equipped with steel steam rollers for crushing the beans the steam is used to do the cooking, but hand screw pressing machinery still obtains. Indeed, it is customary for bean mill men to discourage the use of hydraulic presses on the theory that the pressure can only be applied by hand, that it must be applied gradually, and that a trial of foreign machinery in this part of the manufacture of bean cake caused, a few years ago, heavy loss to the enterprising Europeans who attempted it, and resulted in the up to date contrivances being discarded.

At any rate, in order to render the bean pulp of the greatest value for fertilizer, all of the oil must not be extracted, and it is claimed that to know just when to remove the pressure requires great skill and watchfulness.

Wyant and the Art Student.

A GOOD story is told of the late A. H. Wyant. A young man called upon Mr. Wyant at his studio and asked him to give him some lessons in painting. "What can you do?" asked the old gentleman. "Oh, I can finish a landscape first rate, but I never know how to begin one," was the reply. "If that's so," remarked the veteran artist, solemnly puffing at his cigarette, "I think we can easily come to a bargain. I find that I can begin a picture without any trouble, but I have no end of trouble in trying to finish it. Now, if you'll teach me how to finish my pictures I'll teach you how to begin yours." And with that the old gentleman blew a cloud of smoke and went back to his work.

An Ant's Strength.

IT is, of course, generally known that the ant has one of the strongest, if not quite the strongest, body for its size in the world. Here is a novel way of testing its strength. The little ant posed before the camera in the remarkable feat of holding in midair a small globe which weighed more than five hundred times as much as the ant itself. To perform a similar feat a man would be obliged to support a weight of about forty tons.

Wallows.

SKIPPERS who have been interviewed on the subject of the disaster which happened to the Campania recently attribute it to the fact that the liner must have got into what is known in nautical language as a "wallow." This, it appears, is caused by one big wave following another before a ship has time to recover from the shock of the first. These "wallows" are said to be of sudden and unaccountable occurrence, but fortunately they are experienced very rarely. One instance is recalled in which a vessel suffered so badly from this kind of visitation that she had to return to port in a badly battered condition, and the officers turning up suddenly at home like apparitions, to the consternation of their families. In another case an Atlantic liner was suddenly "pooped," and it was estimated that a volume of water about twenty feet thick fell upon the after deck, flooding many of the rooms up to the ceiling and penetrating in all directions.

Five thousand dollars have been given by a friend to the endowed Institute of Musical Art, in New York, of which Frank Damrosch is director.

Artificial Eyes.

AS early as 500 B. C. artificial eyes were made by the priests of Rome and Egypt, who practised as physicians and surgeons. Their methods of eye-making are thus described. On a strip of flesh tinted linen, two and a quarter by one and a quarter inches, the flat side of a piece of earthenware, modelled life size and painted to represent the human eye and eyelids was cemented. This linen, coated on the other side with some adhesive substance, was placed over the eye hole and pressed down. In brief the artificial eye was worn outside the socket, and though a clumsy substitute, was probably appreciated by the Roman and Egyptians. In the ruins of Pompeii, destroyed in 79 B. C., an eye of this description was discovered.

Not until the sixteenth century do we hear of eyes at all like those of to-day, that is worn inside the socket. A French surgeon, one Ambroise Paré invented three artificial eyes. One consisted of an oval plate covered with soft leather, on which an eye was painted. It was attached to the head by a strong steel band. It could have been neither sightly nor comfortable. The second device and the first known in history to be worn inside the socket consisted of a hollow globe of gold deftly enamelled. The third eye devised by this ingenious gentleman was a shell pattern eye, much like those in use to-day, except that it was of gold and enamel.

Paré's inventions were followed by eyes of painted porcelain, and colored pearl-white, which became very popular. They were succeeded by eyes of glass, which soon took the place of all others and command popular favor to this day.

Glass eyes were invented about the year 1579 and were crude productions of inferior workmanship, the iris and pupil being hand painted in a far from lifelike manner. Shakespeare mentions glass eyes in King Lear, where the King advises the blinded traitor Gloucester to "Get thee glass eyes, and——seem to see."

Our Trade in a Nutshell.

In 1870 the United States sent wares of all kinds to Europe worth $420,000,000. Those sent to North America were valued at $69,000,000; South America, $25,000,000; Asia, $11,000,000; Oceanica, $4,000,000, and Africa, $5,500,000.

In 1901 the amounts were:—Europe $1,088,000,000; North America, $235,000,000; South America, $51,000,000; Asia, $60,000,000; Oceanica, $33,000,000; Africa, $24,000,000.

In other words, Europe took 79 per cent of our exports in 1870 and 72 per cent in 1901; North America took 13 per cent in 1870 and 16 per cent in 1901. As a matter of fact, in the thirty-four years under consideration our trade with all parts of the world, except Europe and South America, increased in percentage.

VERIFICATION OF AN ELEPHANT STORY.

ONE of the largest elephants ever killed, at least so far as there is any photographic record, is shown herewith. The hunt took place in Africa, and after the killing the giant corpse was propped up to be photographed. The animal is remarkable in many ways, and especially because of the size of its ears. The picture shows him exactly as he appeared in making an attack.

An elephant has so delicate a sense of smell that when in a wild state it can scent an enemy at a distance of one thousand yards.

To Prevent Sensickness.

ACCORDING to German papers forwarded by Consul General Guenther, of Frankfort, Mr. Otto Schlick, of Hamburg, has invented an appliance which reduces the rolling of ships to a minimum. He calls it "schiffskreisel" (ship top). It is stated that if it fills expectations it will prove of great importance, not only that seasickness would be done away with, but the efficiency of war ships would be greatly enhanced, as the hitting ability would be vastly increased. Much interest appears to be manifested in this invention in shipbuilding circles.

Recently large experiments with this "top" took place at the works of the Hamburg-American line, in the harbor of Hamburg, before a company of interested parties. Into the old torpedo boat Seebaer a ship top had been built amidships. This top has turbine paddles and is so constructed that it can make simultaneously rotating and pendulous motions. By the combined motion the rolling of the ship is to be averted. The apparatus was set in motion by steam power, making 2,300 revolutions per minute, and the result is said to have been such as to justify the belief that it would accomplish what is claimed for it.

Victim of Bad Example.

A BLEAR eyed specimen of humanity lazily arose from a bench in City Hall Park and shuffled over to where another hobo, apparently one notch higher in the social scale, was endeavoring to read a newspaper through a pair of badly blacked optics.

"Why, hello, Chicago Jim," he said, "when did you hit de burg?"

The other looked up with a guilty start. "Hello, Jack," he said. "Ten days on a cattle car from Chi. Had to leave just when I was hittin' 'em hard. Another case o' 'frenzied finance,' bo. Don't I look it?"

"You look as if you were fanned by every bull in Chi."

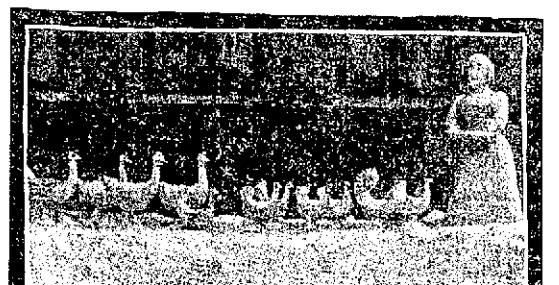
"I was, bo, but the other yeggs done it," said Chicago Jim bitterly. "It was this way:—Talkin' up up-to-date tricks, I started an insurance company fer us travellin' gents. De insurance company was to guarantees us agin jails an' watch dogs an' t' give each policy holder a fine graft route through de country. All de boss dug down in their kicks an' de company was a big success until— "

"What made 'em beat you up, Jim?"

"De boys caught me speculatin' with de company's funds at a crap game an' liquidatin' a bond issue at Casey's saloon. They investigated me with clubs and cobble stones."

If two kernels were added to each ear of corn grown in Missouri last year $200,000 would be added to the value of the Missouri corn crop. This statement was made recently by George B. Ellis, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture.

REMARKABLE SNOW SCULPTURE.



THE possibilities of sculpture in snow are greater than is commonly imagined. The remarkable group of this extremely perishable form of statuary is shown in the accompanying illustration. The flock of chickens is made entirely of snow, as is the figure of the farmer's wife who is feeding them. The carving, or, rather, modelling, was done in a colder climate than that of New York and has already had a life of several months.

Steps are being taken to utilize the 500,000-horse power of the Victoria Falls for industrial purposes, care being taken not to mar the scenery.

A WRESTLING MATCH IN THE SNOW.

DOUBTLESS the most remarkable wrestling match which has ever taken place is illustrated by the accompanying photograph. A short time ago two wrestlers of local reputation met in a hotel in the Alps, the season incidentally being midwinter. As the result of a wager these men met in a wrestling match on the snow before the hotel practically stripped. The match was carried on for some time under these extraordinary conditions. Despite the intensely cold weather and their absolute lack of protection neither man suffered from the exposure.

A fine rain and a strong sun are necessary for the formation of white rainbows. The phenomenon is due to the optical principle known as interference. If the drops of water be very small the interference of the rays causes such a complete overlapping of the colors that the bow appears white. The various prismatic colors, instead of being thrown out separately as in the ordinary prism, are thrown one on top of the other, and the light is cast by the sun on a sheet of rain. This result is still more noticeable where a fog takes the place of the rain.

Value of Dead Leaves.

A GREAT part of the suburban population of Nantes is engaged in gardening, and especially in the cultivation of early vegetables. For many years use has been made of the dead leaves which fall from the trees in the autumn, and when such can be obtained by the small farmers they are eagerly gathered and employed as fertilizers or to cover certain plants during the coldest winter months. Frequently these leaves are first used as bedding for cattle and horses, and the compost thus obtained is considered much richer than that of ordinary straw.

A writer in the Phare de la Loire shows, in a table just published, the relative fertilizing value of certain kinds of leaves, most of which are rich in nitrogenous constituents and consequently good as fertilizers. According to this writer the following are the contents of nitrogen of some of the leaves after their fall in autumn:—

	Per cent.
Pear	1.88
Oak	1.19
Poplar	.76
Beech	.78
Locust	.72
Elm	.73
Vine	.53

An interesting and valuable table might be established showing the fertilizing value of the various leaves from American trees, particularly when it is considered that in the United States such leaves are easily obtainable by the farmers, who are generally owners of some woodland where the leaves might be gathered at will, which is not the case in Europe, where forests are generally either the property of the State or of some individual park preserves.

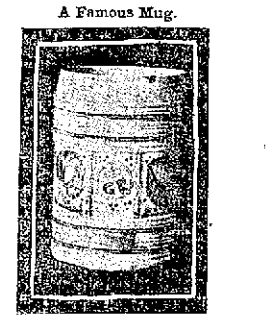
Chase Quotes a Story.

A FAMOUS English surgeon was called in to perform an operation on a very rich nobleman. It happened that one stroke of the knife was all that was needed. His fee was a thousand guineas. The nobleman paid it under protest. "You were not one minute doing it," he complained. "That's true," replied the surgeon. "I earned that fee very easily. Suppose next time you do it yourself."

Mr. William M. Chase quoted this story to a sitter who thought his charge "pretty steep" for a portrait that the artist had taken only two days to paint.

Seal skins to the number of 3,128 were shipped from Alaska last season.

A Famous Mug.



OLD English ale created a pottery and a factory for itself. It made an appeal to art that could not be denied and so there have come to us the toby and other mugs, perhaps more slightly but scarcely less characteristic.

It seems strange that while the mellow throated minstrel was singing of "brown October ale," no one, less inclined to heady beverages, sang the praises of amberine cider. Perhaps some one did, but you'll have to hunt for the verses.

Cider, however, had its pottery and here is shown a cider mug, one of the finest specimens in the United Kingdom, both as to design and manufacture. It is of white and blue and was made nearly two hundred years ago.

Greatest Copper State.

MONTANA has left all competitors far behind in the race of copper production. During 1902 the United States furnished 51.5 per cent of the world's supply of copper, and during the calendar year of 1903 Montana produced 320,497,175 pounds, or more than 40 per cent of the total production of the United States.

Butte is the chief copper producing section of the State. It is estimated that, including 1903, Butte has produced the red metal to the extent of $630,000,000. If the mines of Butte were to suspend operation for a single year there would be a famine of the metal in the markets of the world. Montana not only takes first place in production, but also in the use of the most modern machinery and the most advanced methods of mining. Splendid surface plants for hoisting, stamping, smelting and refining the immense quantities of ore are in use. The great copper deposits are apparently inexhaustible and for more wonderful achievements are predicted for the future.

In Normandy, France, there stands a modern chateau the brick of which is laid in such elaborate patterns that it gives the effect of intricate embroidery.

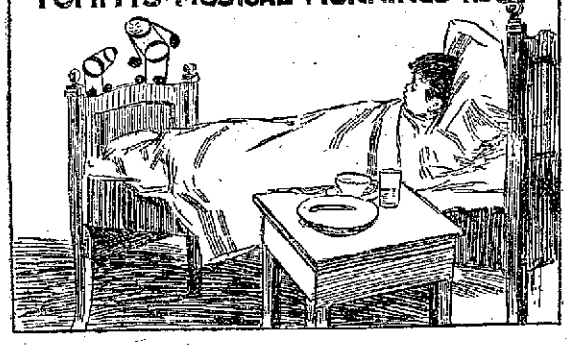
THE SPRING CHICKEN LOSES HIS TEMPER

TOMMY'S MUSICAL MORNINGS—No. 8.

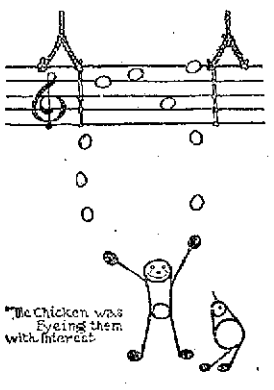


BY ALICE LATIMER.

THOMAS WORTHINGTON PAGE had been looking forward to Easter for some time. So that it was a dreadful disappointment to him when two days before Easter he was taken sick with that most disagreeable thing, the "grip."

Of course he had to stay in bed. It was very dreary. The first day he didn't mind it so much because he was feeling very ill indeed, and he was glad enough to rest. Besides, when he thought about anything at all he remembered that Friday was a hard day at school, because it meant examination, and it was also music lesson day. By having the grip just at that particular day he was getting out of both. Altogether he didn't mind lying in bed just for the first day.

But on the second day he began to feel better. You see, the doctor had been there on the first day and he had given him a delightful tonic. At least the doctor said it was a delightful tonic. Tommy didn't really care about it so much himself. Anyhow, it seemed to have a good effect on him, for he could hardly stand staying in bed on the second day.



But it was on the third day that it became so very uncomfortable to stay in bed. Tommy felt perfectly able to get up. He told his mamma that when she came the first thing in the morning to see how he had passed the night. He also told nurse Maria, when she came to help him get ready for breakfast. He told Aunt Alice when she came to sit beside him while he ate. He told his papa when he came to say "Good morning."

Somehow it didn't do any good. Everybody smiled at him. Everybody wanted to know what they could do to make him happy, but nobody said that he might get up. Instead they all declared emphatically that he must stay in bed.

And it was Easter morning, too. Tommy had an egg with his name on it and a whole nest full of little rabbits, and a picture card from the Sunday school and a new book about chickens. But it wasn't enough of a compensation. He felt he couldn't stand bed a moment longer. He refused to finish his breakfast, and he kicked the covers off his bed and went into a terrible temper.

Now, a temper is a dreadful thing for you to go into when you are almost half way toward being grown up, as Tommy was. Tommy hadn't been in a real temper such as this since he was quite a baby, and it frightened Aunt Alice so that she went scurrying out of the room in search of his mamma or papa.

"What's the matter?" said Tommy's papa.

"Oh, he won't stay in bed," said Aunt Alice. "He says he will get up."

Tommy's papa laughed. "He won't get up while you're out of the room," he said, "because he isn't disobedient enough for that, and he will eat his breakfast if you're not there; because he's hungry and he wants it."

So that was why Tommy was left all alone on Easter morning sitting up in his bed eating his breakfast.

When he had finished everything—yes, every single thing—he lay back luxuriously, for, being in a temper and eating a very large breakfast afterward, does tire one out. He felt almost glad he hadn't got up, and he began to wish Aunt Alice would come back, so that he might tell her how glad he was to see her.

"It's rather lonely," he said, a little plaintively. "I'd almost rather go to school than to be up here all alone. I'd almost rather take my music lesson."

Suddenly he sat up straighter and peered very curiously at a big patch of sunlight which fell across the bedspread. For a long time he had been a little curious about all sorts of sunlight, for he had seen such wonderful changes wrought with it.

As he watched it a curious little black speck, followed by another black speck, flitted into the very heart of the sunlight.

"Oh," said Tommy, in a satisfied tone, "then it is you, Abe, I'm so glad you've come."

The musical gymnast, for it was no other than Tommy's little friend from the music rack, with whom he had held so many interesting conversations, bowed gratefully to Tommy, and, tossing his feet gayly in the air, brought forward the curious little barnyard fowl that had accompanied him the week before.

"And so you've brought the spring chicken up," said Tommy, graciously. "I'm glad to see you again," he added, turning to the chicken.

The chicken, however, said not a word nor did he make a single motion in acknowledgment of Tommy's politeness. Instead he stared straight before him in the most vacant manner, as if he hadn't a particle of interest in what was being said.

"Mercy!" complained Tommy to the gymnast, "I don't think your friend's very polite."

The gymnast shrugged his shoulders and looked at the chicken with a rather scornful expression.

"And it does seem that if a chicken ever is polite it should be on Easter morning," added Tommy. "He ought to be so glad that he is out of the shell."

The chicken paid not a particle of attention to these remarks but gazed stonily ahead of him.

"Why, what's the matter with him? Doesn't he feel well?" asked Tommy.

Abe looked at Tommy steadily for a minute. Then he glanced significantly upward at a set of gymnastic bars which had appeared above the heads of the two visitors. There were five of these bars arranged at equal intervals from each other and held together at the end by a remarkable iron emblem resembling the letter S made backward in writing. When Tommy had observed this apparatus the musical gymnast took a number of oval shaped balls, which closely resembled eggs, from a bag and tossed them into the air. Four of them landed easily on different bars of the gymnastic apparatus. One struck the bar next the top, one rested in the top space, one landed in the space next the bottom and the other stuck on the top bar.

Tommy looked at the eggs very carefully. He noticed that the chicken also was eyeing them with a look of interest, and he wondered if he could be mistaken in thinking that a look of resentment crossed the chicken's countenance.

The gymnast glanced at the chicken somewhat maliciously, Tommy thought. Then he struck a triumphant attitude and looked expectantly at Tommy.

"Well," said Tommy, with another glance at the eggs, "that's funny, anyhow. How do you account for it?"

The gymnast glanced at the chicken again, and immediately sent several of the eggs flying up into the air.

These dislodged the eggs which were resting on the bars. Then the gymnast again sent the eggs up into the air, while Tommy and the chicken watched him anxiously.

"Why" cried Tommy, "that's funnier yet! I thought he was a spring chicken!"

Hardly had he spoken these words before, to his amazement, the gymnast threw back his head and laughed heartily.

"What's the matter?" cried Tommy.

But before the gymnast could answer the chicken began behaving in the most remarkable manner. He danced madly over to the gymnast as if he would have liked to slay him, and began tossing his feet into the air in very close quarters to the gymnast's head.

The gymnast still continued to be very much amused, while the chicken, snatching the balls away from him and catching each one as it fell, began tossing them up in the air on his own account.

In a moment he had dislodged all the eggs which the gymnast had tossed up on the bars. When they were all down the chicken kept on tossing them up in the air until three eggs rested securely on the gymnastic apparatus. One of them fell in the space next the top, one in the space next the bottom and one on the bar next the top. The chicken's eyes blazed with anger as he tossed up the eggs, but when he had finished he seemed relieved and gazed at his work rather proudly.

It was now the gymnast's turn to be cross. He looked at the chicken proudly and then glanced at Tommy, who was diligently engaged in reading the chicken's message.

When he had finished reading it he nodded kindly to the chicken and looked somewhat severely at Abe.

"Of course it isn't such a very pretty word," said Tommy, "and perhaps you shouldn't have used it, Mr. Chicken, especially on Easter Sunday, when everything should be bright and pleasant"—Tommy was quoting from his father's good morning remarks—"but I must admit that you were provoked by Abe. It's pretty hard to say that a spring chicken is deaf with age, and no one could be expected to stand it."

Tommy was glad to see that Abe was sorry for what he had said about the chicken. The musical gymnast hung his head in shame and stole side glances at Tommy and the musical gymnast.

"And as for you, Mr. Chicken, my text is, Don't lose your temper," began Tommy in his best clerical manner.

But just then he became conscious of a peculiar faraway effect in Abe and the chicken and the gymnastic apparatus. "Oh, don't go away," pleaded Tommy. Even as he said it they faded quite away. Tommy felt singularly sleepy. He wished the sun would leave his eyelashes alone, and he began to rub his eyes vigorously. Then he heard a little voice in his ear.

"Peep, peep!" said the little voice.

"Dear me," muttered Tommy, "it's the spring chicken back again and he's got a voice like other people—or like other chickens, I mean."

"Peep, peep," said the little voice.

Tommy opened his eyes. There beside him was the most attractive little chicken he had ever seen. It was downy and yellow and round as a butter ball. It was in a big basket, with a lot of straw all about it, and seemed very comfortable indeed.

Tommy's mamma bent over him kindly. "Here's an Easter chicken for you," she said.

"Is it a spring chicken?" asked Tommy.

"Yes, surely," said his mamma.

"Can it hear?" asked Tommy.

"Why, yes, I suppose so," said his mamma.

"And I don't suppose it's really very old, is it?" asked Tommy.

"Well, I'm glad of that," said Tommy, "an old spring chicken wouldn't be a bit nice."

THE INQUISITIVE PRINCESS.

A Folklore Story.

ONE of the favorite stories among one of the savage tribes of Africa tells of a princess who started on a journey with a slave attendant. The princess, being of an inquiring turn of mind, asked the slave many questions. "I will tell you," the slave would reply, "but first you must give me your head dress." Then before she would answer another she would demand another article of dress, and by the time that the princess had got through asking questions and the slave demanding things for answering them the princess was naked.

When she arrived in this condition at the end of her journey the people refused to believe that she was the princess and did believe the slave, who pretended that she was the princess. The real princess went about singing songs of her adventures and life, and people said she was crazy. But she managed to send a message to her father, who came to her rescue, stripped the fine clothes from the slave and had her put to death. The people who had been deceived were so anxious to atone for their mistake that they gave the princess all manner of gifts, but one may well believe that she did not ask so many questions of a slave again.

Season of Activity at Winona This Year

KOSCIUSKO LODGE IN WOODS OF WINONA
SUMMER SCHOOL GIRLS ON WINONA CANAL EXCURSION
HOME OF WINONA SUMMER SCHOOLS
GEO. B. LOCKWOOD
MISS HELEN GOULD
NEW PRESBYTERIAN BUILDING AT WINONA

The activity in the various departments of the Winona assembly and schools indicates that an unusual year is ahead for this summering place, the plans already being so far advanced that one may get a definite idea of the operations of the schools, the features of the program and what the assembly management has in hand in the way of permanent improvements. This will be the twelfth season that the gates of Winona have swung open and visitors who have not been to the lake for some years will see some marked changes.

That the name of Winona stands for a Christian educational movement, rather than for a geographical location, is evident in the list of activities which now bear this name. The pioneer of the Winona enterprises is the assembly, with its headquarters at the lake. At this place, too, the Winona institute, a school for boys, is having a successful winter; Winona Park school, a seminary for young women, is holding its first winter term, with an encouraging number of students from various states. The Winona summer schools, organized soon after the assembly had gained a foothold, will this year have twenty departments with more than fifty instructors.

But the assembly management, which controls all of these institutions, is now directing much of its attention to the construction of an interurban railway system, some of which will be in operation several weeks before visitors begin to arrive at the lake for the vacation period. The part of the system now under construction is from Warsaw to Goshen, a distance of twenty-six miles, the line connecting with the lake by the short trolley road which the assembly has been operating for three years. Some of the Warsaw-Goshen road is already in operation, and a new power house, to cost $300,000, is under construction at the lake. When it is completed, the old power house will be used as a car barn. Before the year has passed, it is the intention of the Winona authorities to complete the line from Warsaw to Peru. This will give Winona an interurban line seventy miles long, connecting at Peru with a line to Indianapolis, and at Logansport with lines reaching many cities of northern Indiana and southern Michigan. A line is also in contemplation between Fort Wayne and Winona.

That the Winona idea is spreading to new fields and taking on wider scope is also shown in the Winona technical institute at Indianapolis, which is practically in its first winter. But the most recent educational institution to come within the Winona fold is what is now known as the Winona Bible school in New York. Its school was made possible through gifts of Miss Helen Gould. It has a nine-story building of its own on Lexington avenue, the title to which rests in the hands of the Winona management, and Miss Gould has pledged herself to give the school $50,000 a year for five years. This school was organized some years ago with a purpose of teaching the Bible to missionaries, ministers, church workers and others who seek the deeper meanings of the scriptures.

While it has been gathering up these various properties, the Winona assembly has been expanding its holdings about the lake itself. It now owns 500 acres of ground along the lake shore and has control of 1,360 more, which places the entire shoreline of the lake under its control.

Chief among the features for visitors who go to Winona lake for a summer vacation this year will be the Thomas orchestra, of Chicago, which will give twelve concerts, two a day, beginning July 30. On Aug. 13 the Kinties band will begin a week's engagement. During the entire season the Winona band and Symphony orchestra, of about thirty men, will give daily concerts on shore and on board the steamer City of Warsaw, a new craft which will carry about 400 passengers. There will be a large chorus organized, many soloists will be on the program, and altogether it promises to be an uncommonly good season for music at the lake. Harry Pepper, of Indianapolis, and Ellsworth Phoenix, both monologists; Nellie Peck Saunders and Monraville Flowers, readers; Frederick Warde, an interpreter of Shakespearean drama; moving pictures, jugglers and magicians, bell ringers and many other entertainments will be on the popular programs.

Some of the best known reformers of the country have been engaged to speak at the lake during July and August. Among them will be Gov. Hanly, of Indiana; Gov. Folk, of Missouri; Secretary LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and probably Gov. Deneen, of Illinois. Some of the lecturers will be Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago; Dr. W. A. College, of Armour institute; Dr. Robert A. MacArthur, of New York; Dr. Robert W. Rogers, of Drew Theological seminary; Dr. W. J. Dawson, the famous British preacher and author.

The hills, woods and lake shore make Winona lake an ideal place for birds. At least 100 different kinds may be seen there during the spring and summer, and this year there will be uncommon opportunities for studying them. The teachers in nature will be Prof. D. W. Dennis, of Earlham college, Richmond; Prof. S. C. Schmucker, of the Pennsylvania State bureau; Dr. Hodge, of Clark's university, Massachusetts; Isaac Brown, "the bird and bee man." The biological station of Indiana university, one of the strong departments of the Winona school, will again be in the charge of Prof. Carl Eigenmann. All of these features of the Winona season will begin July 1 and continue for six weeks or more. The summer schools will open July 9 and continue through Aug. 18. The summer schools have been thoroughly reorganized for this year, and C. M. McDaniel, superintendent of the Hammond, Ind., public schools, is at the head of them, with Mrs. Eliza A. Blaker, of Indianapolis, as associate principal. The department heads include E. J. Fluegel, Purdue university, Lafayette, German; Prof. Charlton Andrews, Lafayette, French; W. C. Palmer, Winona Agricultural institute, agriculture; W. S. Sterling, of the Metropolitan College of Music, Cincinnati, music; W. R. Woodmansee, Winona Agricultural institute, mathematics; Miss Merica Hoogland, Indianapolis, school for librarians; Frank C. Tilden, Winona Agricultural institute, English; Jennie Ray Greasby, Indianapolis, physical culture and school of expression; Freda Schubert, Fort Wayne, swimming and fencing for women; E. F. Fenollosa, history of art; M. Ellen Iglehart, Chicago, fine arts; W. D. Ward, College of Emporia, Kan., classical languages; H. A. Goblin, vice president of DePauw university, Hebrew; L. A. Heddow, Olivet college, Michigan, history and civics; Mrs. Eliza A. Blaker, school of kindergarten and primary methods; L. D. Coffman, superintendent of the Connersville public schools, teachers' course; W. C. Smith, director of Winona Technical institute, manual training; Daisy A. Dean, Fort Wayne public schools, domestic science; Roda E. Selleck, Shortridge High school, Indianapolis, public school drawing; D. D. Haines, Wabash college, athletics; J. W. Van de Venter, Winona Lake, school of photography; W. H. Mershon, Winona Lake, band and orchestra. G. W. Worley, registrar of the summer schools, will conduct a "clearing house," where school authorities and teachers seeking employment may be brought together.

In addition to these there will be schools for bible teachers, mission work and Sunday school workers.

The Winona Bible conference will begin Aug. 19 and continue for ten days under the direction of Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, who is spending the winter in evangelistic work in the north and south. Some of the preachers and teachers who will attend the conference will be: Dr. W. L. Watkinson and Dr. John Robertson, of London, England; Archdeacon Webber, of the Episcopal church; Dr. R. A. Torrey, the famous evangelist; Dr. S. Parks Cadman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bishop McDowell, Chicago; Dr. D. G. Gregg, president of Western Theological seminary, Allegheny, Pa.; Dr. George Johnston Ross, Cambridge, England. John Mitchell, at the head of the United Mine Workers, will attend the conference relating to workingmen in the church.

Winona Lake is a paradise for tired mothers and romping children, and more than common preparations are under way for both. Some experienced adults, who make a business of being playfellows, will be at the lake to entertain the boys and girls in Indian camps, on turtle hunts and fishing excursions. For "sunbonnet babies" there will be a large play ground.

REV. J. C. BRECKENRIDGE,

Vice President of Winona Agricultural Institute.

Rev. J. C. Breckenridge is well known in Fort Wayne, where for several years he was pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church. He resigned his pastorate here to devote his labors to the upbuilding of Winona and the associated institutions.

A MATTER OF DOUBT, ANYWAY.

A young man from the south who, a few years ago was so fortunate as to be enabled to enter the law offices of a well known New York firm, was first entrusted with a very simple case. He was asked by the late James C. Carter, then a member of the firm, to give an opinion in writing. When this was submitted it was observed by Mr. Carter that, with the touching confidence of a neophite, the young southerner had begun with the expression, "I am clearly of opinion."

When this caught his eye, he smiled and said:

"My dear young friend, never state that you are clearly of opinion on a law point. The most you can hope to discover is the preponderance of the doubt."—Success.

THE ANSWERED PRAYER

By J. W. CHAPMAN

One day there was sent up to my room a card announcing the presence in the hotel office of a gentleman whose name was not familiar to me. When I met him, he introduced himself as Mr. M. He told me that his wife was a former member of my church. When I asked him about his own church connection, he said, with a good deal of bitterness; "I have no use for such things, and I am, myself, an infidel." He then began to speak so blasphemously of God that I told him he must either cease such conversation or leave the hotel. He then apologized and said that he was on his way to pawn his overcoat to secure money enough to fill a prescription which the doctor had given him for his son, who was supposed to be dying. I offered him the money, which he would not take, and with an apology for his conversation, in which he explained that his concern had almost made him lose control of himself, he went away.

The following Friday, I was speaking to men in a great assembly, when I saw this man hand a slip of paper to one of the ushers. When I opened it, it read as follows: "Will you please pray for a boy who is dying? This request is sent by a believing mother and carried by an unbelieving father." The boy had pleuro-pneumonia in its worst form. The doctor had called this morning and announced that his case was hopeless. "No human power," he had said, "can save the boy, so far as I can see."

At twenty-five minutes to one o'clock, in the public meeting, I called upon Major Cole to pray, and such a prayer I had never before heard. It seemed to open the heavens and to bring down upon us a flood of glory. He asked God to raise the boy from his death-bed that he might save the father. And this is what came as a result: Between half-past twelve and one o'clock, the condition of the boy suddenly and miraculously changed. Before the day was past, he was out of danger. In an incredibly short space of time he was moving about the house, and soon was in the city at his business.

I know the father and have met the mother of this boy. They have ever since been my personal friends. Instantly the father was driven to his knees, and in the process of time was brought to see Christ as his Savior. I saw him stand before a great assembly of Christians, and say: "God has led me from the darkness of infidelity to the brightness of faith, and I do now accept Jesus Christ as my personal Savior. He raised my boy literally from death and I cannot but believe in him."

CONSOLING.

A long haired man met a little boy who asked him the time. He replied, "Ten minutes to 9."

The lad said, "Well, at 9 o'clock get your hair cut," and bolted off.

The long-haired man, completely mystified, pursued the boy, and ran into a policeman.

"You see that urchin, policeman," he ejaculated. "He asked me the time and I told him, 'Ten minutes to 9,' and he said, 'At 9 o'clock get your hair cut.'"

"Well," answered the stolid policeman, "what are you running for? You've got eight minutes yet!"

TEMPTATION VANQUISHED

A SERMON BY REV. W. R. HUNTINGTON, D. D.

TEXT: Matt. 4: 1—"Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the Devil."

How strange that the wilderness should have been selected as the scene of a temptation! In a wilderness, which is strictly such, crime is impossible. Crime is an incident of social life, and can be committed only where there are people to be injured. Unless personal rights or property rights are invaded, there is no crime. But in an unpeopled wilderness there are neither persons nor property. Society has not planted itself there; nature, in her most crabbed mood, is in full possession. Set a solitary man down in such surroundings, and he cannot become a criminal if he tries for it is a place where custom, statute, edict, decree have never entered. Law there is none. And yet, when Christ was to be tempted, it must needs be that he should be led up into the wilderness, of all places, the wilderness.

Temptation in Solitude.

Now, pray, why the wilderness? Why not rather some city? Why not Capernaum, where the merchants would have jostled him? Why not Jerusalem, where priests and scribes, lawyers and Pharisees were ever ready with their traps and snares? But no, it is to the wilderness he must be sent. It is there, with only the wild beasts for company, there, that he must undergo his trial. He is to be tested. Son of God, though he be, there is some mysterious necessity that he should face the possibility of fall.

I spoke just now of his being led, that is, you notice, St. Matthew's word, but the next evangelist uses a far stronger one, Mark says he was driven. "Immediately the Spirit," the same Spirit, remember, which only a little while before, at the baptism, had descended upon him in gentlest guise, immediately this self-same Spirit "driveth him into the wilderness." So, then, it was by a God-given impulse that he went. That very thing which he had hidden his disciples pray may not happen to them, happened to him; he was led into temptation—a temptation in a wilderness.

I find the resolving of the perplexity to be this. The wilderness was chosen for the scene of Christ's temptation, with a view to emphasizing the fact that in the last resort the soul of man must reckon not with those companion souls who make up what we call society, but with that king to whom the allegiance of all souls is due, whether they be souls living together in comradeship, or, hermit-like, dwelling apart. We become so engrossed in our relations to one another, we are so tangled up in the meshes of the social network which covers all the habitable parts of the earth, our lives are so completely filled with the rights and duties which are strictly human, that we forget that aside from the accounting which we must make with our fellow-creatures, every one of us shall give account of his own separate self to God most high.

Alone With God.

I began by saying that in a wilderness crime was impossible. I was very careful not to say that in a wilderness sin was impossible, for sin is distinctly transgression against God, and although in a wilderness we find ourselves alone, yet, after all, it is only that sort of loneliness in which we are alone with him. We do not know, for instance, where David may have happened to be when he uttered that lamentable cry, which has become the standard note of penitence, "Against thee only have I sinned," but it is clear that there should have been no inappropriateness in wilderness surroundings. The one to whom he spoke is present everywhere, and whether David's voice was echoed back to David's ear from his palace-walls, or from the rocks of some Jordan wilderness, to which in shame and sorrow he had fled, it made no difference; the case was a case between his maker and himself. He had offended against man, but against God only had he sinned.

But this is one of the least of the many mysteries which environ that unique event in spiritual history, the temptation of Christ. Let me speak of others, not for the sake of raising difficulties, as you will readily believe, but rather in order that the intense solemnity of the thing may make its due impression on our imaginations and our consciences.

I shall not be particularly careful about the order of treatment, but shall take up various points as they may happen to suggest themselves. I should like you, for instance, to think a little while about the bearing of this strange event upon St. Paul's doctrine of the first and the second Adam. You remember what the doctrine is, for it is set forth in that chapter of the First Epistle to the Corinthians, which the burial office of the church has made so perfectly familiar; you remember, in a general way, what the doctrine is, but it may not have occurred to you to notice how much light it throws upon a multitude of questions which now, for some years past, have been harassing the modern mind.

St. Paul seems to conceive of man as having made two distinct starts here on earth; one a false start, so to speak, the other a true one. He appears to use the name "Adam," not to designate an individual, but in a representative way, as summing up the race. The first Adam is the natural man, now far lifted above the brutes we cannot say, but not far enough lifted to safeguard him against the alluring voices that address themselves to the brutish instincts in him. He is tried, and he fails. He has eyes given him to see what he might accomplish and become; but his will breaks down under the stress of trial. He is not sufficient for the life spiritual. With all his endowment of splendid possibilities, he is content to remain of the earth, earthy.

The Better Start.

Then comes in at the right time the second Adam, the Lord from heaven, "conceived of the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary," empowered to start the race afresh. He, also, must endure temptation as the former Adam did. That earlier struggle was in a garden, this shall be in a wilderness. The first man was tried on the sensuous side of his nature, this second man shall be tried on the intellectual and spiritual sides, as well, that the victory, when won, may be complete. Cardinal Newman has beautifully paraphrased St Paul's doctrine in his tender and subtle poem, "The Dream of Gerontius," where he makes one of his choir of Angelicals, as he calls them, sing thus:

O loving wisdom of our God,
When all was sin and shame,
A second Adam to the fight
And to the rescue came.

O wisest love! that flesh and blood
Which did in Adam fall,
Should strive afresh against the foe,
Should strive and should prevail.

You see at a glance what dramatic power and beauty are imported into a story of man's life upon earth when it is thus interpreted. Instead of being a mere string of detached and meaningless events, history takes on symmetry and proportion; a plan is dimly perceived that penetrates, and in a measure, at least, lightens up the whole fabric of it.—"God's hand has been in man's affairs from the first" we cry. "If these things be so, it must be that there is hope for us." Our lives are not running out into nothingness as they look to be doing, but in the maturing of this grand purpose of the Almighty we, also, insignificant as we seem, helpless as we are, we also count for something. The Christ, who conquered where all before had failed, gives us a lot and part in the sure fruits of that, his battle of the wilderness.

Three-Sided Temptation.

Another thought, disconnected from this, upon which we have been dwelling, but quite germane to our general purpose, is this:—It is common to explain the three temptations by saying that the first of them, "Command that these stones be made bread," was addressed to the animal element that is in every man; that the second, "Cast thyself down," was an appeal to spiritual pride, and that the third, "All these things will I give thee, if."—was an attempt to work upon ambition in the common, worldly sense. But I think we shall understand the unity better, discern the oneness of the threeness more distinctly, if we look at all the temptation as intended to accomplish this one thing, namely, to undermine the Son's confidence in the Father. You recall the wording of the tempter's appeal,—If thou be the Son of God,—do this. If thou be the Son of God, do that.

We must keep in mind that this crisis in our Lord's life followed close upon the baptism. Jesus had just been inducted, as we may say, into his office as the Christ. The voice had said from heaven, "This is my beloved Son," and John, the Baptizer, had solemnly borne witness to the coming of the greater than himself.

Full of this consciousness of a heavenly mission, awakened, perhaps, for the first time to a clear understanding of all that he really was, the Son of Mary had come into the wilderness to ponder these things, to feed upon them, as it were, while denying himself all other food. This, then, was the grand point of attack, the confidence in the heavenly Fatherhood. If the tempter could only shake his trust of sonship, only break up this filial sense, his bad end would be accomplished.

A Propitious Time.

"If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." "If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from this pinnacle." These are challenges—challenges coupled with a sneer. The suggestion is that the powers of God's world, the forces of his universe, are hostile, not friendly, and that, because of their being so, the Divine Fatherhood cannot be trusted or depended upon. We must remember, that up to this time Christ had wrought no miracle. Possibly he did not then know that the miracle-working power was to be his. The scene at Cana in Galilee had yet to be enacted. The tempter's words, therefore, came to him with all the bitterness of a scoff. Practically, what they mean is: You think, yourself, in a peculiar sense, under divine protection, well then, try turning these stones into bread, and see; you will starve first. You fancy that the old promises of the prophets and psalmists apply to you, personally; well then, leap down from this high turret and perish miserably.

My dear friends, is there nothing in the experience of modern man that tallies with all this? Have not you and I, in our measure and degree, to grapple with these same temptations?

It is true that the temptation of the Son of God had in it elements that differenced it widely from the temptations to which his disciples are subjected. It was singular, pre-eminent, unique, just as his agony was singular and his sacrifice unique; but when it is written, as it is written, that he was in all points tempted like as we are, surely it is implied that we are also in some points tempted like as he was. Now is not this just one of the points which his temptation and ours have in common?

Sonship Challenged.

We are not, and cannot become sons of God in the peculiar sense in which he is Son of God, and yet, are we not told that as many as received him to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. If therefore, we have with honest and true hearts received him, if in sincerity we have believed on his name, there must be a real sense in which we have a clear right to account ourselves sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty.

But are you and I under no temptation to be shaken out of this faith, cheated of this confidence, robbed of this sure trust, by observing how often nature seems to be against us? Of course we are. Is it not this very same lurking suspicion that cuts the nerve of prayer, and makes what the bible says about an over-ruling providence seem like an idle dream? Who, we cry, can be counted upon to turn the stones that strew so thickly the wilderness of this life of ours into bread that shall satisfy our hunger? Who, in the midst of the many and great perils that compass all our ways, will keep us from being dashed to pieces if we fall? Not God, surely, for God works through nature, and nature is under the hard rule of law, and there is nothing for us save simple acquiescence in what seems to be our doom.

There is nothing very unfamiliar about this — is there? This is no strange temptation that thus befalls us, but such a one as is common to modern man—the temptation to distrust God's love, the temptation to disbelieve in his care, to repudiate the sonship.

But, after all, the only thing we need to help us out of our distress is patience. In wonderful ways, and with a rapidity never before observed, the Author of Nature is making nature plastic to our hands. She is no longer the cruel mistress she used to be. Gradually we are learning how to make her forces minister to our good. All things come to him who waits, and to man, who through the many generations of the past, has waited, to man all things are coming in due time. We cannot suddenly, and on the spot change stones to bread by any angry cry, nor can we defy, with impunity, the laws of falling bodies; we shall starve before we succeed in one attempt, and we shall be crushed if we venture upon the other. Nevertheless, breadstuffs are constantly increasing, and men today are braving safely a thousand perils to which, in old times, they succumbed.

God the Father All the Time.

God is not our enemy; he is our Father. Nature is not our foe, she is our friend. When nature presses us hard with her pains and bruises, her accidents and sicknesses, and we feel moved, almost to despair, at the thought of all her waves and billows going over us, let us say to ourselves, "This is my temptation. God is my Father all the same. For reasons of his own he is letting these forces buffet me, letting me be tossed about, battered and bruised, but he is all the while just as truly my Father, just as really my friend, as if he were turning stones into bread at my appeal, or giving angels charge to hear me miraculously in their hands lest I strike my foot against gargoyle or capital."

Be sure, dear friend, that whatever voice bids us think otherwise is a tempting voice, a scoffing voice, a voice against which we shall do well to shut our ears.

The third of the temptations stands alone and by itself. The devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and showeth him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. These, he says, are mine, and to whomsoever I will I give them, and thou shalt have them if thou wilt only fall down and worship me. But even in this case, different as the subject matter of the temptation is from that of the other two, even here we discern the same bad motive lurking in the background, the same malicious resolve to break down, if it can possibly be done, the soul's confidence in the fatherhood of God. It is satan masquerading as the king. "Consider all this grandeur," the tempter says, "see all this magnificent paraphernalia of war and peace, of enterprise and achievement. Look yonder at those parliaments and congresses, those armies and navies, contemplate those huge industries symbolized by factory and workshop and warehouses; watch the emigrations that are going on, the commingling of races, the peopling of continents, and think of what it means to have the ordering of all this. Think of the honor and advantage of being my prime-minister in the government of so various and interesting a realm."

But this temptation like the others, rests on the rotten substructure of a lie. This that the tempter says, is false, utterly, absolutely, everlastingly false. It is the power of goodness, not the power of evil, that really rules the manifold affairs of men. God, not satan, is the sovereign commander of all the world. The vain pomp and glory of the world may be in satan's gift, but the true, the solid glory of the world is God's affair, not his.

The great activities of human life are under the guidance of him whose never-failing providence ordereth all things both in heaven and earth. This great administration, which covers and comprehends both state and church, is carried on in the interests of righteousness, and any voice which whispers in your ear that to succeed you must sell yourself to satan, is cajoling you to ruin. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. Do not imagine that any save this Supreme Proprietor can ever give you a clear title to the permanent possession of any single square foot of it. It is the meek-spirited, and they only who can expect to hold in perpetuity; these shall inherit the earth.

And so we sum up all in Christ's comprehensive edict, "Get thee behind Me, Satan." That was the end of the temptation in the wilderness. Resolutely uttered it will end any and every temptation to distrust the eternal goodness that may befall you or me.

"STRIKE FROM THE SHOULDER"

[Judge Rentoul, K. C., speaking in London lately on the duty of the church towards the liquor traffic, said the time had come when the church must "Strike from the Shoulder."—Temperance Leader.]

"Strike from the Shoulder," brother,
The enemy is strong;
"Strike from the Shoulder," sister,
Destroy what harms the young.

"Strike from the Shoulder," patriots,
Till darkness changs to light,
Till Satan's power's defeated,
No more mankind to blight.

"Strike from the Shoulder," statesmen,
Strike, 'gainst thy country's foe,
The fascinating wine cup
That leads to pain and woe.

"Strike from the Shoulder," pastors,
God such from thee demands;
Drink's soul-destroying traffic,
The pure with guilt it brands.

"Strike from the Shoulder," Christians,
The lost to life restore;
Remember time is fleeting,
When man can work no more.

"Strike from the Shoulder," always;
Give no uncertain sound;
"Touch not, Taste not," the evil,
So rampant all around.

"Strike from the Shoulder," ever
Be faithful, earnest, true;
Be valiant in the battle;
The brave, the good, are few.

LOST IN SIGHT OF HOME.

How Farmer Giles Fell a Victim to Whisky Almost on His Own Threshold.

The snow was lying thickly on the ground and the evening shadows were falling, as Farmer Giles left his home to spend an hour or two at the village saloon. When he arrived there, he found a group of kindred spirits gathered round the bar. Amid jest and song, the drink flowed freely. At closing time Farmer Giles could not walk steadily. He staggered along, in company with two others, until he got in sight of home, when they took a turn to the right and left him to pursue his way alone. In bidding his companions good-by, however, he had turned round, and so, instead of going straight on along the high-road, he walked into a field through an open gate, and wandered round and across the field, unable to find his way out again.

Mrs. Giles waited up for her husband until half-past eleven, and then she decided that he must have been too drunk to walk, so had stayed at the saloon.

A man passing along the road in the early morning was startled by hearing the cry: "Lost! Lost!" He stopped and listened, but it was dark, and the cry was not repeated. "It must have been my fancy! How could anyone be lost close to the high-road?" The man pursued his way, whistling and flocking his hands to keep himself warm, for it was freezing keenly and bitterly cold.

Next morning Farmer Giles did not return home, and his wife sent to the saloon to inquire about him. The companions with whom he left were next visited, and then a search was instituted, which resulted in his footsteps being traced through snow into a field. There they made zig-zag paths in every direction, crossing and recrossing, until it became hopeless to attempt to follow them.

The search party accordingly divided and went in different directions across the field, which was a large one, and lay parallel with the road. Soon a loud shout told that some discovery had been made, and the rest of the party rushed to the spot. There, seated against the hedge, exactly opposite his own door, sat Farmer Giles, stiff and cold, frozen to death.

At the inquest the man who had heard the cry in the early morning told of his hearing his last despairing cry. So Farmer Giles perished, a victim to drink—lost in sight of home!

ANTI-LIQUOR SENTIMENTS.

When a liquor-seller finds a man after his own heart, he goes at once after his cash.—National Advocate.

Anyone who would degrade his brother is a fit companion for those whom he would degrade. Birds of a feather should be made to flock together.—United Presbyterian.

A well-known solicitor, moved by the revival in Wales, it is said, has decided to give up taking cases on behalf of breweries. By this decision he sacrificed £2,000 a year.

The Pullman Palace Car company has promulgated a rule forbidding the sale of liquor to passengers not occupying seats in buffet cars. Sunday card playing has never been permitted in Pullman cars.

An Albany saloon man said: "Whenever the saloon men get together and talk over the future prospects of liquor selling, there are at least 50 per cent. of them that say they expect the people will shut up the drinking places in time."

Recent statistics show that out of every hundred alcoholics attacked by pneumonia 70 die, while of every hundred non-alcoholics attacked by the same disease only 23 die.

Moderate Drinking.

"So far as the individual is concerned the fight for temperance is won or lost on the moderate drinking proposition, and it is at that point that we need to bring all our logic to bear."—The Pilgrim Teacher.
